THE DAY'S OPERATIONS IN STOCKS.

Wall Street showed its good feeling for the old century and its confidence in the new century by enthusiastic buying of stocks, by adding market value to securities, and by absorbing shares to hold for the higher prices which every one is convinced will be warranted by the course of business in the new year.

In the new year the progress of trade and commerce will increase the actual value of stocks and bonds, and, outside of sharp declines, resulting from technical causes, the course of the market ought not to favor the bears for a long time to come.
