

A SPLENDID GIFT TO TRINITY RICHLY JEWELLED CHALICE FOR THE COMMUNION SERVICE.

PRESENTED BY PROFESSOR EGGLESTON IN MEMORY OF HIS WIFE—THE JEWELS WERE COLLECTED BY HIM AND WORN BY MRS. EGGLESTON. Trinity Church has received a costly and beautiful wrought jeweled chalice, which has been presented by Professor Thomas Eggleston, of Columbia College, in memory of his wife, Augusta McKivkar Eggleston, who died on January 9, 1886.

This chalice, which has been pronounced by experts to be the most beautiful of its kind in America, if not in the world, was made in London under the supervision of Professor Eggleston, in the workshop of the late Mr. Eggleston, in the workshop of the late Mr. Eggleston, in the workshop of the late Mr. Eggleston.

Below are six panels, three of which are designs, and three are settings of the jewels as Mrs. Eggleston had them. In the front one of these panels is a cross, in the panel above the cross are three colored diamonds, exactly as they were set in one of Mrs. Eggleston's rings.

Back of the crucifix, and to the right of the panel last described, is a cross, above which are three colored diamonds, exactly as they were set in one of Mrs. Eggleston's rings. The arm of the cross, which was a lace pin, is made up, beginning from the top, of a large diamond, a yellow sapphire, a yellow sapphire and a malachite.

A SHARP BREAK IN COTTON. THE BUREAU REPORT A BEARISH SURPRISE—HIGH CONDITION OF THE GROWING CROP.

The announcement of the Bureau report yesterday at noon, making a high condition of the cotton crop on June 12, precipitated a violent break in the cotton market. The August option sold down from 122 under this influence to 7.8. The final figures were above the lowest, owing to taking of profits by the bears.

The speculators had fixed on 90 as about a proper figure to represent the crop condition. They were stunned by the actual figures, which are the highest for June in ten years. The June condition for last year was only 84, and the interest in the bumper crop is nearly 10,000,000 bales, it was only 83, and in the three preceding years it was 85, 83, and 81 respectively.

The popular estimate of the yield, based on the Government's figures, is around 9,500,000 bales. There were unexpectedly heavy arrivals at Galveston—2,500 bales—due to the discomfort of the bulls, and the precipitate slump in values of stocks and the weakness of the bear houses and traders pressed down by heavy selling.

THEY WANT THE ELEVATED ROAD. Alderman Flek, of Mount Vernon, called with a delegation of North Siders on the Mayor yesterday and asked him to get Messrs. Gould and Sage to extend the elevated road through Fordham up to Mount Vernon.

The Mayor said he would do the best he could, but meantime advised the delegation to see the railroad officials.

NOT IN THE CIVIL SERVICE SCHEDULE. Mayor Strong said yesterday that the office of clerk to the Board of Aldermen had not been placed in the competitive Civil Service schedule as was reported. The Mayor added that he intended to take the office of Water Register in the Public Works Department under Civil Service regulation.

The office of clerk to the Board of Aldermen, known as the office of the Water Register, was held by John E. Kelly, formerly secretary of the Republican County Committee. The present Water Register is Columbus O. Johnson and the salary is $4,000 a year.

JUDGED AN HABITUAL CRIMINAL. Judge Cowing yesterday, in Part I. General Sessions, adjudged as an habitual criminal Richard Martin, thirty-four years old, an ex-convict, who lived in a Bowery lodging-house. Martin pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree. He was arrested for robbing George H. Carpenter, of 414 West 10th street, and was assisted by Louis Knickerbocker and Charles McArthur, robbed him. McArthur and Goodman were sent to the Elmira reformatory.

Judge Cowing said Martin had been convicted of some four times previously and had served seventeen years in State's Prison, just half his life. The Judge said he was sorry the man did not get the full term, and he would be able to sentence him to State's Prison for twenty years for highway robbery, "second offense."

The Judge said the safety of the public was more important than an individual's liberty, and Martin bore a constant menace to society. He sentenced Martin to four years in State's Prison on a charge of burglary, and to one year on a charge of grand larceny, and such a judgment has been only a few days ago.

CAPTAIN PICKETT GETS OUT. HIS RETIREMENT CAUSED BY ILL-HEALTH, NOT BY HIS TRANSFER FROM THE TENDERLOIN.

Police Captain Patrick H. Pickett, who was relieved of the command of the Tenderloin Precinct on Monday and transferred to the Mulberry-st. station, was retired yesterday on his application. He will receive an annual pension of $3,750. His retirement was a surprise to many persons in the department, and at first the news caused a report that his transfer from the Tenderloin was the cause of his application for a pension, but it was ascertained that his application was sent to the Commissioner on Monday.

The Board approved the action of the Controller in selling the $2,812,500 worth of city bonds, redeemable at his option, but not due until 1926. These bonds bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. There is now enough money in the Sinking Fund to redeem them.

THE ALASKA SEAL PRIVILEGES. JUDGE WALLACE MAKES AN ADDITION TO HIS DECISION.

Judge Wallace, of the United States Circuit Court, has handed down an addition to his decision in the suit brought by the United States against the North American Commercial Company for rent, royalties and taxes for the sealing privileges at the Pribilof Islands, Alaska. The Court says: In ruling that the defendant could not be allowed for its counterclaim in this action, because its claim for damages had not been presented to the Secretary of the Treasury, the fact was overlooked that the act of Congress of March 31, 1895, which authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to issue licenses for seal hunting, was amended by the act of July 31, 1894, under Section 31 of the United States Revised Statutes, as construed by the Supreme Court in the case of United States v. Harmon (147 U. S. 28-29), the decision of the Controller of the Treasury was final and conclusive as far as the executive department and the Secretary of the Treasury, and not the Secretary of the Treasury, was the accounting officer to whom the claim should have been presented.

The Board of Trade and Transportation at its meeting yesterday considered a report from the Railroad Committee favoring the repeal of the anti-pooling clause of the Interstate Commerce Law. Resolutions were adopted favoring the city's ownership of the water front, requesting the Rapid Transit Commissioners not to resign their offices and commending the present administration of the Street-Cleaning Department.

A SPECULATOR ACCUSED. J. D. Murphy, fifty-two years old, who says he is a speculator, and who until recently was employed in the brokerage firm of Harrington & Jessup, No. 56 Broadway, appeared in the City Court yesterday afternoon in answer to a summons issued on the complaint of Miss Mamie Whitefield, of No. 149 East Fifty-fifth-st., who charged that Murphy had defrauded her of $3,000 by false representations. She is the daughter of a retired builder, and in her statement she alleges that Murphy was a neighbor of hers for three years, inducing her and her mother to invest in sugar, and that he had been in the habit of investing in sugar, and that he had been in the habit of investing in sugar, and that he had been in the habit of investing in sugar.

THE FASHIONS. WHAT IS CONSIDERED "SMART" IN SOCIETY.

The Louis XV and the Marie Antoinette periods have united in producing the dress of the season, which is an altogether charming result. For once Dame Fashion gives us no exaggerations, sleeves and skirts both being moderate. Even masculine critics allow that for once there is no eccentricity to caricature. Notwithstanding this moderation and the absence of audacity that generally marks the advent of a new style, the fashions of this summer are noticeably "chic" and effective. The light sleeves and fitted skirts are both marked characteristics of the newest gowns, the former being only redeemed from absolute plainness by the draped puff or pleated epaulettes below the shoulders, for the latter must be built out in some way, however tight and small the sleeve. This again favors out at the wrist in a moyer-gate cuff.

The Louis XV jacket is still in great favor, and is used for evening wear, with a low-necked vest or chemise for a demi-toilette. A jacket of this kind is most useful. A particularly pretty imported model is of striped taffeta. The jacket is cut open, and is finished around the neck and down the fronts with a narrow, double ruffling of yellow Valenciennes. A low-necked blouse waist of white mousseline de soie fits the front in lieu of a vest, giving the effect of a very low, square neck, the top being entirely covered with a large bow of violet velvet consisting of several loops on either side, drawn together in the center by a rhinestone buckle. The sleeves are long and tight, with a short drapery on the shoulder and finished with moyer-gate cuffs.

Separate waists may be worn with ball dresses, and where space in traveling is an object, are particularly useful. A very pretty waist made after a design by Felix is of black velvet fitting very tightly around the waist, with a curve at the hips and very slightly pointed front and back—just long-waisted enough to be worn without a belt; this bodice is fastened at the back, and is cut across under the arms, the upper part being fitted in with a bouillonne of light-green tulle held down at intervals with green leaves. The short sleeves also consist of bouillonne of the tulle, drawn together at intervals by narrow black velvet.

One of the best-dressed women in New-York wore at a polo match the other day a lovely gown consisting of a black organdie besprinkled with tiny white polka-dots. This was made over a black taffeta petticoat, with every groove in the skirt defined by Valenciennes insertion about three-quarters of an inch in width. The bottom of the skirt was finished with a pleated ruffle about three inches deep, with an entrelace of Valenciennes as a heading. The very full blouse bodice was covered with intersecting squares of the insertion, forming a kind of geometric pattern. The sleeves had horizontal bands of the insertion across the front and back, with two vertical stripes on the outside of each sleeve. As the lace is literally inserted, the work on such a gown is in itself enough to render it costly and delicate, apart from its undoubted style and freshness.

It was a charmingly cool and diaphanous-looking toilette for a hot day. The skirt was decidedly the most popular. A very pretty costume of pink organdie has tight-fitting wrinkled sleeves held down by a band of insertion on the outside, with a butterfly arrangement of drapery on the shoulders, also held down by the insertion band and ending with a rosette. The bodice is finished in the same manner as the sleeves, and the skirt is plain, with a band of insertion and a narrow ruffle at the bottom.

An exceedingly smart way of making the waist of a summer gown is to have a band in front edged on either side with a ruffle, with two or three other ruffles of the same width, one under the other on the bodice, so as to give the effect of an entire ruffled waist. The sleeves to this gown are in the form of a puff, coming to a band of insertion, and divided in the center by a band of insertion. Another effective way of making a bodice for a gingham or any other cotton material is to make both body and sleeves of narrow vertical tucks, each tucked edge with narrow lace. Still another pattern has a yoke made of solid lace, with a wide band of insertion on top of the bodice, like scales. As this effect is produced on the ordinary edging, it is easily done, but looks quite intricate.

One of Rouff's latest evening gowns is of white brocaded silk with yellow flowers. The décolleté waist is cut open in a V front and back to the waist, with graduated revers of the taffetas, growing wider on the shoulders, where they are draped. These revers are edged with a narrow pleats of black tulle, and the hips, being, which the fulness of the V being also filled in with black tulle. The sleeves consist of a band of insertion, with ribbon of black lace, with a box of black tulle, which consists of a full piece of accordion-pleated tulle tied in the center with black satin ribbon. A band of black satin ribbon with a moulinet bow in front forms a belt, below which is a ruffle of the brocade edged with a pleats of black tulle.

Paquin's new skirt is not as graceful as the old pattern. It has a very small yoke on the sides, just covering the hips, and the fulness of the skirt is gathered on the sides, with a ribbon of black lace, with a box of black tulle, which consists of a full piece of accordion-pleated tulle tied in the center with black satin ribbon. A band of black satin ribbon with a moulinet bow in front forms a belt, below which is a ruffle of the brocade edged with a pleats of black tulle.

The new-Haven Line Sunday service goes into effect next Sunday, and will continue until September 6, inclusive. The steamer Richard Peck, leaving New-York at 9:30 a. m. and connecting with the steamer C. H. Northam, leaving New-Haven at 3 p. m., gives the patrons from this city a delightful excursion on Long Island Sound by daylight, making one of the finest trips out of New-York. DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST EX-MAYOR GRANT. Aaron Kahn, the lawyer, of No. 102 Fulton-st., announced yesterday that he was ready to serve his amended complaint in the suit for $100,000 alleged damages which he began against ex-Mayor Hugh J. Grant last year. His suit in the Supreme Court was brought on account of a statement alleged to have been made by Mr. Grant in a newspaper interview.

Mr. Kahn was examined in supplementary proceedings last year, and testified that he has lost $100,000 as a result of the statement made by Mr. Grant. He also mentioned the names of several prominent Tammany men, among them Mr. Francis Parkers, made an address in the Narrows, New-York at 9:30 a. m. and connecting with the steamer C. H. Northam, leaving New-Haven at 3 p. m., gives the patrons from this city a delightful excursion on Long Island Sound by daylight, making one of the finest trips out of New-York. FATHER DOYLE TO UNDERTAKERS. At the State convention of undertakers yesterday morning, Father A. P. Doyle, the Church of the Immaculate Conception, made an address, in which he said that the undertaker was a near relative to the priest, and the business of the undertaker being the care of the body while that of the priest was the care of the soul.

The new officers of the association are: President, August Eckerberg, of New-York City; vice-president, James Bortie, West Troy; second vice-president, R. A. Shufelt, Brooklyn; third vice-president, Jesse Young, Ballston; secretary, C. S. Safford, Champlain.

to the front and tied slightly at the side in a Japanese bow, is worn by some well-dressed women in lieu of a belt. A very nice-looking belt which may be kept clean and white with pipeclay, and which looks very neat, is of white canvas, with buckle of the same. Low shoes to wear with this style of costume should be of pigskin leather, kept beautifully clean with rubber soles, and a low, square rubber heel, which prevents that feeling of being tilted backward which some people object to so much, and which is apt to give an awkward carriage. While shirts, ties and shoes are very much the same for all outing purposes, and the skirt hat is worn for all occasions, except full dress, the skirt differs according to the occupation, and the style of the occasion, and the weather. The very common skirt, however, is condemned by most Americans, and is not to be worn.

EAST RIVER BRIDGE APPROACHES. THE COMMISSION GIVES A HEARING AT WHICH MOST OF THE ARGUMENTS FAVOR THE GRAND-ST. SITE.

The East River Bridge Commission gave a public hearing at the Mayor's office yesterday on the proposed approach in this city for the new East River Bridge. Of the half-dozen or more speakers who appeared, most of them urged the selection of the Grand-st. approach. The bridge will enter the city at Delancey-st., and of the two plans thus far considered one proposes that it shall extend due west to Grand-st., and the other to Park-st., both of them converging at Grand-st. Mayor Seligman, Commissioner Salem H. Wales and President Andrew D. Baird favor the Clinton-st. approach; the other Commissioners the Grand-st. site.

The first speaker of the day was A. Stern, who appeared for property-holders around Grand-st. He said that to fix the approach at Clinton-st. would be unwise, as the only approach to a narrow forty-foot thoroughfare at Grand-st., on the other hand, he said, was a commercial artery and a wide street easily reached by horse-car lines. If the Clinton-st. approach were selected the speaker said that Delancey-st. would have to be widened at least 100 feet, and property valued at between six and seven million dollars would have to be condemned.

Henry A. Robinson, as spokesman for the Metropolitan Traction Company, said that the Grand-st. approach was admirable because of the great facility it would give of reaching the bridge by the various roads operated by his company. If the Clinton-st. site were chosen, the only railroad reaching the bridge, he said, would be the single-track line running through Delancey-st. Benjamin Stern said that he had done business for many years in Grand-st. and favored it as the approach to the bridge, because it was one of the city's arteries. Solomon Bernstein, Bernard Downing, Joseph O'Brien and Samuel Slomer spoke also in favor of the Grand-st. site.

RAY AWAY TO GET HIS HEAD SHAVEN. PETRINI STABBED A BOY AND SO SOUGHT TO DISGUISE HIMSELF.

Vincent Petrini, twenty-nine years old, an Italian, of No. 125 Sullivan-st., was arraigned in Jefferson Market Court yesterday charged with felonious assault. The complainant against him was a boy but ten years old, Joseph Parrot, of No. 108 Thompson-st. For some time past Petrini has been greatly bothered by the small boys of the neighborhood, who kept stealing small articles and throwing stones at himself and his companions. Tuesday afternoon he chased a crowd of the boys for some distance, but all of them managed to escape. At the corner of Prince and Macdougal sts., however, he met young Parrot, who was on his way home from school. Parrot had not been with Petrini's tormentors, but Petrini was so blinded by passion that he did not notice this. He seized the lad before the latter knew what was the matter and stabbed him in the head with a jackknife, causing a nasty wound over the left eye. Then he ran down the street into a barber shop and told the barber to shave all of his hair off as quickly as he could.

At the mean time Detective Frazee and Jackson, who chanced to be in the neighborhood, found the boy lying on the sidewalk bleeding profusely. They called for a doctor and took him to St. Vincent's Hospital. Then they started to look for Petrini, and they found him in St. Berth's barbershop, where he was shaving his hair. They arrested him. On court yesterday Petrini, who appeared with one-half of his head shaved, and his hair was covered with white hair, said to the Magistrate that he had been so angry that he had not known what he was doing. Magistrate Elyms held him in $1,000 bail.

COMPRESSED AIR MOTOR CARS. THE THIRD-AVE. LINE WILL BEGIN EXPERIMENTS WITHIN TWO WEEKS.

Albert J. Elias, the president of the Third Avenue Railroad Company, said yesterday that the compressed-air motor cars with which the company will experiment will be placed on the One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st. line within two weeks. Some half-dozen cars, he said, would be used for the experiment. Mr. Elias said that he believed this compressed-air car will prove to be a marvel. "I think that this compressed-air car will prove to be a marvel. I have been studying the matter carefully, and unless I am greatly mistaken this motor will solve the question of a motive power for surface roads. Each car is controlled individually. The compressed air is supplied to each car independently of the others, and the control of the car seems perfect. We have reason to expect the most satisfactory results from the use of this motor."

HELD TO AWAIT HER FATHER. In the Jefferson Market Court yesterday Magistrate Simms committed Winnie Osborn to the Mercer-st. station to await the arrival of her father from Denver to this city, and last evening the body was sent to Philadelphia for burial. He said his grandfather was a member of the association of Mexican territory, and opposed to the annexation of the territory. Major Samuel L. McFarlin, of Loganport, Ind., addressed the veterans on the history of the association, and when he said he would never again see the old soldiers cheerfully.

CORONER HOEBER COMPLAINS. Coroner Hoebler does not like the way policemen act in the cases of deaths which are reported to them. It is the custom of the police to take the officers at once to the station-house and later to the coroner's office. "The law," says the coroner, "is that the effects should not be touched until the arrival of a coroner. I am going to see Chief Conlin and see if I cannot work a reform in this matter." Coroner Hoebler was at No. 309 East Thirty-fourth-st., where he called the police to take the body of a man who had been killed here in the Narrows, New-York, on the afternoon of the 10th. He had last resting-place in the free soil of a Cuban republic.

GENERAL QUESADA'S FUNERAL. The funeral of General Rafael de Quesada, the Cuban patriot, took place yesterday at St. Leo's Church, in East Twenty-eighth-st., near Madison-square. Father Duquesne officiated and made an address. There was a requiem mass. The church was nearly filled with mourners and friends of the deceased general. Among them were many sympathizers with the cause of freedom in Cuba and members of the Cuban Junta.

ETTA KATES HELD FOR TRIAL. Magistrate Simms in Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning, held for trial in $1,000 bail Etta Kates, who was arrested Tuesday night for obtaining goods from various drygoods stores by passing herself off as Mrs. Wardell, wife of the president of the Standard Oil Company, and Mrs. J. C. Root, wife of one of the proprietors of the Hotel St. George. She made no denial of the charges, but said that Miss Kates, who is but eighteen years old, came to this city from Baltimore last December, and she went to live with her father, sister and brother, at Mrs. Kates' boarding-house, No. 100 East 10th-st. Her father, she said the detectives, was a travelling salesman for a well-known New-York house, and that Mrs. Kates had been in the habit of passing herself off as a silver waiter at the hotel.

A VERDICT FOR $5,000. A verdict for $5,000 in favor of Franklin Howell and against the old firm of A. W. Dimmock & Co. was rendered by a jury in the Supreme Court yesterday before Justice Barnard. The action was on a promissory note for $50,000, made in 1884, the Mechanics' Bank of Scranton being the original holder and receiving at the same time collateral of $60,000 part stock of the Bankers and Merchants' Telegraph Company. This stock was sold, and brought only $2,000, and the suit was for the balance, with interest.

Dimmock & Co. were at one time prominent brokers and bankers, but they failed about the time the note was made for about a million dollars. The defence to the action was the statute of limitations, and it was also alleged that the bank did not use its best judgment in disposing of the stock, which had it been sold earlier, would have realized a larger sum.
