

ANDREWS WAS IN MINING.

HE DISAPPEARED DEC. 19.

Search for A. H. Green's Secretary

—Lawyer Talks of Crime.

While the executors of the estates of William B. Ogden, Marianna Ogden and Andrew H. Green are still seeking to discover the whereabouts of Lyman S. Andrews, Mr. Green's confidential man, who disappeared, as did various estate books, vouchers and papers, several weeks ago, there are strong intimations that Mr. Andrews is not the only one whose presence and personal explanation in the case are strongly in demand.

"Mr. Andrews, however," Daniel Seymour, who was counsel for Mrs. Ogden, told a Tribune reporter yesterday, "is the only one I can talk about now. It is all nonsense to speak of a $200,000 shortage in the funds of the properties. It might be many thousands; it might be only hundreds.

"The papers in the two estates have been mixed, apparently not by accident, and it will be many weeks, at least, before we can gain even an idea of what is missing."

"Mr. Andrews," Colonel Henry W. Sackett, of the firm of Sackett & McQuaid, counsel for the Green estate, told a Tribune reporter last night, "disappeared on December 19. With him disappeared vouchers and all books for the last four years belonging to the Ogden estate. Undoubtedly a crime has been committed, involving an attempt to defraud both Andrew H. Green in his lifetime and the Ogden estates. The presumption is that the amounts involved are of considerable magnitude."

"Is it a fact that Central Office men and Pinkerton detectives are seeking Mr. Andrews?" asked the reporter of Mr. Seymour.

"I presume the executors and others are leaving no stone unturned to find his whereabouts," said Mr. Seymour.

"Do the executors and others believe Mr. Andrews guilty of wrongdoing?" was then asked.

INDICATIONS OF WRONGDOING. "Indications point that way," said Mr. Seymour, "although, of course, it is possible that Mr. Andrews may return and give a satisfactory explanation. I do not know the exact date when Mr. Andrews disappeared, but one afternoon in December I had occasion to ask Mr. Andrews for certain papers relating to property in Jersey City. I had been over in New-Jersey a short time previously to investigate this property. When I asked Mr. Andrews about it I remarked a strange and unusual reluctance on his part to furnish me information.

"This reluctance had been more or less marked ever since my visit to New-Jersey. Then, one day late in December—a Thursday, I think it was—I called up Mr. Andrews's own office on the telephone, and word came that Mr. Andrews was not and had not been there. Two days afterward I had occasion to go to his office. Mr. Andrews was not in, but I learned that he had been there all day when I had called him up and had been told that he was absent. My suspicions were at once aroused, and I took immediate steps to find him, but without success."

The disappearance of these books and papers and the mystery surrounding the whereabouts of Andrews have left the trustees, executors and attorneys interested in a hopeless muddle. What business has been done in the name of the Ogden estate it is impossible for them to tell.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY INQUIRING. The District Attorney is investigating the tangle, and has subpoenaed many persons connected with the estates to appear before the grand jury. John Doe proceedings have been begun. Russell Sage, it was learned yesterday, has brought suit against one Lyman Andrews for the foreclosure of a mortgage, but no one could be found in Mr. Sage's office who would discuss the matter further than to say that such a suit had been brought.

The William B. Ogden estate, which includes some of the most valuable realty holdings in the city, has been under the control of successive trustees.

Mr. Seymour continued: William B. Ogden died in 1877, leaving a large personal estate besides large amounts of real estate in New-York, Chicago and Jersey City. From time to time the executors and trustees sold portions of the estate, as directed by the will, and made distributions to the legatees. Andrew H. Green was an active trustee and executor up to the time of his death, when Marianna Ogden assumed control. During the time that Mr. Green was an active trustee, and also when Marianna Ogden was the sole and active trustee, Mr. Andrews, as their agent, had charge of the estate matters in their behalf. On the death of Mrs. Ogden I had Edwin B. Sheldon appointed administrator, with the will annexed, and trustee of the estate, and brought the usual action in the Supreme Court against the executors of the Green and Ogden estates and all parties interested for an accounting.

The John Doe proceedings instituted before Justice Wyatt are to determine whether any crime has been committed in connection with the Ogden and Green estates. Lawyers representing the trustees of the Green estate and counsel representing other interests were closeted for a time yesterday afternoon in Assistant Attorney Appletton's room in the Criminal Courts Building. It was after this conference that Justice Wyatt issued several subpoenas.

Andrew H. Green was murdered on November 13, 1903, by Cornelius Williams, the negro admiral of Hannah Elias, who shot at Mr. Green, mistaking him for John R. Platt. Mr. Green left a large estate, closely allied with the Ogden estate in New-York realty investments.

William B. Ogden, first Mayor of Chicago, was president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. His wife, who died last September, was Marianna Arnot, of Syracuse, sister of Mrs. G. G. Haven.

A suit in equity has been brought to straighten out the accounts of the estates.

"I have learned," said Mr. Seymour, "that Mr. Andrews was a large stockholder and very much interested in the Popocatepetal Mining Company, formerly of Broadway, in the same building with Mr. Andrews, but I understand the company has moved from there, and its present address I do not know."

Andrews was well known in Passaic, N. J., where he lived for years. He went there from Brooklyn in 1887, just after he became engaged in the work on Mr. Green's accounts. He was a skilled accountant, and compiled most of the comparative statements of many of the large estates. He was elected to the City Council of the Third Ward of Passaic in 1887. He helped to organize the Alert Truck Company, composed of New-York business men. He was the father of thirteen children. Soon after leaving Passaic he became separated from his wife, but a suit for divorce was unsuccessful. The family is living in Yonkers. Half a dozen houses and valuable properties in Passaic are still owned by Andrews.

Colonel Henry W. Sackett said last evening to a Tribune reporter that while the executors of the Green and Ogden estates had been investigating and the facts had not been sifted to the bottom it had not been thought that any good purpose could be served by publicity. But now that some of the facts had been made public, misapprehension might be avoided by a plain statement of the situation. Crime had been committed, that there was no doubt, he said. Attempts had been made to defraud not alone the Ogden estates, but also Andrew H. Green and his estate. He continued:

The facts of present moment are these: Lyman S. Andrews for many years has been the clerk employed to keep the books and attend to many of the details of the real estate of Andrew H. Green and his estate. He was a large, running up to the millions. At the time of the death of Mr. Green in November, 1903, he was leaving Passaic, where he was the only surviving trustee under Mr. Ogden's will. Their last accounting was made in the Supreme Court in January, 1904. After the death of Mr. Green the Ogden estate passed into the hands of Mrs. Ogden, as sole executrix, and Messrs. De Witt, Lockman and De Witt acted as her attorneys. Last spring they took up the matter of Mrs. Ogden's accounting upon Andrews for details of the account from time to time. They were proceeding with this work, but had not reached the auditing vouchers when Mrs. Ogden died in September last.

That event threw upon the attorneys of Mr. Green, as well as upon those of Mrs. Ogden, the making up of the accounts of the William B. Ogden trust. Andrews was called upon to produce the vouchers of the account that had been made since the last accounting. He did not do so, but led De Witt, Lockman and De Witt to believe that he had told them that he had given them to Mr. De Witt. When the truth was discovered as to this deception and the managing executor of Andrew H. Green's estate, came out from Chicago in December, Andrews disappeared. Investigation that all the books and vouchers of account, as well as the vouchers for payments made by the Ogden trustees, had disappeared also.

CUT BY BORDEN'S MILL. Fall River Iron Works Posts Notices—No Strike Expected.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 21.—Notices of a 12½ per cent reduction in wages were posted to-day at the great Fall River Iron Works cotton mills here. The reduction affects four thousand hands, who have been at work throughout the twenty-six weeks that the operatives of other mills were on strike. No strike is expected as a result of the reduction. Since the settlement of the strike in the other mills, the Iron Works employes have been expecting some change in their schedule.

The reduction takes effect on Monday, and places the scale at the mills on a level with that of the mills in which the strike has just been settled. The Iron Works mills are owned by M. C. D. Borden, of New-York, whose avowed policy is "to pay the market price of wages."

The plant has been running steadily throughout the strike, and the operatives have earned in that time $100,000, which they would have lost had wages been reduced in July. The Fall River Iron Works is the third largest cotton manufacturing plant in the United States. It consists of six big mills engaged in making print cloths and wide goods.

POLICEMAN WAS NOT IN SIGHT. Jewelry Store Broken Into in Broadway and Valuables Taken Away.

Barthman's jewelry store, at Broadway and Maiden Lane, was entered yesterday morning by a burglar, who smashed in one of the glass panels of the Broadway door. The policeman on the beat was conspicuously missing.

A person passing near the store heard the crash and hurried to the Church-st. station to summon a policeman. A roundsman and several other policemen responded. The man on post was rapped for and when he arrived said that he had been waiting for a subway station to be taken to the Western Union Building. He was taking money. The burglar was arrested. It is said that he had a bundle a number of articles worth about $1,000. He gave the name of William Pierce.

HEAVY POCKET SAVES HIS LIFE. Man, Falling Over Cliff, Is Caught by It on Edge.

Patrick Lavine, of No. 123 Paterson-st., Jersey City, who has recently shown signs of mental aberration, went in a rowing skiff to the Jersey City Heights and Hoboken yesterday, when the switchman was not looking, and fell through the trestle. He struck on a rock about twenty feet below, and rolled over the edge of a cliff. The reinforced pocket of the strong pea-jacket he wore caught on a point of rock and held him swinging over a fall of fifty feet or more. Employees of the Public Service Corporation dropped a rope down to him, and with difficulty rescued him. He was unconscious when rescued, but revived, and declined to go in the ambulance which had been called from the Jersey City Hospital.

FOREIGNERS FILLING ASYLUMS. Larger Proportion of Insanity than Among Native Born, Report Says.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 21.—The annual report of the superintendent of the Connecticut Hospital for the Insane shows that there were 223 patients in the institution for the year ending September 30, 1904. "It is unwise," says the superintendent, H. S. Noble, "to attempt longer to blind our eyes to the fact that all recent statistics bear witness to a large increase in insanity. It is a fact easily verified by a glance at the statistics of the State that the foreign element of our commonwealth shows a much larger proportion of insanity than prevails among the native born. Although the native born have increased to some extent, they have not done so in any such proportion as is apparent among the foreign element. In 1900 the foreign born population of the State comprised 25 per cent of the entire number. From 1898 to 1902, four years, 98 per cent of the admissions to the hospital were of foreign birth and origin. In other words, the 25 per cent of foreign population furnished 98 per cent of the insane during those four years."

"Why the immigrant population should be especially prone to mental alienation cannot be explained here. It is reported that in several countries the former homes of our adopted citizens, the ratio of insanity to the general population is higher than it is in this country."

NO P. R. R. STRIKE LIKELY. Conference Will Be Held Monday to Conclude Terms.

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—It is now regarded as certain that no strike of the trainmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad on the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie will take place. Negotiations looking to a peaceful settlement of the differences between the company and the men have not yet been concluded, but after a conference of three hours to-day both sides expressed confidence in an ultimate amicable adjustment.

The way to an agreement was opened late to-day when General Manager Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the representatives of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen admitted that concessions could be made by both sides without interfering seriously with the principles for which both the company and the men have been holding out. There appeared to be some disappointment among the conferees because the affair was not finally settled at to-day's conference, but all of the trainmen seemed satisfied that the meeting on Monday would result in conclusive action.

The sentiment of the trainmen was expressed after the meeting to-day by Vice-Grand Master W. G. Lee, who said:

"It looks like a peaceful settlement. I think the matter will be cleared up next Monday. I hope so, at least."

At the conclusion of the conference General Manager Atterbury and Grand Master Morrissey issued the following joint statement:

The conference of yesterday was continued in the same friendly and amicable spirit, and concessions were granted on both sides. In order to settle some of the outstanding questions, the meeting has been adjourned until Monday next.

Although the Brotherhood of Trainmen has expressed repeated opinion against brakemen acting as firemen, it is understood that they will not seriously oppose this practice, provided the front brakemen discharged by the company are reinstated. It is agreed that the members of the board of adjustment feel it is possible for them to concede that point.

The disputed questions are now practically in the hands of the board of adjustment, and Grand Master Morrissey. The latter will still consult the wishes of the board of adjustment, but the situation has been so settled that the board, at its meetings of the board, it is said, will be more or less perfunctory.

She was 65 years of age.

Dr. Blinn was graduate of the Women's Medical College, of Philadelphia, and came to Chicago about the time of the great fire. She was the first to advocate free public baths. SAYS HUSBAND DESERTED HER. Wife of Henry Hall Church Sues Him for Annulment of Marriage.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Margaret Ramsay Church, who was married in New-York in October, 1899, by the late Archbishop Corrigan, has begun a suit in the Court of Chancery to annul her marriage to Henry Hall Church on the grounds of desertion. Mr. Church was born in Brooklyn, but while he was quite young his parents moved to Belmar, N. J. Mrs. Church, who was a Miss Plunkett, was born in Orange, N. J., her family having lived for several years in New-York.

Mr. and Mrs. Church lived together for just two years, spending the winters at the Waldorf-Astoria, New-York, and the Laurel House, at Lakewood, and the summer at Mr. Church's home in Belmar. Early in the spring of 1901 Mr. Church decided to go to Europe to take a course in music. Later his wife learned by agreement at Liverpool, in Munich, Mrs. Church alleges, that Mr. Church had returned to her family, as he was tired of living with her. Since that time, Mrs. Church says, she has been compelled to rely on the generosity of her mother-in-law for her own support and that of her daughter, Louise Brough Church, who was born eight months after the separation. Mrs. Church says she asks that, besides a decree of annulment, the court should order Mr. Church to provide for the maintenance of herself and daughter.

Mrs. Rogers appeared little affected by the change made in her quarters to-day.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 21.—Resolutions denouncing capital punishment as a relic of barbarism and calling on Governor Bell to stay the execution of Mrs. Mary A. Rogers were adopted to-day by the Vermont State Spiritualists' Association. The Governor is asked to receive Mrs. Rogers until the next session of the legislature, and in the mean time to appoint a commission to determine her mental responsibility. FOOD VALUE OF RICE. IT'S HIGHLY NUTRITIOUS. How to Prepare Some Enticing Rice Dishes.

XL. In a recent number of "Rice Industry" a representative of the Southern Pacific, on which great cultivation is conducted to an extent far surpassing that in any other section of the United States, is quoted to the effect that on a tour of investigation in the North and West he found that "there it (rice) is not looked upon in the light it is regarded as a food—in the South, and there is no knowledge of how to prepare it other than in custards, and to use it as a luxury almost universal."

One or two of the recipes culled from the Southern Pacific Rice Cook-Book have appeared in this series, and it is to be regretted that more space cannot be spared for their presentation. For, of course, to acquaint Tribune readers is to, in the end, popularize them. A few of the rice dishes so relished by Southerners are given here. The manner of cooking plain boiled rice was described in a former series, cooked thus, it takes the place of bread, on a Southern table. The following, though having other ingredients, have as their main feature the rice itself, the best, as regards food value, of all the articles of food in common use, and the one most easily and quickly digested.

Jambalaya.—There is scarcely a creole family which does not have, at least once a week, this characteristic dish in some of its forms. It is made of various meats, fishes, etc., the ingredients changing with the things at hand, but rice always being the main element. Here is a recipe given by a creole who is "to the manner born." Cut a piece of fresh pork a pound in weight of an inch square and chop two or three onions fine. Put a large tablespoonful of sweet lard into a deep saucepan. When hot chop the pork with the onions and add a little brown, stirring for five minutes, then add about the same amount of chopped ham as you have a quarter of pound of sound or lean sausage. Next add the herbs, a bay leaf, a little parsley, two cloves with a tablespoon of salt, and a few minutes longer. Then add the rice, well browned, add two quarts of hot soup stock, or hot water. Let it cook about ten minutes; when boiling nicely add cup of rice, washed and dried. Let boil until the rice is tender, stirring frequently to keep from burning. Season with salt, cayenne, tabasco or hot sauce. Serve in bowls or plates.

Creole Oysters.—An old fowl is best for gumbo. After cleaning, cut into pieces as for fricasse. Place a tablespoonful of lard into a large stewpan or granite-ware kettle, when hot add the chicken; when fried a good brown, throw over it a tablespoonful of flour; let brown; now add hot water to a little more than covers, add two sliced onions, a pepper pod (without seeds) and pepper and salt to taste; when the chicken is thoroughly done, and about fifteen minutes before the oysters are to be served, pour in fifty oysters and their liquor; when the oysters wrinkle at the edges remove from the fire, and place on a hot platter. Serve with a tablespoonful of oil, stir and serve immediately with a large tablespoonful of warm boiled rice in each soup-bowl, or plate.

STEAL SEWER PIPE. FEAR FOR LOUISIANA'S VOTE. Unknown Thieves Take Five Hundred Feet of It in Night. Democratic Leaders Believe Clerical Errors May Keep It Out of Electoral Count. [BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] New-Orleans, Jan. 21.—It is possible that the messenger which Louisiana sends to cast her vote for Parker and Davis in the electoral college will not be allowed to do so. It was discovered to-day that a number of clerical errors had been made in the sealing and authenticating of the vote, and as a result there is consternation among the Democratic leaders of the State, who fear that for once Louisiana will not be registered in the Democratic column. The messenger selected to cast Louisiana's vote arrived here to-day in order to consult with prominent attorneys as to means which should be taken to rectify the errors which have been made. Up to the present time he has been unable to find one who will give him any comfort, and a conference of Democratic leaders has been called for to-morrow to discuss the situation.

ISAAC EMERSON TO LIVE HERE. Will Give Up His Home in Baltimore Because of Suit Against Wife. [BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Baltimore, Jan. 21.—Captain Isaac Emerson, the chemist and his family, according to the statement of Mrs. Emerson to-day, will sell their home and Italian gardens here and remove to New-York, because a jury gave a verdict for $4,000 damages in favor of Police Captain Ward in his suit against Mrs. Emerson for slander. The police arrested Mrs. Emerson's chauffeur for running her automobile too fast. She charged the policeman with bad language, and Captain Ward and other officers charged that she came to the station and called them names. The case will be taken to the Court of Appeals. Mrs. Emerson said: "If we can find a purchaser we will give up our home here. If we do so we will have been driven out of Baltimore by the worst kind of persecutions. Emersons owned $100,000 worth of the navy militia, and thousands of dollars for the poor, and this is the kind of treatment we get in return."

TELEGRAPHERS ELECT OFFICERS. At a meeting of New-York Local No. 16 of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, which adjourned at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, officers for the ensuing year were elected. A referendum was also taken on the national officers. D. L. Russell, of New-York, getting the New-York local's vote for national president. Support of outside locals is also promised to him. The fight for national president will be between the present officer, Samuel Small, of Seattle, who attended this meeting, and Mr. Russell. The local officers elected are as follows: President, T. P. Von Dorn, vice-president, R. M. McLennan, recording secretary, F. P. Bianco, secretary-at-large, James F. Sullivan, and an executive committee of nine members. Miss W. Russell was unanimously re-elected secretary-treasurer, and also received the local's vote in the referendum as editor and manager of the official organ, "The Commercial Telegraphers' Journal," published in Chicago.
