AN IMPRESSIVE PARADE.

nal Corps, followed by three Brooklyn regiments, the 47th, 23d and 14th. There was considerable applause for the 23d, and the French officers were told that it was the crack regiment of Brooklyn, the rival of the 7th Regiment in New-York. They expressed admiration for the regiment.

The 6th Regiment, following the 7th, had more applause. Its band was playing the "Marseillaise." There was laughter on the stand when somebody shouted "Three cheers for Irish!" Then an Irishman in the crowd shouted, "Hooray for the 6th!" and the crowd cheered.

The 8th, 9th and 12th regiments marched past in good order without attracting particular notice from the crowds. THE 71ST LOUDLY CHEERED. The appearance of the 71st Regiment was the signal for the most enthusiastic cheers. Recently the members lost their dress uniforms in the fire that destroyed their army at Park-ave. and Thirty-fourth-st. They appeared in the parade in striking contrast with the 7th. They wore blue flannel shirts, khaki trousers and leggings and campaign hats. They marched in fine style. The French officers joined heartily in the applause for the 71st, and some of them said the men looked more like regular troops than militiamen.

RECEPTION AT THE BATTERY.

Rain was falling, and there were heavy clouds over the bay at 3:30 p. m. yesterday when the United States dispatch boat Dolphin anchored off the Battery and began firing salutes as the distinguished French visitors disembarked.

CROWDS CHEER AS THE FRENCHMEN MOVE UP BROADWAY.

Rain was falling, and there were heavy clouds over the bay at 3:30 p. m. yesterday when the United States dispatch boat Dolphin anchored off the Battery and began firing salutes as the distinguished French visitors disembarked. Three launches were used in carrying the visitors to the stone pier near the Barge Office.

For half an hour a large crowd had been standing in the Battery Park, held in check by police lines. James B. Reynolds, the Mayor's secretary, was waiting on the pier with Major Greer, of General Roe's staff, and Alderman Willett, chairman of the aldermen's committee. Drawn up in double lines in front of the Barge Office were one hundred seamen from the Gaulestown and two hundred seamen from the Keary and the Alabama. They had been sent from the warships on tugboats earlier in the afternoon.

It was nearly 4 p. m. when the launches reached the Barge Office and landed the visitors. Mr. Reynolds shook hands with I. Cambon, the French Ambassador; Vice-Admiral Fournier, General Brugere and Count de Rochambeau, who were among the first to leave the launches at the landing place, and directed them to their carriages. He took Ambassador Cambon into the first carriage, with Herbert H. D. Peirce, chairman of the President's commission. The arrangement was made to have the other visitors and their escorts seated in carriages as follows:

General Brugere, Colonel Bingham, Major Berthelot and Captain Filionnet. Professor Croiset, General Chalender, Captain Vignat. Count de Rochambeau, Count Sahune de Lafayette.

Captain de Suray, Lieutenant Colonel Meaux Saint-Marc, Lieutenant Count de Faramond, Lieutenant Baron Maximilian de Reinach de Werth. M. Lagrave, M. Guillemin, Louis Hermitte, Lieutenant Colonel Hermitte, M. de Billy, Captain Larson, Captain de Saint-Mars. Viscount de Chambrun, M. Bouffev. The carriage which was needed followed empty in the procession. The Countess de Rochambeau was to ride with her husband, but she did not leave the Dolphin with him. Word was given to start the procession about ten minutes after 4 o'clock. As soon as the first carriage passed the end of the line of sailors, the men stood at attention and the standard bearers lowered their flags. The French officers saluted, and Mr. Peirce and Mr. Reynolds touched their hats. The men of Squadron A wheeled into column of fours in front of the carriage, and the march up Broadway began. All along the line the sidewalks were fringed with men and women who cheered or clapped their hands. Miles of ticker tape from countless windows fluttered a welcome, and the flags that retained buoyancy despite the soaking rain of the earlier afternoon, waved greeting.

The band of the American sailors started the music as it marched behind the visiting blue jackets, but at Bowling Green the bugles and drums of the Frenchmen struck up a quickstep, which held for a block or two, when the full band began to play. The police arrangements were excellent. All along the line the trucks had been sent into the side streets, and the cars stood still while the carriages passed.

DIDN'T FOLLOW CITY CLERK'S ORDERS. SOME INCONGRUITIES OF DRESS AT THE CITY HALL—THE TRICOLOR DUTCH, AND NOT FRENCH.

City Clerk P. Joseph Scully is not going to try again the experiment of enforcing even a semblance of court dress on the Board of Aldermen on high days and holidays. It doesn't work. Mr. Scully, in honor of the French visitors, requested the City Fathers as far as possible to wear black silk hats and frock coats yesterday.

Some followed the suggestions, while others came in the usual conventional garb of warm weather. Alderman Seaback had on a checked suit and light cravatette and Alderman James Gaffney wore a cutting coat and derby hat. The other extreme was taken by Alderman Downing, of Brooklyn, who wore a silk hat, sack coat and rather baggy trousers. Alderman "Jimmy" Bridges wore a "speaking" tie and an unusually cheerful smile. There was considerable amusement over some of the decorations. Those used supposedly for the tricolor were correct as to the colors, but not as to form, running horizontally instead of vertically, thus making the colors Dutch instead of French. The Mayor was told of the decorator's error, and gave orders to have the decorations changed at once.

THE DINNER AT THE WALDORF.

DELEGATES ENTERTAINED BY MEMBERS OF THE ORDER OF THE CINCINNATI.

In commemoration of the victories of the American and French armies in the War for American Independence, and of the institution of the Order of the Cincinnati in 1783, a dinner was given last evening in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria in honor of the official delegates from France to the United States, on the occasion of the dedication at Washington of the statue of Count de Rochambeau.

There were about 125 guests, who were seated around a great oval table, which was decorated with beds of deep red peonies arranged in the fashion of a garden, and interspersed with branches of cherry and apple blossoms and tall standards of American Beauty roses. Back of the chairman, Nicolas Fish, was the shield of the society, in pale blue and white, flanked by the Star and Stripes and the tricolor. Silken banners were suspended around the walls of the gallery, bearing the golden fleur de lis of France and the American standards in use before the final adoption of the Stars and Stripes.

It was 10:30 o'clock when Nicholas Fish, the chairman, called on General Horace Porter to respond to the toast "The President of the United States." General Porter made a reference full of feeling to President McKinley, whom he characterized as "one of the noblest in the line of Presidents," and told how profoundly touched he was by the universal expressions of sympathy abroad at the time of President McKinley's death. He spoke of President Roosevelt as a man who had the courage of his convictions, and as one who "marked the hours while others only sounded them."

General Porter's complimentary references to the members of the embassy, to the battleship Gaulois, and to the descendants of Rochambeau and Lafayette, were enthusiastically applauded. He expressed the opinion that the present mission was second to none ever sent abroad by the French Republic. The feast, he declared, was a proper celebration of the great joint victory of Yorktown, which consecrated all the New World eventually to liberty and the rights of man.

Speaking to the toast, "The President of the French Republic," M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, praised President Roosevelt for his energy, his good heart, his intelligence and his character and his ability as a soldier. He declared that he was nothing better than for the French and American republics to combine, and continue the ties of friendship which have existed between them both for such a long period of time. He asked the company to drink to the health of the two Presidents.

A toast to the memory of General Washington, first president general of the Order of the Cincinnati, was drunk standing.

General Brugere spoke in French to the toast "The Army of France." He said he had not been here long enough to express any personal opinion on the United States army, but he knew General Porter so long and so well that he believed he represented better than anything he knew the spirit of the American army, to whose health the general then drank.

Vice-Admiral Fournier then responded to the toast "The Navy of France," and told how many he was at having met and encountered so many American naval officers since his arrival in these waters. He declared he was thoroughly impressed with every branch of the service. The marine music especially pleased him. He paid a tribute to the National Guard of this State and their soldierly appearance. He said he greatly admired the educational methods at Annapolis, and he then proposed a toast to the American marines.

The final address was delivered by Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner, and was in reply to the toast "The Institution of the Order of the Cincinnati." It was an historical sketch, dealing with the order since its inception.

The dining room presented a scene of striking brilliancy all the evening, the military and naval officers appearing in full uniform, and the diplomats and members of the order wearing their official ribbons and decorations.

- The following were present: William H. Wood, Charles G. Strong, Theron G. Bond, Major Berthelot, Charles E. Caldwell, W. MacPherson Horner, Henry R. Irvine, M. Aycoussard, Melvin James J. Dean, U. S. N., Captain Filionnet, Lieut. Colonel Meaux de Saint-Marc, Major General B. P. S. Sir Arthur Divett Hayten, M. P., and Sir Donald Currie, head of Donald Currie & Co., shipowners.

MAYOR LOW RETURNS CALL.

After the parade the French visitors were driven to the Waldorf-Astoria, arriving there about 7:45 p. m. American and French flags were flying from the flagstaffs of the hotel, and about sixty of the best apartments in the hotel had been placed at the disposal of the distinguished Frenchmen. Cheers for them were given by a crowd near the hotel when they alighted from their carriages.

Following directly the carriages of the visitors was the carriage of Mayor Low. In the reception room the Mayor paid his official visit to the Rochambeau party. He remained only two minutes at the hotel. Earlier in the evening Mrs. Low had called on the ladies accompanying the delegation. She was accompanied by William H. H. Beebe, who was Mr. Low's secretary at Columbia University. Mrs. Low did not remain at the hotel more than a quarter of an hour.

After the Mayor's call the Frenchmen received a large delegation from the French colony in New-York, who had come to pay their respects to their distinguished compatriots. The delegation was received in the private reception room, on the ground floor, where the Rochambeau party had formed in a little group at the western end of the room. The New-York men were introduced by the French Consul General, M. Edmond Bruwaert, who, with Vice-Consul Gaston Velten headed the delegation.

Among those in the party were X. Dietlin, L. Jouvau, L. Antoine and F. Schlesinger, representing the French Benevolent Society; Professor Aubert, of the Normal College; Professors Castagnier and Cohen, of Columbia, representing the Alliance Francaise, and E. Blanc and M. Worms, representing the Cercle Francaise de l'Harmonie.

The delegates had opportunity to shake hands and exchange a few words of greeting with each member of the French mission. Just as the delegation filed out a smaller party arrived. This consisted of five old soldiers of France, members of Section 157, Veterans of the War of 1870-71. They were J. Thiebaud, president; X. Bruer, vice-president; C. A. Berard, secretary; Louis Chauvet, standard bearer, and A. Pias, assistant standard bearer of the society. They were the caps of their society, and as General Brugere met them at the door he recognized them by these. He grasped the first old soldier of France cordially by the hand and dragged him into the reception room, up to the rest of the party, the other veterans following.

SPANISH CABINET RESIGNS.

Madrid, May 27.—A crisis in the Cabinet has occurred. At the meeting of the Cabinet to-day Señor Canalejas, the Minister of Agriculture, insisted upon the necessity of convening the Chamber immediately to discuss the religious question. The other ministers opposed this proposal and Señor Canalejas resigned. After this action the other members of the Cabinet placed their portfolios at the disposal of Señor Sagasta, the Premier, to enable him to solve the difficulty.

They are arguing that a change can be effected that will not detract from the essential principles of the church. As usual, there is to be a lively fight for the moderatorship. Several names are mentioned. Present among these is that of the Rev. Dr. J. C. Boyd, pastor of the Mount Lebanon Church.

JOIN TO FIGHT CROKER.

HILL AND M'LAUGHLIN FORM AN ALLIANCE—NOMINATION OF COLER FOR GOVERNOR A POSSIBLE OUTCOME.

Ex-Senator David B. Hill and Hugh McLaughlin, the veteran boss of the Kings County Democratic organization, have, according to the Hill men, made an offensive and defensive alliance which is expected to last throughout the next State campaign. The compact includes the nomination of ex-Controller Bird S. Coler for Governor, if it is deemed wise when the State Convention meets to choose a Kings County man. The alliance, however, is not primarily for Mr. Coler's benefit. It is for the purpose of preventing Richard Croker from dominating the next State convention. James Shevlin delivered the Kings County delegation to Croker in 1900, and Hill had a hard time in getting a single vote from below the Harlem. Such a shut-out for Hill is not going to happen again if Mr. Hill can prevent it by early planning.

The recent break-up in Tammany, causing the retirement of Lewis Nixon, has disgusted the more influential Democrats in Brooklyn. At the same time, it made it plain sailing for ex-Senator Hill when he wanted to reform the alliance that served his purposes so well fifteen years ago.

Mr. Hill's friends do not believe that Richard Croker has left Tammany Hall with the intention of never resuming the leadership. They believe he will come back not later than the fall of 1902, and perhaps the coming fall, ready to run the State organization if he can control it. The Hill men believe that they now have the fences fixed so that Croker cannot break through.

EXPLOSION KILLS ONE.

Richmond, Va., May 27.—Two men were killed and four were seriously, if not fatally injured, by a locomotive explosion in Manchester, Va., this morning. TO STAY AT HEAD OF COMMISSION.

Colonel Ogden makes arrangements with his business partners. Colonel Willis L. Ogden said last night that he had at last yielded to the desire of the Mayor and others, and had decided to remain at the head of the Civil Service Commission. For some time he thought that he would be unable to give the necessary time to the work on account of personal business, and he did not care to take a salaried office under the administration. He has, however, made arrangements with his business partners so that he will be able to devote all his time to the work of the commission.

The general committee at that time will ratify the appointment of the committee of the general committee also will adopt a primary call.
