THE PHILIPPINES SITUATION.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN DEWEY AND NATIVES-SPAIN'S TREATMENT OF INSURGENTS. London, July 15.-S. C. Valdes is in London as the representative of the insurgents under Aguinaldo. Mr. Valdes is a "tagalo" or native of the Philippines, direct descendant of the Japanese, who were the traders in the islands centuries ago. Mr. Valdes was born in Batangas, and was educated in Hong Kong, Chicago and London.

There is a sea of blood between the Spaniards and the Philippines who are protesting against the outrages, injustice and prejudice. The opportunity of the Philippines has come. We will be faithful to the American agreement with the Americans-Admiral Dewey-as follows: Independence of the Philippines shall be proclaimed. A Republic shall be established with a government organized on the basis of Aguinaldo and approved by Admiral Dewey or General Merritt, as the case may be.

GENERAL RELIGIOUS TOLERATION. The complete liberty of association and of the press shall be declared. AN INTERVIEW WITH GARCIA.

HE SAYS PANDO HAD NO CHANCE OF REACHING SANTIAGO. Off Santiago de Cuba, July 13, via Port Antonio, Jamaica, July 15.-A correspondent of the Associated Press recently had an interview with General Garcia. Garcia is about fifty-eight years old, with an impressive presence, gray-haired, with flaming military mustachios, a pleasant smile and graceful ways.

"I am a little tired," said he, "we have had a hard struggle, and his worn jacket and muddied boots, with a single antiquated brass spur on the right one, showed this. "The enemy entrenched himself in Santiago in very good shape," he continued, "because, naturally, the place is one of the best in the world for that purpose."

"Decidedly not," said General Garcia. "Pando was completely cut off. See there," and he pointed to the tracing-cloth map before him. "Pando, who amounts to nothing as a general anyway, was at Manzanillo with nearly four thousand troops. That is the point at which the River Cauto empties into the sea. In its ravines toward Santiago we had men who held him back. But the elements did even more.

"There is no great danger of yellow fever along the southern coast," said he. "The fever district is along the Cauto River Valley, where Pando and his 4,000 Spaniards are. The fever along the coast during the rainy season is a mere malarial fever, easily prevented by the use of quinine. We have never found it very bad even in the interior when we have plenty of that drug."

CAMP BLACK READY FOR RECRUITS. Camp Black yesterday morning, and when Lieutenant Weidie, who is in charge of the camp grounds, received the bills of lading he breathed a sigh of relief, for they showed that two of the cars contained the camp ovens and utensils for feeding the soldiers who were coming in. The failure of these utensils to arrive held the mustering of the new regiments back, because it was useless to bring them into camp until the cooking apparatus was on the ground.
