

LITERARY NOTES.

"An Habitation Enforced," the story by Rudyard Kipling which appears in the August "Century," offers a charming illustration of what, we suppose, might fairly be called his third manner.

In these pages in "The Century" he takes an American business man and his wife—the former ordered by the doctors to see what two years of idleness will do for his nervous prostration—and deposits them in the heart of rural England, on one of the farms belonging to Friars Pardon, an ancient manor, long since allowed to fall into neglect.

Good Stevensonians are not supposed to be really happy until they have acquired a copy of that Edinburgh Edition of their author which makes so imposing an array upon the shelves. But for our own part, we would gladly give all these stately volumes for the Biographical Edition of Stevenson's Works, which is now in course of publication by Charles Scribner's Sons.

She is brief, and in her recollections she adheres, on the whole, to the things which serve to shed some little light on Stevenson's character. She, for example, her notes on their stay at Hyères. They tell of one incident—leading to an attack of sciatica and a "terrible morrhage"—which somehow is curiously eloquent of the romancer's outlook upon life.

It happened, about this time, that an editor of a London journal, who published scandalous stories concerning private individuals, was prosecuted for libel, found guilty and punished by imprisonment. When the news came to us, my husband said this was an occasion that must be celebrated. In the evening we had a dinner, and I read a window of illumination, and lighted a bonfire we had previously prepared in the afternoon for the purpose.

It is impossible to read this without saying, "How like Stevenson!" There are other passages in his wife's chapters equally interesting; some of them, as in the case of the preface to "The Wrecker," giving us a vivid sense of the stores of experience from which he drew so much of his inspiration.

Mr. E. V. Lucas, as one of the best of the recent editors of Charles Lamb's writings, has every right to be heard on the subject of epistolary literature. Treating of the subject in "The London Outlook," under the title of "Bachelors and the Post," he announces a theory which is not as plausible as it looks, but which is none the less suggestive.

Looking at this little group again I notice that not only were they all of the same complexion, but they were all of the same height. It is a remarkable extent of resemblance. Cowper, Gray and FitzGerald were thorough recluses, Lamb was very much so, Keats and Wordsworth were not, but for all his frivolities and flirtations with society, was a lonely man. Byron, too. So that we find the best letters were written by recluses, but recluses or semi-recluses also.

When we use the phrase "the best letter writers" we mean always the best literary letter writers. Of the really best letter writers we know nothing, because they have been obscured by literary editors.

several times a day, and is interesting to boot; honestly interesting, without trifling. It is not lack of writing, but of printing, that would not bear. I would not say that married women cannot write good letters, but for the most part they wait until they are free—like Madame de Sévigné, who was a widow at twenty-five, if I remember rightly, and who wrote letters divinely for half a century after.

When Mr. Thomas H. Clark, of Washington, D. C., was a student at Harvard, twenty-five years ago, he once went with a friend to call on Emerson, at Concord. His recollections of the episode are spread rather thinly over three pages of "The South Atlantic Quarterly," but this brief note is amusing:

C—, with a bachelor's degree, was studying divinity, and our host had an arch speech about his having begun his career as a minister of a denomination, the name of which he frankly confessed he could not recall. C—'s prompting "Unitarian" brought a cheerful "Yes," and "Ah! my young friends, when you grow old you must not suffer your memory to play you tricks like this."

Among the books recently added to the series of special editions issued by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. from the Riverside Press is a most engaging little volume containing "Solos Sonnets Sung by Solomon the King," the paraphrases, which, for its poetic quality and for its interesting illustration of seventeenth century English, is abundantly welcome. The book is unfamiliar to students, and in this edition it receives just the right form. A thinner but a taller volume is given to some noble pages of Tudor prose, Plutarch's "Consolatoria Letter or Discourse."

course sent into his own wife as touching the Death of Her and His Daughter," in Philadelphia's version. We must borrow a passage from this high souled epistle:

Moreover, as touching that which you heard of others, who are wont to persuade many of the vulgar sort, saying, That the soul, once departed from the body, is dissolved, and hath no pain or delight at all; I am assured that you yield no credit and believe to such positions; as well in regard of those reasons and instructions which you have received by tradition from our Ancestors, as also of those sacred and symbolical mysteries of Bacchus, which we know well enough who are of that religious confraternity, and professed therein. Being grounded therefore in this principle, and holding it firmly for an undoubted truth: That the soul is incorruptible and immortal; you are so that it farish with it, as it doth with little birds that are caught by the fowler alive, and come into man's hands; for if it have been kept and nourished daintily a long time within the body, and it is inured to be gentle and familiar unto this life, to wit, by the management of sundry affairs and look customs, it returneth thither again, and re-enters a second time (after many generations) into the body; it never taketh rest nor content, but is wrapped within the affections of the flesh, and entangled with the adventures of the world, and calamities incident to our nature; for I would not have you to think that old age is to be blamed and reproached for wrinkles, nor in regard of hoary white hairs, nor yet for the imbecility and feebleness of the body; but the worst and most odious thing in it, is this: That it causeth the soul to take corruption by the remembrance of those things whereof it had experience, and to be made soft and tender with the love of the body, and (as it were) by certain medicines and forcible charms united and incorporate into it.

And soon to yield the gates of death, before that the soul have taken too deep an imbibition, or liking of terrene things here below, and so it is made soft and tender with the love of the body, and (as it were) by certain medicines and forcible charms united and incorporate into it.

GIRL CATCHES THIEF.

Chases Man Several Blocks and Effects His Capture.

Hannah Davis, twelve years old, No. 70 East 115th-st., according to the police of Harlem, is the greatest thief catcher of her age. Yesterday afternoon Hannah, while standing in front of the house, was approached by two men, one of whom asked her if there were any furnished rooms for rent. Hannah told them she thought Mrs. Pauline Riehmuller, who lives on the third floor, had some, and the men went inside.

Hannah forgot all about the men until she suddenly ran out of the door, Mrs. Riehmuller following them to the door, crying that they had stolen her pocketbook. Hannah ran after one of the men, who started down 115th-st. to Madison-ave., where he turned east in 116th-st.

Hannah kept him in sight until she saw him jump on a 34-ave. car. Speeding toward the car she shouted to the motorman that a robber was on board. The motorman stopped the car. Then the conductor asked Hannah to point out the man.

Policeman McCarthy, of the East 104th-st. station, appeared on the scene, and the fugitive, who afterward gave his name as Joseph Katz, and his address as No. 1 East 106th-st., was taken to the East 104th-st. station. Later he was arraigned in the Harlem police court and fined $12.00 a year. His resignation was accepted, and he was discharged.

Mr. Lucas is a little rash. He admits as much in a postscript, saying: "It has only just occurred to me (in spite of some years' acquaintance and correspondence with Mrs. FitzGerald) that FitzGerald was not strictly a bachelor; although in all forms of speech less than strict he was nothing else. But what an odd lapse of memory!" It is a worse lapse to speak of Stevenson as the principal exception to the rule Mr. Lucas seeks to establish.

Chief Engineer of the Commission Sends in His Resignation. John F. Cowan, the last appointed member of the Aqueeduct Commission, was chosen president of the board at a meeting yesterday. The vote was unanimous. The Mayor and Deputy Controller Stevenson were present. It has been customary, when announced, for the chairman of the commission to be of the political faith of the dominant party in the city government, and President Ten Eyck, in giving up the chair, said he did so out of respect for the precedent.

LONG BRANCH HORSE SHOW Annual Exhibition at Hollywood Park Begins To-day.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.) Long Branch, N. J., July 25.—The annual exhibition of the Monmouth County Horse Show Association, the great midsummer attraction here, will begin a four-day session at Hollywood Park to-morrow afternoon. There will be five shows, the final an exhibition by electric light, on Saturday evening, in which a half-dozen classes will be shown in the ring.

All signs point to the most successful exhibition ever held by the Monmouth County Horse Show Association, which was organized in a small way a dozen years ago. Starting with $50 entries, with prize money aggregating only $1,500, it has grown to be one of the largest open air horse shows in the country.

Last year the show had 500 entries and some $6,000 in prizes, with fifty classes. It was the best exhibition ever given up to that time. This year there are over six hundred entries and prize money aggregating nearly $7,000, with fifty-four classes.

The Monmouth County Horse Show Association bonds are gilt edge. When the grandstand burned down, a year ago last winter, no difficulty was experienced in erecting a new and more commodious structure. A number of improvements have been made to the grounds since last year. Stable accommodations have been enlarged, yet, with the extra stalls, the association is still unable to house all the horses.

The horse show grounds are to-night in holiday attire. The association colors, green and white, are flying everywhere. A small army is on the ground in charge of the show horses. Since Sunday the show horses have been coming to Long Branch. The strings of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and E. D. Jordan came direct from Atlantic City. A special train of eight cars brought the Atlantic City entries to Long Branch. All day to-day horses arrived at the show grounds.

An attractive programme has been prepared for the opening to-morrow afternoon. The special feature of the day will be the class for roadsters. There are fifteen entries in this class. The special race for ponies will also be one of the features.

Edward P. Murphy, of New-York, will be in charge of the ring to-morrow; Walter E. Hurd, the vice-president and general manager, on Thursday; Colonel Thomas J. O'Donohue, on Friday; Jacob Rothschild, on Saturday afternoon; and P. J. Casady at the night exhibition.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, during horse show week will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Goodby Loew, at the Baker cottage, at Monmouth Beach. The opening programme to-morrow calls for twelve classes, with some one hundred and eighteen entries.

ROWING REGATTA. Baltimore Oarsmen Preparing for Annual Races.

Baltimore, July 25.—The members of the Patapsco Navy, the general organization of the rowing clubs of Baltimore, are busy perfecting the details for the thirty-third annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which is to be held here August 11th and 12th.

The races will be rowed upon the waters of Spring Gardens, a branch of the Patapsco River, the course, which has been laid off by one of the city's surveyors, giving a practically straight mile for the half and what is said to be the best course in the country for the longer races.

The Spring Gardens have little tide or current and high banks on both sides give protection from wind and fine vantage ground for spectators. The vessels of the city police department, together with the members of the regatta, will give the contestants an absolutely clear course at all times.

The indications are that the entry list will be the largest in the history of the regatta of the National Association, and the members of the Patapsco Navy are determined that Baltimore's reputation for hospitality shall not suffer.

NATIONAL REGATTA ENTRIES. Entries for the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which is to be held at Baltimore on August 11 and 12, next, will close on Friday, July 28. Entries should be sent to Frederick R. Fortney, secretary of the association, Postoffice Box No. 79, New-York City.

FOR MALPIN TROPHY. Expert Rifemen Will Represent New-Jersey in Creedmoor Match.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.) Sea Cliff, N. J., July 25.—Eight expert rifemen will represent New-Jersey at Creedmoor on Thursday, in the competition for the Malpin trophy. The match will be under the auspices of the New-York State Rifle Association, and will be fired at 200, 600 and 1,000 yard ranges, ten shots at each range.

Collaps SHIRTS THE BEST MADE. WRENN AND FINCKE WIN. Beat Le Roy and Miles in Singles on Westchester Courts.

chester. Both the competitions were prolonged through three sets.

Wrenn were down the intercollegiate champion, Robert Le Roy, of Columbia University, scoring the match at 4-6, 7-5 and 6-1. In the other semi-final, the Orange Lawn Tennis Club expert, George M. Miles, lost to Fincke, after taking the opening set. The score was 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

With the players in this special tournament preparing for the national championship at Newport next month, the defeat of Le Roy came as an upset. The match also indicated that Wrenn is in good form.

Both Fincke and Miles played fast tennis. They volleyed throughout the entire twenty-nine games, and in many of the rallies the ball crossed the net more than a score of times. Fincke proved the superiority of his style, and hit the ball harder than did his opponent.

The singles will be finished this afternoon, Wrenn and Fincke meeting in the final. The round robin doubles will begin to-morrow with the leading pairs in this section of the country.

RHODE ISLAND CHAMPIONSHIP.

Bristol, R. I., July 25.—The third round in the Rhode Island State tennis tournament was completed to-day without any of the prominent players being put out of the running.

The winners took the matches in straight sets, with the exception of F. M. Dimond, who dropped the first set to H. Howland. The doubles and consolation singles will begin to-morrow. Summary:

State championship singles (third round)—J. C. Ames beat A. Z. Potter, 4-1, 6-1; H. L. Whitcomb beat F. R. Budding, 6-2, 6-4; R. N. Luna beat N. P. Hutchinson, 6-3, 6-1; E. T. Grant beat O. Cooke, 6-2, 6-2; J. D. E. Jones beat F. M. Porter, 4-0, 6-1; P. M. Dimond beat F. H. Howland, 2-6, 7-5, 8-0; C. Hale beat F. D. Howe by default; L. P. Theriot beat W. P. Duffy, 6-4, 6-3.

LAWN TENNIS AT NEWPORT.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.) Newport, R. I., July 25.—At the Casino, this morning the lawn tennis doubles for women were started and the play was witnessed by a large gallery of society people. One match went by default, but the other three furnished good sport.

The Misses Barber and Wallach. These four are looked upon as the best players in the cottage colony. It was an ideal day for lawn tennis. The result:

Miss D. Moran and Miss A. Moran beat Miss G. Whipple and Miss H. Womer, by default.

Miss Margaret Bink and Miss Maud Womersley beat Miss Edith W. Weston and Miss Jane W. Weston, 6-8, 8-6.

Miss Anita Sands and Miss Ruth Twombly beat Miss Cynthia Hothe and Miss Gertrude Bell, 6-4, 6-3.

NEW-YORK TENNIS PLAYER WINS.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.) Asbury Park, N. J., July 25.—R. S. Roberts, of the New-York Lawn Tennis Club, won the club championship cup to-day in the tournament of the Asbury Park Lawn Tennis Club, played before a large gallery on the course in Educational Hall square.

Roberts defeated C. F. Hincke, of Ocean Grove, in two sets, 6-2, 6-1. Hincke had held the trophy for two consecutive years. He was not in form to-day, having recently returned from Chicago.

GEN. BUMPS DISABLED. One of Contestants in Motor Boat Race at Cotuit.

Cotuit, Mass., July 25.—The power boat General Bumps, owned by P. D. Irwin, of Philadelphia, and one of the contestants in the race from New-York to Marblehead, arrived in the lower harbor late on Sunday night in a disabled condition.

The General Bumps came up to the wharf this afternoon and was hauled out on the ways to undergo necessary repairs. On Sunday noon the boat started on her way to the race. She left Cotuit City at 1 o'clock, but the little cove some distance below this town.

CANADA CUP TRIALS.

Rochester, July 25.—Two more trial races were sailed to-day off Summerville for the Canada's Cup. The Iroquois won the first race, with a margin of twenty seconds, and the Rochester the second, by eleven seconds. The Iroquois now has three races to her credit and the Rochester two.

Bay. The second race for this trophy may be sailed on Friday. George E. Reiner, of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, is the challenger, and W. H. Childs's More Trouble is the defender. The other clubs will enter the best Class G boats.

The second race for the W. H. Childs perpetual challenge trophy will be sailed on Saturday over the Gravesend Bay courses, under the direction of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club. The race is open to boats in Class M and under. Each club is allowed to enter two yachts, and all sail as one class on time allowance. The first race, sailed on July 3, was won by the More Trouble, representing the Bensonhurst Yacht Club.

Ball Player Can Golf. Former Varsity Pitcher Leads Field at Glen View.

Glen View, Ill., July 25.—Guy A. Miller, former star pitcher of the University of Michigan baseball team, to-day led a field of sixty-five entrants in the qualifying round of the seventh annual Western Golf Association championship at the Glen View links, with a total of 137 strokes for thirty-six holes.

Tied at 182 strokes behind him were R. E. Hunter, of Middletown, and W. E. Clow, Jr., of Onwentsia. The former in the morning made a round in 78, which was the best of the day, but, requiring ten more in the afternoon, spoiled a good chance to capture the gold medal. The latter trophy went to Miller.

The national and Western champion, H. Chandler Egan, was not in his usual good form, and took 168 strokes to negotiate the thirty-six holes. This, however, enabled him to get well within the list of thirty-two qualifiers for the first round of match play to-morrow.

Twenty-eight clubs, from Chicago to Denver, on the west, Pittsburg to the east, and Nashville on the south, were represented in the field of players. Following are the thirty-two that qualified:

Guy A. Miller, Detroit; W. E. Clow, Jr., Onwentsia; R. E. Hunter, Middletown; W. K. Wood, Homewood; Walter E. Egan, Easton; Joseph Phelps, Middletown; D. E. Sawyer, Wheaton; H. C. Fagan, Elmhurst; W. Lawhead, Minikahda; W. C. Pownall, Pittsburg; G. A. Stanley, Cleveland; Vernon J. James, Glen View; E. N. Cutting, Westwood; H. T. Boyd, Milwaukee; K. L. Ames, Glen View; H. J. Weston, Homestead; J. E. James, Elmhurst; B. H. Martin, Jackson Park; Charles Baker, Auburn Park; John D. Towne, Glen View; Morris Bokum, Glen View; R. Cole, Detroit; Ralph Howard, Hinsdale; A. Egan, Glen View; R. D. Bokum, Glen View; J. N. Greer, Minikahda.

As a result of the draw for the first round H. Chandler Egan is in the upper half, while Walter E. Egan is in the lower half. Miller is in the half with Egan. The draw is as follows:

Towne vs. Martin, Miller vs. Baker, Ames vs. Fairbanks, Robert E. Miller vs. Hoagland, Cole vs. Chandler Egan, Wood vs. Hunter, Cutting vs. Boyd, Fowles vs. R. E. Hunter, Phelps vs. James, Glen View vs. E. N. Cutting, Westwood vs. H. T. Boyd, Milwaukee vs. K. L. Ames, Glen View vs. H. J. Weston, Homestead vs. J. E. James, Elmhurst vs. B. H. Martin, Jackson Park vs. Charles Baker, Auburn Park vs. John D. Towne, Glen View vs. Morris Bokum, Glen View vs. R. Cole, Detroit vs. Ralph Howard, Hinsdale vs. A. Egan, Glen View vs. R. D. Bokum, Glen View vs. J. N. Greer, Minikahda.

Towne vs. Martin, Miller vs. Baker, Ames vs. Fairbanks, Robert E. Miller vs. Hoagland, Cole vs. Chandler Egan, Wood vs. Hunter, Cutting vs. Boyd, Fowles vs. R. E. Hunter, Phelps vs. James, Glen View vs. E. N. Cutting, Westwood vs. H. T. Boyd, Milwaukee vs. K. L. Ames, Glen View vs. H. J. Weston, Homestead vs. J. E. James, Elmhurst vs. B. H.
