

MOB AFTER MAN WITH GUN

TWO PERSONS SHOT IN A FIGHT OVER WOMEN.

FUGITIVE CAUSES PANIC BY JUMPING ON A TROLLEY CAR—TWENTY-FIVE HUNDED IN CHASE.

The wildest excitement prevailed in Third-ave. in the neighborhood of Fourteenth-st. last night, when following a fight in a shooting gallery at No. 98 Third-ave., a big crowd chased a man with a rifle through the streets. There was a panic in a trolley car when the man with the gun boarded it, but he was forced off by the conductor and two men. After the capture a policeman had hard work to keep the hands of the crowd off the prisoner, and had to use his revolver to keep it at bay.

Two men were wounded, one seriously, in the fight, and David Wemmer, twenty-seven years old, the proprietor of the place, is under arrest in the Fifth-st. police station. The wounded men were taken to Bellevue Hospital. They are Louis Raffler, twenty-one years old, a packer, of No. 359 Sixth-st., suffering from a gunshot wound in the right thigh and shock—a serious wound—and William Saunders, forty-six years old, a cook, of No. 112 Bowery, with a gunshot wound in right leg, slight, and shock. According to the police there has been had hood between Raffler and Wemmer for some time, on account of their wives, and that the shooting was the result of this feud.

Witnesses, whose names are in possession of the police, say that they heard shots and angry cries come from the basement of the shooting gallery, and then that Wemmer, gun in hand and with his clothes torn and with no hat on his head, rushed up out of the basement and ran up Third-ave. A crowd had been attracted by the fight, and when they saw a man running with a gun in his hand they followed. The shooting gallery is near Thirteenth-st., and Wemmer ran north to Fourteenth-st.

Third-ave. and Fourteenth-st. were crowded, and people ran from all directions to see what the trouble was. There were shouts of "Murderer!" and "Thief!" and several men tried to stop him. Wemmer leveled his gun at the crowd, and some say that he fired, but he denied this. At any rate, he jumped for a crosswalk and sprang aside. The car was filled with passengers, many of them women, and there was a panic in the car when Wemmer, wild eyed, his clothes torn and gun in hand, entered the car. The conductor and two men forced the man to leave the car, and he again started to run, going west in Fourteenth-st. past Tammany Hall.

In the mean time the crowd had collected until there were fully fifteen hundred people following Wemmer, and nearly every one of them was shouting. The crowd in the neighborhood were soon emptied, and this augmented the crowd. The small boys in the crowd, of whom there were many, raised the cry that "Tracy, the Outlaw," had broken loose. No more ideal picture of the real Tracy could have been presented to young Americans than Wemmer made, as he fled along the street rifle in hand, followed by an angry mob, turning now and then, as he did, to point the gun at the crowd in the hope of holding them in check.

Among those attracted to the scene was Detective Murray Werzansky, of the Fifth-st. station. The detective followed with the mob until he could break loose, when it then he tried to sprint after Wemmer. He heard him just beyond Tammany Hall, but, according to the detective Wemmer turned and aimed the gun at him. Werzansky dropped to the sidewalk, feeling that the man would shoot. As Wemmer turned and went on Werzansky followed, and finally caught him near Broadway Hall.

Thrown by that time had increased to nearly twenty-five hundred people, and the detective and his prisoner were soon surrounded. Many ignorant men and boys in the crowd, hearing the "Tracy" cry, and not knowing or not remembering that the outlaw had met his doom some time ago, began to clamor and shout for "Tracy's blood."

Wemmer was clearly frightened, and Werzansky saw that he had his hands full. Fearing that some hot-headed men in the crowd might attempt to shoot at his prisoner, he, the detective drew his revolver, and placing Wemmer in a hallway, swept the weapon in the crowd, threatening to shoot any one who approached. Several policemen had been attracted by the scene, and making their way through the crowd, went to Werzansky's assistance.

Wemmer, who had been placed under arrest by the detective, was led to a drug store at Thirteenth-st. and Third-ave., where an unconscious man, with a bullet wound in his leg, had been carried. Wemmer had been arrested, and was in no condition at that time to identify Wemmer. He said later, however, that he did not know who had shot him. Wemmer was then taken to the Fifth-st. station and locked up. Raffler was found at Tammany Hall, Third-ave., by Policeman Steinmeyer. The man was unconscious when found. He and Saunders were removed to Bellevue in the same ambulance. Raffler said later, the police say, that Wemmer and he had had a quarrel, and that Wemmer had threatened to "do" him. That was all that he could remember of the fight, and he denies having fired a shot.

QUICK WORK IN QUIMBY CASE

TO BE PRESENTED TO-DAY TO THE OCTOBER GRAND JURY IN ITS FINAL SESSION.

Forced on by public sentiment and the demand of certain physicians and grand jurors for a quick disposition of the case of the Christian Science leader, Frederick E. Weeks, Assistant District Attorney, yesterday afternoon issued subpoenas for witnesses to appear before the October grand jury to-day at White Plains, when the proceedings looking to the indictment of Mr. and Mrs. John Quimby and John Carroll Lathrop, the healer, will be concluded. The only witnesses subpoenaed are Mr. Banning, the coroner, who conducted the inquest, Dr. E. S. Newell and Dr. George Weiss, of Mount Vernon, who performed the autopsy on the Quimby child, and Dr. Charles E. Birch, the health officer of White Plains. The coroner decided yesterday not to have Mrs. Quimby arraigned before him until the grand jury has completed its work. Then, if that body fails to indict her, in connection with her husband and Lathrop, he will have her brought before him and held for the next grand jury, which will be convened next month.

The interior of the house has been thoroughly fumigated, and the members of the Quimby family are allowed to go around as they please. Mr. Birch declares Mrs. Quimby and her two children who had diphtheria have entirely recovered. Several leading politicians and grand jurors who are being approached, but have declined to interfere.

VALVE OF WASHING STREETS COMMISSIONER WOODBURY'S REPORT SHOWS BACILLI IN GREATEST NUMBER IN PUSH CART DISTRICT.

In a report to the Mayor of the work of the Department of Street Cleaning for the months of July, August and September, Commissioner Woodbury yesterday gave an interesting account of experiments made to test the value of washing the streets in warm weather. The experimenting is described as follows:

On August 5, 7, 9, 12, 14 and 16, at certain locations and stations all over the city were made observations between 8 and 9 a. m. and 2 and 3 p. m., and notes were made of the nature of the pavement, whether asphalt or concrete, the amount of traffic, the nature of the locality, whether residential or business, whether thickly populated or small population, pushcart tracks in the relation of large and small streets, whether the pavement was wet or dry, whether the plates were exposed at curb level and at six feet above, and the number of colonies of bacilli.

The results of the experiments are given in part as follows: In places where there was a large amount of traffic, where pushcarts were in large numbers, in a tenement district densely populated, as many as 6,000 colonies appear in a fifteen minute exposure. In another part of the city, where the pavement was asphalt, although the traffic at this point was quite heavy, the location residential and the avenue well washed, only fifty-four colonies were found on a fifteen minute exposure.

The minimum was 96 colonies per inch minute. Thirty-ave. between One-hundred-and-sixty-fifth and One-hundred-and-sixty-sixth sts. The Bronx. After pointing out a steady increase in the quantity of garbage that is removed daily by the department, Commissioner Woodbury makes an appeal for more horses, saying they are needed urgently. He brings the attention of the Mayor to the fact that most people of the city are complying with the regulations for separating ashes from garbage. The department to use the clean ashes for filling, and the Commissioner says:

At present writing we have put in behind the crib at Riker's Island 182,245 cubic yards, making a redeemed surface of land ready for the city uses of 1,000,000 square feet. The estimated value which can be placed upon this land is $10,000,000. The total area of this crib being 2,000 acres, the value of the land is $5,000 per acre. This work has been done with the aid of Dr. Lederle, the president of the Board of Health, who assisted this department with his advice and counsel in the sanitary handling of this entire work.
