

THE CITY OF NEW-YORK IS BECOMING A MORE ATTRACTIVE AND A MORE POPULOUS SUMMER RESORT WITH EVERY YEAR.

RESORTS AT OUR DOORS.

New-York City Has Many Fine Ones.

There are thousands of people in New-York who never think of taking a vacation in the warm season. Not because they do not require one, or because they decline to subscribe to the theory that a change is beneficial to any one who spends the greater part of the year in the metropolis, but because circumstances will not permit them to go away. Their business requires their presence in town, or the condition of their purse vetoes a resolution to go away, and they must look on white friends and neighbors go to spa, mountain and seaside resort. But when the season is over and compare notes with their stay-at-home neighbors it is often discovered that the people who remained in the city had as good a time, and in many instances a better one, than their neighbors. "New-York is a fine summer resort," the stay-at-homes said ironically when the season began; but when it was over, if they embraced all the opportunities which the metropolis offers, they said the same thing, and said it because they meant it. The number of people who must spend their summers in town grows with every year, and the enterprising proprietors of places of amusement and resorts where fresh air is the chief attraction have from year to year improved their places on that account. There are fine outdoor dining places in all parts of the city, places of amusement in shady groves and by the sea. Roof gardens, open air theaters and concerts in deliciously cool places are among the things with which the stay-at-homes console themselves, and when they go to their own homes from an evening's entertainment or a day's outing they thank their stars for the privilege of spending their summer at home.

THE HARLEM CASINO.

The Harlem Casino, at One-hundred-and-twenty-fourth-st. and Seventh-ave., under the management of the Heumann Harlem Casino Company, has become one of the attractive features of that part of the city, and will be largely patronized during the summer season because of its central location and its superior management. It has a well appointed restaurant and cafe and one of the finest banquet halls and ballrooms in the city. The place is handsome in architecture and substantial in construction. The exterior is attractive and has broad awnings to shelter the pavements from the sun, while the windows are ornamented with flowers in boxes. Clusters of powerful electric lamps brilliantly illumine the entrances at night, while on the One-hundred-and-twenty-fourth-st. side is the main entrance, where patrons can alight from carriages sheltered by a metal canopy. The restaurant and a large reception hall are on the main floor, while the banquet rooms and ballroom are on the second floor. The large banquet room is rented to societies and associations for banquets, balls, concerts or entertainments and has a large floor capacity. In the basement are four standard bowling alleys, which are rented out to clubs on different evenings. The Casino will be under the direct management of Michael Heumann, one of the most popular men in the business in the city, who, in his announcement for the season, says:

The Harlem Casino, which is now under the control of the Heumann Harlem Casino Company, offers superior advantages for balls, banquets, weddings, meetings, stage entertainments, receptions, conventions and similar affairs. There are a number of halls and meeting rooms adapted to the accommodation of large and small parties which are connected with parlors, cool rooms and retiring rooms. The building is new and modern and leaves nothing to be desired as regards elevator service, heat and all other requirements. Suppers and banquets are served at varying prices, and both the cuisine and the service are superior. Mr. Michael Heumann, president of the Harlem Casino Company, who was manager of Terrace Garden for many years, gives his personal attention to the comfort of his guests. Special attention is called to the four new and up-to-date bowling alleys, which can be rented by clubs and are devoted to open games on Saturdays. During the coming summer a new stage will be built in the large hall, and commodious dressing rooms and a large sitting room will be added and many other improvements will be made. The Harlem Casino is quietly located, yet it is within one block of the "L" roads and the trolley lines that traverse all portions of the city.

THE HOTEL MAJESTIC'S ROOF GARDEN.

For those who remain in New-York during the summer season and for many visitors the Hotel Majestic has for several years been a delightful resort. It is situated in one of the best residence parts of the city, at an entrance to Central Park, and is easy of access from the railroad stations, steamboat piers and the shopping district. The Majestic is an attractive house at all times of the year, but it is additionally so in the summer, because of its beautiful roof garden. There the guests of the hotel congregate on warm evenings, and with the beautiful panorama of illuminated New-York at their feet, with delicious music to charm them and a corps of well trained servants to wait on them, they forget that the grounds, who, after being served with dinner, make use of the broad verandas and large parlors for dancing. The Fifth-ave. elevated trains go direct to Ulmer Park station.

CITY SUMMER RESORTS.

At Terrace Garden.

Terrace Garden, at Fifty-eighth-st., between Third and Lexington aves., which has been a summer opera place of this city for a number of years, will be the popular summer resort again this year. A large company, with an augmented orchestra, will give a series of operas, including grand as well as comic works. It is to be "a grand revival of the new and old operas." The managers, Buskind & Rehfeldt, have left nothing undone to make the season successful, and with that end in view they have made the lofty, well ventilated opera house additionally attractive by new scenery and improvements in the auditorium. The garden itself grows more beautiful with age. There one may enjoy his dinner in the open air, and still be protected by the foliage, and from there go only a few steps to the opera. Between the acts the audience swarms into the garden again and listens to a concert, and thus the visitor to Terrace Garden hears good music all the evening. An important feature of Terrace Garden is the restaurant, separated only by glass partitions from the garden. It has been decorated in Japanese style, the service is of a high order and the fact that people come from all parts of the city in warm weather to dine there shows that it is a popular place.

ple, the garden patrons may be served with cool and refreshing drinks. In a place where one can spend an evening pleasantly alone and where a large or a small party may be entertained. At the opening of the garden the programmes included La Loie Fuller, James Thornton, the Four Emperors of Music, and a number of other well known entertainers, and it is the object of the proprietors to have equally good programmes throughout the season.

SULZER'S HARLEM RIVER PARK.

A committee in search of a good place to hold a summer convention asked E. T. Sulzer, the treasurer and general manager of the Harlem River Park Amusement Company, what the superior points about Sulzer's Park were, and received in reply this answer: "Sulzer's is the largest park and has the largest halls in New-York. It was established thirty years ago by the present owner's grandfather. It has been improved every year since, and is at present a piece of beautiful landscape in the heart of New-York. The park is located in One-hundred-and-twenty-sixth-st. and Second-ave., and the casino, which is one of the attractions of the place, is on One-hundred-and-twenty-seventh-st. and Second-ave. The place has always been a favorite one for political conventions and picnics. The hall is large and well arranged, and well adapted for convention purposes, and the grounds have been laid out particularly to meet the demands of picnic parties."

AT BERGEN BEACH.

Bergen Beach, the well known and popular Brooklyn resort, will probably be crowded with patrons who know the beauties of the place on June 15, when "The Telephone Girl" will be presented in the Casino. The company which played in the piece originally is to take part, and the stage of the pretty playhouse will be lit up with all new scenery. New steamers take passengers to the Beach from Canarsie, and the place, which in former years was a favorite recreation spot for people who do not care to go far away from home, has been improved in every part. On the pier there will be concerts from 3 p. m. until midnight. Among the novelties of the season will be the electric horse, which the inventor says has "the speed of the horse and the force of the rider." Roosevelt's Naval Reserve Band of twenty-five pieces will furnish the music at the daily concerts. There are sports and pastimes without number for the visitor to Bergen Beach who is contented with the land, but for those who want water sports there is also ample provision. Bathing in they are in New-York and that the weather is warm and sultry. The roof garden is constructed of steel and iron and is 300 feet above the sea level. It is arranged as a rustic palm garden, covering the entire roof, an area of 30,000 square feet. There being no obstructions from any point of the compass to intercept the breeze, one may find a cool nook on the Majestic roof when the weather is hot and uncomfortable even at the seashore. A new feature of the roof garden is an electrochromatic fountain. The charming view from the great elevation, the refreshing breezes, the good music and luxurious surroundings have made the roof garden of the Majestic one of the summer features of the city, but in order that only the guests of the hotel and their friends may enjoy the privileges, Copeland Townsend, the popular manager of the hotel, has instituted a system by which admission may be gained to the garden only by card or invitation, and the gatherings there in the evening resemble social entertainments. The hotel itself, on the block from Seventy-first to Seventy-second-st., fronting Central Park West, is modern in every detail of architecture, and its management has always endeavored to make it a home for those who are guests there. While this has been accomplished, the demands and requirements of the transient guest have not been overlooked, and the people who come for a day or those who engage rooms for a year are equally well taken care of.

ULMER PARK, BROOKLYN.

Ulmer Park, at the foot of Twenty-fifth-ave., Brooklyn, is one of the summer show places which has been known for years to thousands of persons who know the value of a first class outing resort. As one reaches the grounds he sees on both sides of the broad avenue everything in the way of preparation for those on pleasure bent. Grounds made beautiful by the landscape architect, rich with foliage, blooming plants, fountains and shady paths. Dancing pavilions, carousels, shooting ranges, baseball grounds and sport fields of all kinds are among the attractions of the place. Then there are monster restaurants, where a regiment could be served, and a great dance hall, where four thousand people may be accommodated. This is open to the sea, from which refreshing breezes blow through the great halls. The men who improved the spot and made it a great and popular resort deserve much credit for their work. They made the park attractive, but did not neglect the water side, where there is a monster pier and accommodations for bathers. While some of the visitors are enjoying themselves in the restaurants, parks, dancing halls or other parts of the place there are always many in the water, and bathing parties are among the features of the place. The place has always been known for its good music. This year, under the management of Mr. Dexter, the music is furnished by the Charles Gramlich Orchestra, and the programme is changed so frequently that the concerts are highly enjoyable even to those who go there often. For the people who prefer to be excursive there is a beautiful casino on the grounds. There private dinner parties are served. In the course of the season many trolley parties come to this part of the Hashim & Howe Amusement Company, Limited, was opened for the season on June 1, and will undoubtedly become one of the favorite amusement resorts of the city while the season lasts. The garden, at Sixty-sixth-st. and Columbus-ave., is centrally located, and has been refitted and refurnished for the accommodation of those who enjoy good music and light entertainment. The floor of the great auditorium rests on ice, and the temperature of the place is deliciously cool and comfortable. This cooling effect is the invention of Hashim & Howe, the new managers of the place. Besides the entertainment, which includes a long programme, arranged to suit the tastes of all people, the garden patrons may be served with cool and refreshing drinks. In a place where one can spend an evening pleasantly alone and where a large or a small party may be entertained. ON THE PACIFIC SLOPE.

Work for Mare Island—Mrs. Stanford Transfers University Endowment.

San Francisco, June 5.—The Navy Department orders for the cruisers New-York, Boston and Marblehead to be repaired at Mare Island Navy Yard were received here with great satisfaction. For years the large plant at Mare Island has been idle much of the time because of an idea on the part of navy officials that war vessels of heavy draught could not reach Mare Island safely. The New-York draws 26 feet 8 inches of water when her bunkers are full, but she should not draw over 25 feet when going to the drydock. Still, the channel at Port Costa, which has been declared too shallow to permit these vessels to approach the navy yard, actually allows loaded wheat ships drawing 27 feet of water to pass, taking advantage of the tide. President Roosevelt and Secretary Moody both expressed admiration for the site and plant at the Mare Island Navy Yard on their recent visit, and declared that they would do all in their power to see that it received its proper quota of work.

In a simple way this week, without any ceremonies, Mrs. Jane L. Stanford transferred the entire control of an endowment of over $300,000 to Stanford University to the board of trustees, which becomes a self-perpetuating body. The trustees, in compliance to her, will elect her their president, but the whole control of the fund of the university will rest with the trustees. It is understood that they will press the construction work on the college buildings, and especially on the gymnasium, which when completed will be the finest in this country. Mrs. Stanford showed business ability of a high order in settling the many problems that came up in the last ten years, and she sees the entire endowment transferred with no claims upon it.

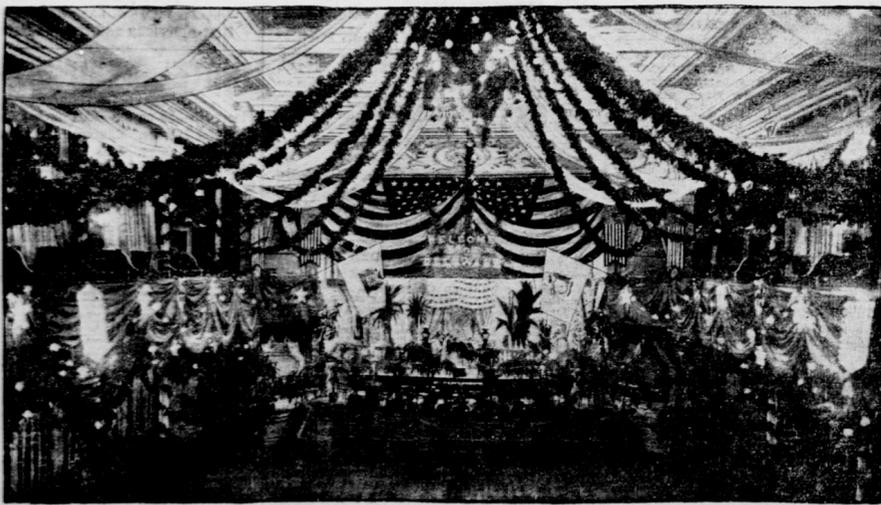

The great increase in the number of students of commerce at the University of California has compelled the revision of the course of study. Three years ago this college was started, and it has met with great favor. Besides a training for general business, the college pays special attention to international and commercial law, and to the work of the civil, consular and diplomatic services of the government.

Among the new buildings on which construction has begun this week is that of D. S. Don, in Turk-st., near Jones-st. It will be seven stories high, built of white glazed brick, and will contain 156 rooms, divided into apartments.

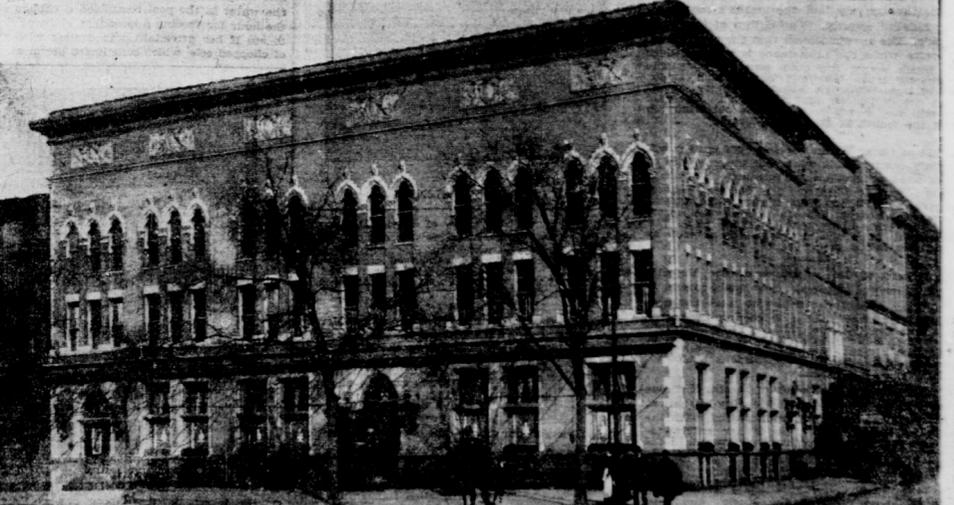

E. H. Sothen made a big hit here this week at the Columbia Theatre in "If I Were King," despite the fact that many of the best patrons of the theatre have already left town for the summer.

The new Japanese Minister to Mexico, Koyuchi Soughimora, passed through here this week. He differs from many of his countrymen in his estimate of Russia. He declares that Russians have done a great work in developing the Orient, and especially Manchuria. He regards Manchuria as a fine field for American manufacturers, as the country is one great wheat field. The demand for American agricultural machinery has only fairly begun. In the development of mines also Manchuria will call on California for mining machinery.

Only ten days remain in which special colonist rates to California will be in force. In the last fifteen weeks the Southern Pacific Company's figures show that 32,502 prospective settlers entered the State from various Mississippi Valley points.
