

a direct attack on General Kurapatkin's position at Liao-Yang. The movements of the Japanese and other information indicate that they will try rather to force an engagement in the vicinity of Moutken.

The rains have not damaged the railway bed, but have destroyed a number of bridges. A small fight occurred on August 19 on the Mao-Tien Pass road, seven miles east of Liao-Yang, but it was of no importance.

JESZEN'S BRAVE FIGHT.

Details of the Action Off Tsu Island on August 14.

Vladivostok, Aug. 21.—The following additional details of the fight off Tsu Island, between the Russian Vladivostok squadron and Vice-Admiral Kamimura's vessels are supplied by the Russian correspondent of The Associated Press:

The cruisers Rossia and Gromobol, two of the survivors of our brave squadron, are again in this harbor after the most desperate battle of modern naval warfare. Half of the officers and 40 per cent of the men were killed or wounded in the unequal fight.

The correspondent mentions many details of the battle which have already been covered in dispatches, and says that there are others which for reasons that are obvious to him he cannot tell, but that he is enabled to give the following account on the authority of Rear Admiral Jeszen and other surviving officers of the squadron, many of whom are now in the hospital at Vladivostok.

can commander intervened to preserve Chinese neutrality, the American government will take measures to enforce it.

The Foreign Office has asserted from the time of the arrival of the Askold and Grozovoi at Shanghai that it was not the business of Great Britain to interfere, but that it was China's duty to observe strict neutrality, and it has gone so far as to urge her to adopt this policy.

In the opinion of British officials if the Russian ships fail to dismantle they must take the consequences. At the same time international interests cannot be permitted to suffer the result of unadvised fire in case of a battle, and it is said that the British consul general will probably be instructed to support the American consul general in urgent representations to the Taotai that he shall take measures to compel respect for China's neutrality.

Aug. 22.—The London morning newspapers to-day show a disposition to reserve their opinion on the Shanghai incidents. "The Standard," in an editorial, however, says:

The spirited and energetic action of the American authorities must move our admiration, not unmitigated with envy. The British public would be glad to know where our powerful China squadron is at this moment, and what it is doing, and why the lead in defending Chinese neutrality should be surrendered tamely to the Americans. The Foreign Office might well take example from the Washington State Department.

UNITED STATES MEN MAY BE SENT ASHORE AT CHE-FOO.

Che-Foo, Aug. 21.—With the exception of Chinese vessels, the United States gunboat Frolic and the United States gunboat Frolic are the only warships at present in this port.

They are ready to send men on shore at a moment's notice, should occasion arise. The fear of trouble, however, is remote. There is some fear that the local Japanese may clash with the Russian sailors from the torpedo boat destroyer Ryeshitelni, who are now at the Russian consulate.

London, Aug. 22.—The Constantinople correspondent of "The Standard" considers that the diplomatic triumph of the United States, in the matter of that government's demands upon Turkey, rests upon a slender foundation. The correspondent says that the Council of Ministers has recommended yielding to the American demands, but that it would ignore the formal verbal assurances which Minister Leishman said he had received.

THE COLONELS IN A CLASH.

Murphy-McCarren Example Makes Two Good Men Go Wrong.

The Donnybrook fair example set by Murphy and McCarren has sent two other good men wrong. The twin are Colonel John I. Colonel Martin has held his place for the last four years, having been washed on deck by the Bryan wave, and when the Bryan wave receded this year he clung to the rigging, as it were, and retained his job.
