

FLOWERS AT THE PRIME.

City's Parks More Beautiful than in Any Previous Summer.

Not in years have the flower beds in the various Brooklyn parks been in such fine condition and offered such an attractive sight of form and color.

Just now the plants and flowers are in the height of their perfection, the coming of the fall days having caused the foliage to take on its brightest and most attractive tints.

plants are raised from clippings. At present the facilities are somewhat limited, but plans are now being prepared for extensive greenhouses in Forest Park, and probably in the future much of the propagation will be done there.

MEMORIALS OF CHATTERTON.

From The Pall Mall Gazette. What an irony of fate there is in the fact that the little, shabby little pocketbook and almanac that was found lying on the bed beside the starved and self-slain boy poet Chatterton should

THE RISE OF THE G. A. R.

There is no grass, or at least very little, in the rear yard, all being given over to flowers. There are over 1,000 plants in this part, and each is given the greatest care.

PROPOSITION TO ERECT MONUMENT TO THE FOUNDER.

From The Boston Budget. With the coming to Boston of hundreds of thousands of people interested in the Grand Army of the Republic, the beginning of this vast organization assumes great interest.

FLORAL DISPLAY IN BOROUGH HALL PARK, NOW IN THE HEIGHT OF ITS BEAUTY.

GENERAL APPEARANCE OF SOME OF THE DISPLAYS CAUSED BY THE TURNING OF THE FOLIAGE

led to not seen them for several weeks to imagine at first places that the displays were entirely new. Although there are many displays, more extensive and even more pretentious in larger parks, there is none probably that is more perfect in detail and gives pleasure to more persons than the one in the Little triangular shaped garden spot in front of the Borough Hall.

now be bought by a Bristol pictorial and be presented to that city as a treasure of civic value. But it is well for that city, which has been so critical in its appraisal of the material, that she should not grasp the worth of the intellectual. This is the case with the Little pocketbook and almanac, which was found lying on the bed beside the starved and self-slain boy poet Chatterton should

GARDENS WITH 3,000 PLANTS.

Baltimore Man Has Made a Bare Yard a Mass of Blooms. From The Baltimore News.

From a veritable wilderness Charles H. S. Brannan has succeeded in transforming the yard about his home, No. 3699 Falls Road, near Fourth Avenue, Hampden, into one huge flower bed.

in the side yard is a big running rosebush—a crimson Rambler—which, until a few weeks ago, was covered with blossoms. But there are now other roses to take its place. In one of the beds is a large Paul Neyron bush, which Mr. Brannan declares produces the largest rose that grows, and he proudly asserts that last summer he picked one from the bush that measured seven inches across. A bed of clematis, with canes for a couple of feet, is conspicuous in the side yard, and they never want for water, being a fountain in the center of the bed. In this fountain, Mr. Brannan had an old saltpeter barrel, in which were planted flowers of various kinds, and vines trained the sides. This, however, gradually rotted away, and it was in such a dilapidated state at the end of winter that it was decided not to use it another season.

On either side of the walk around the house and extending down through the rear yard are plants of various kinds, including hydrangeas, nasturtiums, Japanese lilies, tuberoses, crabs, myrtle tree, gladiolus, yam weed, pinks, dahlias, sunflowers and hundreds of others. The rose bushes number about two hundred, and the fruit trees include plums, peaches, pears, apples and cherries. It is a garden of the most beautiful and varied, and the period of its propagation is handled and transplanted perhaps five or six times.
