commanders of a large number of the separate companies. Colonel Griffith, the Governor's private secretary, said that telegrams and letters have come to the Governor from men who have raised independent regiments in this State in sufficient number to man sixty or seventy regiments. But as stated by Governor Black, the National Guard will have the preference.

Colonel Daniel Appleton and Captain Underwood, of the 7th Regiment, in company with Colonel Alex's Cutier Smith and Adjutant Albert Wingate, of the 23d Regiment, arrived here from New-York at noon. In the Adjutant-General's office they found on a similar mission of seeking enlistment Major Joseph Remmer, of densburg and Watertown, and Captain J. W. St John, of the 133d Separate Company, of Walton, Delaware County.

After talking with Adjutant-General Tillinghast a few minutes, Colonel Appleton and Captain Underwood visited Governor Black and they had a conference with Adjutant-General not believe that "one swallow made a summer the Adjutant-General would make known the

"I told Colonel Appleton that the information he had given me would be put as it were, on the last of the city, and said:

Colonel Phisterer, Assistant Adjutant-General, said to-day: "The National Guard is fast resuming its old form, so far as members are concerned. The enlistments have been so many since the first regiments departed that I now think the Guard numbers 12,000 men. The four batteries are intact; none of their members were assigned to duty in the volunteer army.

"Troop E of the cavalry is ready to be mustered in. In the First Brigade, within ten days the ranks of the 109th, the new 112th and the new 122d regiments will be filled. SEVENTH MEN JUBILANT.

THE GENERAL IMPRESSION IS THAT THEY ARE TO HAVE ANOTHER CHANCE
There was a deal of suppressed excitement around the 7th Regiment Armory last evening when it was learned that Colonel Appleton and Captain Underwood had been to Albany and had a conference with the Governor and Adjutant-General Tillinghast. Before the colonel appeared it was the general belief that another opportunity was to be given to the regiment to volunteer, and from the individual expressions of the members of the regiment there appeared little doubt as to what their action

The corridors of the armory were filled early in the evening with members of the regiment. Company I had a regular quarterly meeting, at which only routine business was transacted, but many members of other companies drifted into the armory and discussed the situation.

Colonel Appleton arrived from Albany early in the evening, and immediately held a long conference with the captains of the regiment. At the end of the conference he consented to answer the questions of the reporters, who were waiting for him. He said that he and Captain Underwood had been to Albany, and had had a conference with Governor Black and Adjutant-General Tillinghast. When asked if the Governor gave him any assurance that the 7th would be allowed to volunteer, the Colonel replied that no orders regarding the manner in which New-York's quota under the latest call for volunteers should be raised had been re-Whether or not he had assured Governor Black that the 7th would volunteer, Colonel Appleton said that it would be manifestly improper for him to say what conversation passed between himself and the Governor.

TWO NEW COMPANIES.

"I will say, however," he continued, "that the Governor has given me authority to raise the strength of the regiment to twelve companies, there being now ten, and that I have appointed to organize the two new companies, L and M, Lieutenant Robert Mazet, of Company D, and Lieutenant William S. Scott, of Company K."

When asked if these two men would be the captains of the new companies, the Colonel answered that, of course, could not be said, but that it was usual to elect as captains of new companies the men who recruited them. It would undoubtedly be the case, the Colonel said, that the companies already organized would be reduced in numbers from 103 to 84.

"We expect to go out under the colors," replied the "The Governor is not yet aware in what form the orders will come from Washington, and cannot say whether they will come for the National Guard or not. Further than this Colonel Appleton declined to say what conversation took place between himself and the Governor." It was learned from another source, however, that the members of the regiment firmly expect to receive orders that will give them an oppor-tunity to volunteer. These orders are expected to come on Tuesday, since Adjutant-General

Tillinghast is to be away from Albany to-day and Sunday and Monday are to be holidays. TALK OF AN EXTRA SESSION. UNLAWFUL APPORTIONMENT ALLEGED. SOME CHANGES IN OFFICERS.

The impression prevailed among the members of the regiment that the regiment would probably be ordered to the Philippines when it took the field, but no authority could be found for this impression. The men of the 7th appeared to be jubilant at the prospect of getting another chance to solunteer, and it appeared to be the fact that they were thoroughly convinced that the integrity of the regiment would be absolutely respected, although it could not be learned that any official assurances had been received upon this point, either. Undoubtedly a considerable proportion of the members of the 7th will fail to pass the Army surgeons, but the regiment has a large waiting list, and this will probably be drawn upon to fill the gaps. One thing is certain, the 7th does not expect to contribute any men to fill the gaps in the regiments already at the front. Some of its former members are already filling such gaps, but there will probably as the properties and the regiments are already filling such gaps, but there will probably not be a property of the regiments are already filling such gaps, but there will probably not be a proportion of the members are already filling such gaps. ments already at the front. KMEP THE SEVENTH AT HOME.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: The 7th Regiment, as is well known, ardently desires to go to the front as an organization. Advices from Albany to-day indiente that there is some chance of this now. Three times during the Civil War it responded without a moment's hesitation to the call of the Government, and was mustered in, in each case course, no orders could be issued on that point as a regiment. Its services gave great confifrom Albany. In reply to a question as to dence and satisfaction to the forces in the lows; Grand chancellor, Frederick E. But there is one consideration which the authorities of this State ought not to overlook. Common-sense should not be overlooked in the hurraln of the hour. What will be the position of this city with the 7th at the front, especially if the 23d, as now seems probable, should march away also. Only two batteries of artillery will be left, if I am correctly informed, for the preservation of the public peace. An emergency suddenly arose in Brooklyn not so long ago which compelled the presence of nearly all the troops in the State. No one anticipates any trouble, but is it wise to leave the city denued of troops? But there is one consideration which the au-

MACHINE'S PLANS FOR URGING WAR ON TAMMANY AND MAYOR VAN WYCK.

Plans for waging war upon Tammany and Mayor Van Wyck on account of the removal of Police tirement of Chief of Police McCullagh were under discussion by Republican machine politicians at the Fifth Avenue Hotel hast night. The advisa-bility of presenting to Governor Black formal charges against the Mayor was talked over, but there was a new pinn talked of, which may be more effective than the one of trying to induce the Governor to remove Mayor Van Wyck from office The new plan is to have the Governor call an extra ession of the Legislature, and have the Legislature amend the charter so as to provide for a new Metropolitan Police Board, to be appointed

PROTEST OF THE REPUBLICANS OF THE COUNTY

Leaders of the Republicans of the County of New-York at the St. James Building, at Broadway and Twenty-sixth-st., said last evening that the Republican County Committee had made an lawful apportionment of delegates to the County Committee among the election districts in several Assembly districts, in order to aid the machine in carrying the Assembly districts at the primary elections on June 7. The rule should be to apportion the delegates so as to have one delegate for each fifty votes cast for Governor Black, but the plan of the machine leaders has been to steal a delegate from an election district which the machine cannot hope to carry at the primaries, and to add a delegate in a district which the machine

The only question that remains to be decided about the bonds is whether they shall call for payment in gold coin or simply in "coin." All bonds of the city for years have called for payment in gold coin, but the present administration has under consideration the silver platform of the Democratic party. Controller Coler said yesterday that he would submit to the Municipal Assembly the question whether the bonds should be payable in gold or in any coin. He is a little bit in doubt as to the advisability of trying to float silver bonds in the present financial condition of the city.
