TRUBLE ON THE PIER.

COMPLAINTS ABOUT ANCHOR LINE EMPLOYEES. PASSENGERS ON THE CITY OF ROME AND THEIR WAITING FRIENDS OBJECT TO THE WAY THEY ARE TREATED—THREATS OF ARREST MADE.

The Anchor Line steamship City of Rome tied up to her pier at East Twenty-fourth-st., at 7 o'clock last evening, after a stormy voyage from Glasgow. She carried a large number of passengers, who were in a hurry to get ashore.

When the City of Rome made fast to her pier, she had not been boarded or passed by an inspecting officer. Until he has cleared a ship nothing can be taken from it. He had, however, detailed a dozen deputies to the pier to examine hand baggage.

The persons waiting on the pier did not understand why only one passenger in about every ten minutes should be allowed to leave the vessel, and as minutes lengthened into hours, and friends and relatives did not appear, those in the crowd began to grow restless.

A large wedding next month will be that of Miss Edythe Earle, the only daughter of Mr. C. Noble Earle, to Colonel Robert Townsend, an Assistant District-Attorney of this county, and a son of the late Solomon Townsend, of this city.
