

BRYAN STRUCK THE CHORD.

seroely surveyed the vast congregation which were hissing him. Then, with a contemptuous toss of his head, he looked down at the silver delegates before him, his eye blazing, and said with a sneer: "There are only three things that hiss, with a curl of his thin lips, " a goose, a serpent and a man." Raising his head and addressing the galleries, he shouted that the man who hissed South Carolina forgot the history of the Revolution, when that State kept alive the fires of liberty. This provoked a wild demonstration from the silver men. "South Carolina in 1800," he said, "led the fight in the Democratic party which disrupted it. Disruption," he continued, while the galleries hissed, "brought about the war, and the war emancipated the black slaves. Now," he added, sweeping his arm through the air above his head, "we are leading the fight to emancipate the white slaves." This time the silver men shouted, but they did not applaud very lustily when he declared that with conditions reversed he was willing again to see the Democratic party disrupted.

SAYS THE ISSUE IS SECTIONAL.

Senator Tillman then proceeded to describe the West as in a state of bondage to the Eastern money-lender. "You have appealed to us of the South to aid you," he added, "and we have come to your aid. People have said that this is not a sectional issue. I say it is a sectional issue." This evoked another storm of hisses. Mr. Tillman then read to the Convention statistics which he thought proved that the Eastern money-lender is in a position to squeeze the farmers of the West and South, to whom he has loaned money. An industrial revolution, as a consequence, was in progress. "I know, I know," he cried, with arms aloft, and looking toward the New-York delegation, "you are against us. There is not a paper in this city that is not in the power of the money influence. They will not give us a fair show. They characterize us as howling dervishes and silver lunatics." Continuing, Senator Tillman declared that the only way to avert a revolution would be to select a man whose record would fit the platform.

MAKES PLINGS AT HILL.

Soon the hissing began again at some radical utterance concerning the money power, and the South Carolinian took occasion to say: "Four years ago the New-York Senator was hissed as I am now. Where is New-York now?" he asked. "Where is New-York's leader?" And from the gallery came the cry, "In the soup," which brought down a wave of cheers for Hill, topped with a foam of hisses. Senator Tillman seemed especially in a rage with Senator Hill. "Mr. Hill," he said, "appears as the apologist of the East. We begged him not to force this issue of the Administration upon us. We in South Carolina have repudiated President Cleveland, and I believe other States are in the same humor. You dare not indorse Mr. Cleveland's administration, for you know that if you do you will be beaten. You must repudiate him."

FIERCELY ASSAILS THE PRESIDENT.

Another storm of hisses went up from the Cleveland men. Tillman, not daunted, read a resolution fiercely denouncing the Cleveland Administration and evoked other hisses from the Cleveland men present among the delegates or in the audience. Finally, Tillman wound up his long tirade by saying defiantly: "We came here to have a platform which meant what it said and said what it meant. Adopt it and we will support whatever man for President you may nominate." Tillman's cry that the free-coinage canvas was "a sectional issue" displeased some of the silver leaders. Senator Jones, of Arkansas, persuaded Senator Hill to surrender five minutes of his time to him, and he went on the platform to deny the truth of Senator Tillman's statement. "I am a Southerner," said Senator Jones, "but I declare to you that this is not a sectional issue. How can it be when such a noble man as Arthur Sewall, of Maine, has come out for free coinage and George Frederick Williams has joined him?"

HILL'S ENTHUSIASTIC GREETING.

David B. Hill now took the platform. For ten minutes he was unable to address the Convention, so great was the applause. He paid his respects to Senator Tillman at once. "In reply to Senator Tillman," he said, "I would state that I am a Democrat and not a revolutionist (great applause), and my mission here to-day is to unite and not to divide; to plan for victory, not to plot for defeat." This brought forth another round of applause. "New-York," he added, "does not apologize to South Carolina."

BARTHOLDI.

Mr. Hill then argued that his bimetallic plank ought to be adopted. "This plank does not favor bimetalism," he said, "but for monometallism." He argued that the Democratic party had always stood for the double standard, never for a single standard. The silver platform meant simply silver alone to be used as a currency. In his judgment the United States could not safely alone undertake the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. He found nothing in the platform about keeping gold and silver coins at a parity. The very policy condemned in the platform had kept greenbacks, silver and gold at a parity. The fact was ignored that silver could be mined at one-half its former cost at a profit. If braver were all that were needed to create a metallic currency lead might well be selected as the metal, for it was a plentiful article.

A REVOLUTIONARY PROGRAMME.

Nearly every plank of the Democratic platform was criticised by Mr. Hill. What was the necessity, he asked, of reopening the greenback controversy? It was an attempt to commit the Democratic party to the suicidal policy of issuing paper money. The Democratic party was a hard-money party. This was a new departure for it to favor the issue of paper money in times of peace. Then take the reference to the Supreme Court and the income tax case decision. If that plank meant anything it meant that if the Democratic party should be intrusted with power it would enlarge the membership of the Supreme Court for the very purpose of having the decision on the income tax reversed. "I never will take such a revolutionary step," fiercely declared Senator Hill, "and I am utterly opposed to most of the planks of this unnecessary, ridiculous and foolish platform." He then added, threateningly: "You have made the broad declaration that under no circumstances will you issue bonds in times of peace. This means repudiation. You even oppose Congress authorizing the issue of bonds. The Wilson Tariff bill, unfortunately, has not produced enough revenue to support the Government. The President and your Southern Secretary of the Treasury Department felt compelled to issue bonds to pay the expenses of the Government. Was not this right?" He attacked also the plank which, he said, for the first time committed the party to opposition to life tenures of office. It was against the policy of the Democratic fathers. It was foolish and unnecessary; it was a revolutionary step in party history.

WARNING THE WILD MEN.

He gave a grave warning just before he concluded: "If this Convention, after declaring for free silver," he said, "nominates any candidate but one, your Populist friends will nominate a ticket, and your free-silver friends will join hands with them." "No, no," shouted a delegate. "Ah," replied Mr. Hill, quickly, "who is there in this Convention to speak for this wing of the Republican party?" This keen response set the gold men to cheering. The demonstration was renewed when with an inclination of his head toward the Hilli coalition of free-silver bolters from the St. Louis Convention, he pronounced the platform as "a piece of silver." "I see on this platform a number of distinguished gentlemen who are counselling this party. They never voted the Democratic ticket in their lives." He finished with a plea for the integrity of the party. "We want to see the Democratic party," he said, "not tear it apart. We love and honor the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, who were for hard money. If we are true to the old faith, if we stand by the traditional policy of the Democratic fathers of the past, we can win; if we put them aside, we are lost."

The gold delegates climbed upon their chairs and joined in a war of words with the silver men in honor of their companion, and he descended from the platform and resumed his seat in the New-York delegation. Ex-Senator W. F. Vilas, of Wisconsin, followed with a speech in support of Mr. Hill's minority report. EX-GOVERNOR RUSSELL'S SOLEMN PROTEST. Ex-Governor William E. Russell, of Massachusetts, made an impressive protest against the adoption of a free-coinage platform. "I have but one word to say," Mr. Russell began. "The time for debate is past. I am conscious, painfully conscious, that the mind of this Convention is not and has not been open to argument. I know the will of this great majority, which has seen fit to override precedents and attack the sovereignty of States, the ultimate triumph of Democratic principles. These principles, he argued, were to be forgotten under new and radical leadership. Mr. Russell was followed by ex-Congressman Bryan, with the result already told.

VOTING AT LAST.

The Convention then came to a vote on Mr. Hill's gold-standard amendment, and it was beaten by a vote of 301 to 628. A vote was then taken upon Mr. Hill's amendment indorsing mildly the National Administration. It was defeated by a vote of 301 to 628. Finally a vote was taken on the free-coinage platform, and it was adopted by a vote of 301 to 628. The Convention then adjourned until 8 o'clock in the evening. CADETS ASSIGNED TO DUTY.
