PLEAS FOR STRAY CATS.

HEALTH PROTECTIVE WOMEN SAY FELINES ARE DESERTED IN SUMMER AND LEFT TO STARVE.

New York women were cautioned yesterday against leaving their pet cats to forage for themselves during their absence in the country.

A variety of civic evils was discussed, and an experience meeting followed, in which the members described conditions in their various neighborhoods.

Children were a fruitful source of complaint. They ride down balustrades, swing on gates, play ball, and menace the lives of afternoon callers.

It is not the children of the tenement districts that cause most of the trouble, said Mrs. Scrimgeour, who presided. On the other hand, it is the boys of well to do families that commit most of the depredations and that most openly defy the order of the community.

All but one member had a tale of wrongs which implicated the street cleaners, garbage collectors, policemen and all the powers that be. She sat quiet and waved until it came her turn to speak.

Then she arose timidly and admitted apologetically that she had no complaint to make nor grievance to air. She could find no fault in anything.

"A photographer," she said, "has been engaged by her block new-entrant paper. The children of the neighborhood never mind the streets, never track mud up the steps nor play 'spy' behind vestibule doors, and never throw paper on the sidewalk."

"Big feedings" was not quite intelligible to some of the members. Mrs. McKee responded for their benefit. "What else would a stranger here think all the utensils of fermenting garbage, and the stinks, Anna H. Shaw, of Louisiana, of Maryland, in admitting women to the bar, and in the recent passage by many other States of laws enlarging the personal and property rights of women."

Further occasion for jubilation is found in the action of Massachusetts in making mothers equal guardians of their children with the fathers.

THE TRIBUNE SUNSHINE SOCIETY

GOOD CHEER. Have you had a kindness shown? Pass it on. 'Twas not given for you alone. Pass it on. Let it travel down the years. Let it wipe another's tears. Till it heaven the deed appear. Pass it on.

What can rival the blue, blue skies? The violets. Tender and beautiful, loving and wise. Sweet violets. They are the virgin heralds of spring. Over their heads the glad birds sing. They bring glad tidings of joy to the earth. Sweet violets.

Who does not smile at their telltale scent? Sweet violets. The grass and the daisies have woven a tent for violets. They nestle down to be out of sight. But the sunshine sends them into light. And their fragrance, wafting the passerby, Reveals their presence, though they are shy. Sweet violets.

Droping their heads in their loneliness. The violets. Yet have the power to teach and bless— Show us how to be sweet and true, Tender and modest and good as you, Drawing us up to the heights of grace. Like violets. —Marianne Farmington, in Christian World.

INVEIGLED BY THE ERIE.

TREATMENT OF THOSE WHOM IT INDUCED TO LEAVE THEIR HAPPY HOMES.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Detroit, June 12.—D. W. Cooke, general passenger agent of the Erie Railroad, and A. A. Schantz, manager of the Detroit and Buffalo Steamboat Company, entered into a conspiracy to inveigle a lot of New-York newspaper and magazine folk to leave their happy homes.

This is a new steamer about the size of the average transatlantic liner, and a great deal more comfortable than most of them. Here they were eating, drinking, speech-making, singing and story telling until midnight.

TO-NIGHT THE VICTIMS OF THIS CONSPIRACY started on their return journey. No one has offered to ransom them, and they are being brought back slowly and no longer asked for money.

OLD DOCK BOARD PROBED.

INTERESTING THINGS LEARNED BY MESSRS. HAWKES AND WALLACE.

DOINGS OF CERTAIN DOCKMASTERS—INQUIRY INTO LEASES BY THE TAMMANY COMMISSIONERS.

Dock Commissioner Hawkes and Deputy Commissioner Wallace have asked Corporation Counsel Rives for an opinion respecting the leases of certain bulkheads and piers made under the Tammany administration. Mr. Wallace says there are a great number of leases which were made far below the value of the property, and it is his intention, if possible, to break them.

"We have taken up one case as an example," said Mr. Wallace yesterday, "because the decision of the Corporation Counsel on that one case will govern all the others. The leases were made without a proper consideration being paid to the city.
