Onrush of Japanese Troops—Russian Duplicity Feared in Tibet.

Special to The New-York Tribune, by French Cable. (Copyright, 1904, by The Tribune Association.) London, May 14.—Japan continues to surprise Europe by the proofs of her scientific organization for war and her wonderful fighting qualities. The reports of operations on the Liao-Tung Peninsula are convincing, but the doom of Port Arthur is sealed by the complete investment which will be effected in a few days if the fortress is not already abandoned by the Russians and the remainder of the fleet destroyed. The result of the large turning movement against the Russian main force at Liao-Yang is not yet clearly explained, but a decisive battle, which will determine the fate of Moukden, is looked for every day by the experts. The Japanese fleet waited until it had three armies, of an aggregate strength of 130,000 men, in readiness for rapid operations, and then attacked the Russians with a rush. The military experts criticize the Russian military tactics as equally defective on land and sea, but there is evidence of obstinate courage and desperate defence by the troops. The Japanese onrush has been irrefragable when every point of military preparation has been scientifically arranged, and soldiers and sailors alike are impelled by fanaticism or a frenzy of patriotism.

Russian duplicity is suspected by keen observers watching the progress of Colonel Young's mission beyond the Himalayas. The Tibetans are believed to be incited by Russian intrigues in opposition to the advance of the political-diplomatic mission. Mr. Brodrick has virtually admitted in the House of Commons that the column will be forced to enter Lhasa, and this implies heavy reinforcements for the expedition and the conversion of a pacific mission into a military expedition. What was regarded at the outset as a picturesque incident is now an unnecessary act of aggression, extremely hazardous and without adequate justification. The mission camp at Gyantse is named already "Curzon's Folly." No complications are expected with the Chinese government in consequence of the Tibetan adventure. Relations with the Peking government have been greatly improved by Lord Lansdowne's convention, signed this week, for suspending the importation of Chinese labor into the Transvaal and other portions of the British Empire. Safeguards are provided against the abuse of the contract system of labor and the conversion of it into a thinly disguised form of slavery for a limited period. The South African contacts will not differ essentially from those already in force for the employment of coolies in British Guiana and other portions of the empire.

The authorities of Westminster Abbey are allowing the first part of the funeral service for Sir Henry Stanley to take place there, but they require a good deal of pressure of public opinion before allowing the ashes of the greatest explorer of the Victorian period to be buried there. They are thrown into a prickly heat by the suggestion that they may be advertising modern journalism if they put Stanley's name beside Livingstone's. Stanley's friends were guilty of indiscretion in allowing his wishes respecting interment in the Abbey to be divulged, but his services to the world as the first explorer to descend the Congo could not be challenged. The entire map of Africa has been reared in consequence of Stanley's work, the Free State founded, the Cape to Cairo Railway laid out and holiday journeys around Lake Victoria and Lake Tanganyika planned every summer by tourist agents in London.

Winston Churchill has crossed the Rubicon and virtually become a Liberal. His speech at Manchester last night was a most destructive onslaught upon the government, and John Morley had introduced him, heartily applauded every passage. Mr. Churchill's friends are already hailing him as the Heaven-sent leader of the Liberal party of the near future, but there must be many political funerals before he can be Prime Minister.

Parliament has lost its grip upon public interest. Mr. Balfour's dexterity has been rewarded by a majority for the Licensing bill, and the ministers are so confident that they can continue to hold office by trimming measures and superficial compromises that they are not prepared to concede that a general election will come next year. Meanwhile the only really great man on the ministerial side has told the truth at Birmingham, namely, that it is not good policy, much less good morality, to sit upon the fence. Mr. Chamberlain's speech naturally attracts more attention than the shuffling tricks and small lippay going on at Westminster. It was delivered with old-time vigor and earnestness, and was received with tremendous enthusiasm. There was no sign of despatch to Mr. Balfour, but there was evidence that the speaker did not believe that the country could be carried on the educational, Irish, housing or other policies of the government, and that he feared his own unauthorized fiscal programme might not be brought directly before the country at the next general election.

There are various interpretations of the speech by members of Parliament and practical politicians, but the most reasonable view is that Mr. Chamberlain, while bound in honor if not by pledge to support Mr. Balfour, expects a Liberal interregnum, and would like to hurry it on. His reference to a change of actors and scene, and to putting on a new piece, which will soon be raised off the stage, could not be misunderstood. Equally significant was the warning that his own party would gain nothing by shirking the great issue, and that battles in politics were lost by timidity and won by courage and enthusiasm. Mr. Chamberlain towers above the trimming politicians of the Ministry as a statesman who is terribly in earnest, the Grand Old Man, and believes that principles will ultimately prevail. The tariff reform managers have received their cues from him, and are making arrangements for a continuance of the campaign in the summer and autumn.

Both Low will remain in England about five weeks. The Pignons will entertain him at luncheon at the Savoy Hotel early in June. He and Mrs. Low are going out of town for visits, and their time is fully taken up with social engagements until their sailing date by the Oceanic. Andrew Carnegie has been the guest of the Guild of Musicians at Clothworkers' Hall, and has been exchanging compliments with Lord Alverstone. He is overwhelmed by social engagements, and is sighing for the rest of Skibo Castle. Mme. Melba has drawn the most crowded house at the Opera, and Suzanne Adams has been well received in "Faust," but the best feature of the Covent Garden season has been the production of Wagner's masterpiece without cuts. "Lohengrin," with the full score, has been converted into a new work for opera-goers. "Tannhauser" has offered similar reductions, and "Tristan and Isolde," with Terzina, has been the chief artistic success. The strongly reinforced orchestra under Herr Richter is doing great work. Herr Herold, the young Danish tenor divides interest with Herr Burian, the Dresden tenor, and has received the Queen's compliments. The opera continues to have fine social support.

The theatres have been dull, with the revival of "The Money Makers" at the Royalty and "Veronique" at the Apollo. The American invaders will impart vivacity to the stagnant London stage at two theatres. Henry W. Savage's company has taken possession of the Shaftesbury Theatre in "The Prince of Pilsen," and is striving to carry the London public by storm. Ethel Barrymore, already a great favorite in London, opens an engagement on Monday at Wyndham's with encouraging prospects of success.

The art shows are declining in interest. Max Beerholm's caricatures at the Carfax Gallery are fine examples of the grotesque French style. The original drawings for ludicrous scenes from the lives of the poets are supplemented by eight fresh works, in which Arthur W. Pinero, William Archer, Edmund Gosse and William Orpen are humorously portrayed. There is a spirited picture by Mrs. Hennell, at the Graves Gallery, representing "The King's Maundy," and painted for the History of the Yeoman of the Guard.

Newmarket has been the centre of fashion during the week, but a second court, more brilliant in dressing than the first, has restored the ascendancy of London for a single night. This splendid function was conspicuous for the number of brides and debutantes and for the elegance of costumes. The rumors that the Prince of Wales will give a ball at Marlborough House and that there will be a State concert or garden party at Buckingham Palace are not confirmed. It has been young people's week in the smart sets, with scores of dances.

A special messenger has been sent to the Continent with Hans Holbein's miniature of Francis Howard, Duchess of Norfolk, which J. Pierpont Morgan is expected to buy. Duveen bought it at Christie's for £2,750, probably the record price for miniatures. There are not more than ten of Holbein's miniatures in existence, King Edward having three.

Case of Colonel Marchand—Yellow Peril—Sale of Historic Jewels.

(Special to The New-York Tribune, by French Cable.) (Copyright, 1904, by The Tribune Association.) Paris, May 14.—Premier Combes in accepting the resignation of Colonel Marchand has given fresh proof of his indomitable energy and determination to make the military entirely subordinate to the civil authority in the third republic, even at the risk of slighting the wishes of Emperor Nicholas, who is believed personally to have favored the appointment of Colonel Marchand to accompany General Kuropatkin to the seat of war. The "Hero of Fashoda" was the youngest colonel in the French army, being only forty-one years old. It is understood that Colonel Marchand had been offered the command of the French colonial regiment stationed at Tientsin, and that had he remained in the army, he would have been promoted shortly to the rank of brigadier general. Colonel Marchand's resignation is treated by the newspapers as an absolutely political question. The Nationalists look upon him as a martyr, while the Ministers and press warmly support the action of the government. One paper suggests that the resignation will lead to "an addition to the staff of the Patrie."

Colonel Marchand's period of arrest does not expire until Tuesday, and he will not receive visitors until after that date. It is said that he is going to found a colonial company. The Opposition press declare that Colonel Marchand is likely to cause the government greater embarrassment outside the army than in it.

The nationalist and reactionary papers, in the absence of actual news from the seat of war, are still harping on the yellow peril, which, in their opinion, will result from the continued Japanese victories. Is it not a singular coincidence that exactly the same journals, the "Patrie," the "Autorite," the "Soleil," the "Gaulois" and the "Petit Journal," took pains to warn Europe of the alleged American peril during the war between the United States and Spain? Meanwhile the "Temps," the "Debat," the "Matin," the "Figaro" and the entire republican press no longer agitate the yellow peril, and at last discuss the situation fairly and impartially. Smart, fashionable Parisian society, however, remains emphatically pro-Russian, and for any one to say a good word for Japan is regarded as almost as great a breach of etiquette as some years ago it would have been so considered to sympathize with Dreyfus or to express admiration for Admiral Dewey or Sampson. Now, as hitherto, the smart, ultra-fashionable but narrow-minded coteries of reaction and conservatism obey a sort of unwritten watchword to get hold of the wrong end of the poker.

Great interest is taken in the sale at auction early in June of the historic jewels that belonged to the late Princess Mathilde. Among the most important numbers is a superb necklace given by the first Napoleon as a wedding present to his sister-in-law, the Queen of Westphalia, who married King Jerome of Westphalia, and who was mother of Princess Mathilde. The necklace consists of seven rows of 384 white pearls, weighing 4,200 grains, the intrinsic value of which is estimated by experts at $100,000. There are also three pearl necklaces that Princess Mathilde inherited from Queen Sophie of Holland, one of which contains 102 large white pearls and four enormous black pearls at equal tassel of 900 small white pearls. There is also a gift of the third Napoleon to Princess Mathilde. There are rivers of diamonds, bracelets and magnificent pearl-shaped solitaire gray pearl earrings, also a gold travelling alarm clock used by the Emperor in his campaigns, made by Breguet in 1810. Altogether there are 310 objects of jewelry, all with historic associations. A pleasing spring feature of Paris is the flowered window sill contest arranged by a committee of architects and painters, including Philpot, Dagnan-Bouveret, Gervey, Cheret, Louise Abbema, Mile. Dufau, Claude Marief and others, and supported by Premier Combes, by the Minister of Fine Arts and by the Prefect of the Seine; the idea being to encourage masses of flowers on balconies and in windows to beautify Paris streets. At a given date the jury will travel all over Paris in a procession of automobiles, noting all the shows, from the humblest to the most elaborate, and will give awards proportionately to the taste displayed by the competitors and to the means they had at their disposal. Five thousand dollars will be distributed in prizes. The poor and rich alike are invited to take part in the contest, and the municipal horticulturists have agreed to supply seeds, bulbs, cuttings and pots of rich soil free to competitors who cannot afford to buy them.

"Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," a miracle in three acts, worked up into a poem by Maurice Lena, from one of Anatole France's clever tales, and set to music by Massena, and which was produced two years ago as an opera at Monte Carlo, was given for the first time in Paris on Wednesday evening at the Opéra Comique, with considerable success. The first act has all the delicacy of sentiment of Massena at his best, and contains bright, spirited choruses and catching solos, but the ecclesiastical chants in the second and third acts are somewhat monotonous.

Vincent d'Indy has composed music for a wind instrument orchestra, which was performed successfully on the saxophone by Mrs. Richard Hall, formerly Miss Coullidge, of New-York and Boston, at the Nouveau Theatre, on Thursday.

Francis MacMillen, the violinist who won the first prize at the Brussels Conservatory of Music, a pupil of Cesar Thomson, made his Parisian debut, which was much appreciated in musical circles, last night at the Salle des Agriculteurs.

Philippe Bunau-Varilla, whose successful effort at Panama and Washington smoothed away obstacles to the canal being completed by the United States, and who, since his return to Paris, has been severely criticised by the Nationalist party here for "the unpatriotic part he took in sacrificing the interests of French shareholders in the original company," has the satisfaction of knowing that his action while at Washington has met with the cordial approval of the French Government and of President Loubet, who a few days ago promoted him from Chevalier to Officer of the Legion of Honor.

Felix Ziem, the painter whose Venetian pictures are well known in New-York, and who enjoys vigorous, robust health at the age of eighty-five, was married on Wednesday at Nice, where he has lived for fifty years, to a charming young lady, Mile. Ursule Trelles, one of his pupils.

The international revolver and carbine contest of the Manhattan and French teams, which is taking place at the Maitons Lafayette on Thursdays and Sundays, will probably be concluded to-morrow evening. It is now regarded as almost a certainty that the Americans will win all the honors in the contest. They carried all before them in the revolver fifty-metre tests.

HARD FIGHTING IN ARMENIA.

Report That Sixteen Hundred Men Were Killed in Recent Battle.

Geneva, May 14.—The "Gazette de Lausanne" has received a telegram from Billis, Asiatic Turkey, confirming the reports of fighting between Turks and Armenians. According to these reports, about 700 Turks and 900 Armenians were killed. The locality of the fight is not given, but probably was in the Sassoun district of Armenia.

Paris, May 14.—The Foreign Office here is without additional details of the widespread devastation wrought by Turkish troops in the Sassoun district of Armenia. The French press advises, giving the number of killed at one hundred on each side, are considered to minimize the matter. The burned villages were in the part of the country most difficult of access, and the Foreign Office says it probably will be impossible to obtain details before a month. The inhabitants of the district are marauding tribes who have constantly risen against Turkey. It is the belief in official circles that the international Armenian committees will use the new outages as a lever to induce the powers to unite in decisive action against Turkey.

MARCHAND MAY SERVE RUSSIA.

His Arrest and Resignation Cause a Great Sensation in Paris.

Paris, May 14.—General Baron Rehboll, a well known officer in the French army and a friend of Colonel Marchand, whose resignation from the army was accepted yesterday, says Marchand probably will offer his services to Russia. Such a step would give a dramatic sequel to his retirement in disgrace from the French army. Marchand's arrest for publicly criticizing the War Office and the summary acceptance of his resignation are causing a sensation similar to that when Dreyfus was stripped of his uniform. His period of arrest expires next Tuesday, when, some of his friends assert, he will enter politics and make another Boulangier campaign. General Rehboll's suggestion that Marchand may enter the Russian Army appears more likely to be true, as the Russians have a high appreciation of his military capacity, and it is understood that General Kuropatkin personally desires to secure Marchand's services.

MORE MILLIONS TO GO.

Over Ten in Gold Engaged for Next Tuesday—Record for Single Day.

TROUBLE IN SUPPLYING BARS.

Gold to the amount of $10,500,000 has been engaged for shipment to Paris by the Kaiser Wilhelm on Tuesday, the largest amount ever arranged to be exported on a single day. Of this sum J. P. Morgan & Co. have ordered $2,500,000, the National City Bank $2,000,000, Lazard Freres $1,500,000, Heilshelm, Ickelheimer & Co. $1,000,000, and two or three other firms or institutions the remaining $3,500,000. These engagements, which are all of gold bars, of size and fineness to meet the French requirement, have more than exhausted the Assay Office's supply of such bars, the quantity on hand amounting to only $2,000,000. The remaining $8,500,000 necessary to fill the orders will be secured by to-morrow. It is understood that, contrary to the general impression, most of the proceeds of the $25,000,000 allotment of the Japanese loan just placed in this country will be expended in gold to Europe. The amount of gold engaged here for export since the beginning of the current movement on April 7 aggregates $22,475,000.

W. U. AND WIRE TAPPERS

HELPS PROSECUTE THEM.

Closed Poolrooms Which Wouldn't Pay, Says Captain Goddard.

Captain F. Norton Goddard last night declared that the Western Union Telegraph Company had shown itself able to shut down completely certain poolrooms in January without the aid of either the Police Commissioner or the District Attorney, and that hundreds of wiretappers indicted by the company, and now languishing in Sing Sing, were evidence of the Western Union's positive knowledge of poolroom locations. Captain Goddard's statement was in criticism of Friday's renewed offer by the company's executive committee to withdraw the service of race reports from all poolrooms which Commissioner McAdoo would specify as "unlawful poolrooms."

A Tribune reporter showed Captain Goddard a printed account of the reported closing of poolrooms by the Western Union in January, when it was declared virtually no race news was distributed in New-York. According to this account a syndicate had been formed by the poolroom men, and the service was being taken in only three or four big rooms, that were in reality, exchanges from which the betting odds and jockies were peddled out over the phone to the smaller rooms.

In tracing the cause of this wholesale reduction in the racetrack service, and consequent heavy loss to the company of thousands of dollars, the Tribune, according to the report, discovered the scheme, and immediately shut off all service. Failing to obtain the desired information through other channels, the poolrooms had to capitulate to the Western Union's monopoly. Inspectors employed by the telegraph company, it is said, were placed in each of the rooms to see that no tributary room was served with racing news without paying the rates demanded, and the ticker service was either discontinued or so greatly delayed that it could be of no use to handbooks or poolrooms.

"I recollect the incident perfectly," said Captain Goddard, "and I believe the facts to have been substantially as stated. If the Western Union could do this, when the issue was a financial one, they can do it now that it is a moral issue. It clinches the entire argument. The company is simply trying to throw dust in the eyes of the people."

"The fact of every conviction of a wiretapper by the company shows it to have knowledge of one or more poolrooms in each instance. If I were Governor of this State I would issue a blanket pardon to every wiretapper now in Sing Sing for intercepting the Western Union's racing service. The company's third resort, adopted by the Western Union on Friday," Captain Goddard added, "is to instruct officers and employes to furnish hereafter such racing news only to such applicants as shall give assurance that it is not to be used for poolroom purposes." The resolution goes right to the extreme edge and then stops. Let the clause be changed to instruct employes to furnish racing news only to such applicants as on or before May 31 shall give assurance that it is not to be used for poolroom purposes, and let the word 'applicants' be amplified to embrace those who at present receive racing news, and the rest will be easy.

Then from every man who does not apply by that date the service will be cut off. The company is simply trying to give the necessary assurance. By leaving the clause as it is, the company shows that it is trying to blind the public." Captain Goddard had been told by the reporter that Jacob H. Schiff, one of the directors, who had been expected to arrive from Europe yesterday, had been informed that by Captain Goddard's statement he would be giving the necessary assurance, and that Mr. Schiff would use his influence, as other directors already have, to have the Western Union shut down the poolroom service of its own volition.

"I would resent any imputation on Mr. Schiff's personal character," said Captain Goddard, "as I would not of that of my own father. Therefore, I cannot believe that he will countenance the present position of affairs."

Captain Goddard intimated in other ways that he thought the crisis was drawing near. "I have no legal knowledge, but if after a reasonable time it becomes known that the company is not going to issue a blanket pardon to every wiretapper now in Sing Sing, I certainly think it will be just for the District Attorney's office, in its discretion, to consider whether it should issue a writ of habeas corpus for the release of the Western Union Company may not be begun, or whether any or all of the directors might be indicted for having been found guilty of not sufficient warrant for either of these things, let them bring an action against even one of the messenger boys, so that the charge is brought home."

At present we prefer to leave it a moral issue with the company, and not to harrow it by seeking to bring any test case into court. The next move is with the company." An article which appeared in "The Evening Post" last night went to show that the Indian case, in which Colonel Clowry has more than once based his declaration that the company is not going to transmit all messages except in decent language, is by no means a criterion. The article apparently indicates that a reasonable suspicion that messages are to be used for illegal purposes is all that is necessary for refusal. Commissioner McAdoo was understood to intimate yesterday that he would not receive support outside of the Western Union in suppressing poolrooms.

W. U.'S RACING CLERK ON STAND.

Testifies in Case Over Alleged Fraudulent Plan to "Beat" Poolrooms.

Edward Raffard, a clerk in the racing department of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was in the Adams-st. police court, Brooklyn, yesterday, to testify in the case of George Allen and John Bradley, who are charged with attempting to get money under false pretences. It is alleged that the men said they had a sure way of "beating" the poolrooms, and wanted money to work it. Mr. Raffard, who was placed on the stand by Assistant District Attorney Elder, testified that Mr. Allen and Mr. Bradley had not been away from his desk one business day in April or May. He further declared that he had not seen Mr. McAdoo working in the racing department. No other witnesses were examined. James W. Eldridge, for the accused, asked to have until May 15 to prepare a brief on the legal questions involved. The request was granted.

LEAVES MARSHALL FIELD.

Harry G. Selfridge Buys Out Schlesinger & Mayer for $5,000,000.

Chicago, May 14.—Harry G. Selfridge, general manager of the retail store of Marshall Field & Co., has bought the business of Schlesinger & Mayer. The deal was announced to-day. Mr. Selfridge will conduct his new enterprise under the firm name of H. G. Selfridge & Co. The price paid was $5,000,000. It is understood that Mr. Selfridge has acquired the entire stock of Schlesinger & Mayer, which includes the interest of Henry Siegel, who has been working in the store since 1870. Mr. Selfridge severed his connection with Marshall Field & Co.

TO PROTECT BONDHOLDERS.

Interests of Those of Mexican Central Railway Said to Be in Jeopardy.

Speyer & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Mexican Central Railway Securities Company, Limited, announced that they have taken steps to protect the bondholders of the Mexican Central Railway Company. To this end they ask holders of the consolidated mortgage 4 per cent bonds, the first and second consolidated bonds and the third consolidated trust 4 1/2 per cent bonds to deposit their certificates with the Equitable Trust Company, of New-York, and to execute a power of attorney in favor of the company. A plan will be prepared for the reorganization of the railway company for the readjustment of its securities.

THE STATESMAN AND THE WORKMAN ALL FEAR THE SCOURGE CATARRH.

The Power of Pe-ru-na in Destroying This Dread Disease the Admiration of the World.

Spring the Time to Cure Catarrh.

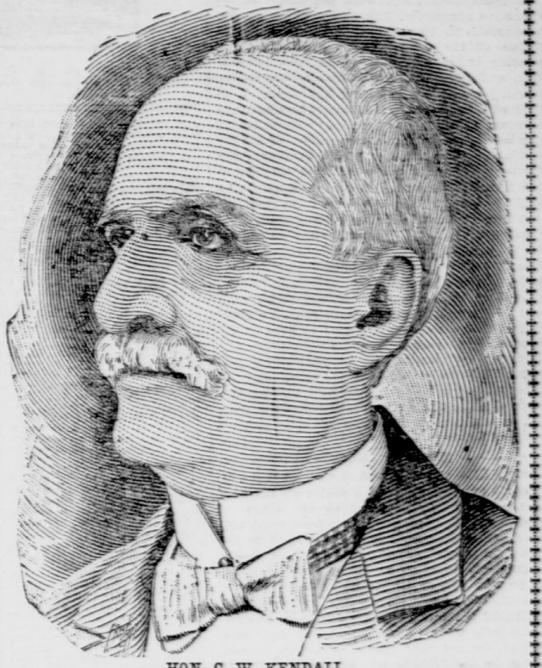

Catarrh assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the early summer systemic catarrh is most prevalent. That tired, all worn out feeling in nine cases out of ten is due to a catarrh condition of the mucous membranes. Pe-ru-na cleanses the mucous membranes and cures the catarrh wherever located. There are no remedies for catarrh just as good as Pe-ru-na. Accept no substitutes.

A Spring Vacation.

The expense as well as the impossibility of leaving one's business or home affairs makes it entirely out of the question for many people to take a spring vacation. However, Pe-ru-na makes it possible for the tens of thousands who can take no rest, the brain and nerve tonic of modern medicine is an indispensable safeguard.

HON. C. W. KENDALL.

Hon. C. W. Kendall, Congressman from Nevada, two terms, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., writes: "From my own experience, and those of my friends who have used your Pe-ru-na with benefit as a catarrh remedy, I take pleasure in testifying that it is not only a remedy for the cure of that disease, but it is a most excellent tonic, and I can safely recommend the use of the same."—C. W. Kendall.

Hon. C. W. Kendall, Congressman from Nevada, two terms, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., writes: "From my own experience, and those of my friends who have used your Pe-ru-na with benefit as a catarrh remedy, I take pleasure in testifying that it is not only a remedy for the cure of that disease, but it is a most excellent tonic, and I can safely recommend the use of the same."—C. W. Kendall.

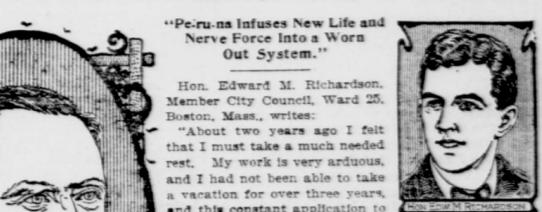

The usual symptoms which foretell a nervous breakdown are general lassitude, dull, heavy sensations, irregular appetite, loss of sleep and a lack of interest in every day affairs. Nothing is known to the medical profession to-day is equal to Pe-ru-na in the cure and prevention of these derangements. Pe-ru-na gives new vigor to the tired brain, strength and quiet to the weakened nerves, and as nearly supplies the benefits of a vacation to the overworked man and tired woman as it is possible for any remedy to do it. Pe-ru-na is a reliable specific for nervous prostration, nerve exhaustion and sleeplessness. Its past history in such cases proves that it is perfectly adapted to their varied peculiarities.

"Pe-ru-na Infuses New Life and Nerve Force into a Worn Out System."

Hon. Edward M. Richardson.

Member City Council, Ward 25, Boston, Mass., writes: "About two years ago I felt that I must take a much needed rest. My work is very arduous, and I had not been able to take a vacation for over three years, and this constant application to work nearly caused me nervous prostration. Some of my employes recommended Pe-ru-na so strongly that I bought a bottle and started to use it the first day of my vacation. I soon found that it was the one thing needed with the rest to restore my lost strength and to infuse new life and nerve force into my worn out system. I feel sure that I should never have been able to take up my duties again had it not been for Pe-ru-na."—Edw. M. Richardson.

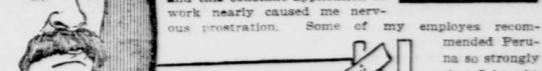

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes.

"Pe-ru-na is the Medicine for the Poor Man."

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes, 808 Mass. Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "Pe-ru-na has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am forty-five years old now, and feel as good as I did at 20. I was very thin and run down, but Pe-ru-na acted just right in my case. I am a carpenter and sometimes need a tonic. Pe-ru-na is the medicine for a poor man."—Geo. A. Hughes.
