

NEW FIGHT OF TRENTON Question of Who Fought Town Revived by Tablet.

(By Telegraph to the Tribune.) Trenton, Feb. 25.—Local historians and historical societies about here have been thrown into confusion by Edwin Robert Walker, one of the best known lawyers in the city, who has publicly challenged the assertion that William Trent was the founder of Trenton. This distinction is claimed by Mr. Walker for one of his ancestors, Mahlon Stacy, who was an associate justice of the New Jersey Supreme Court, of which William Trent was Chief Justice.

The predicament in which Mr. Walker has placed many of his friends by his unhappy declaration is accentuated by the fact that during the Washington Birthday observances last week a mural tablet in honor of the alleged founder, William Trent, was unveiled with impressive ceremony at Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church.

Bishop Coleman of the Delaware presented, and Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution brushed elbows with stately representatives of five chapters of Colonial Dames and other distinguished organizations which had united to honor the memory of "Founder" Trent. There is not a Dame in Trenton to-day, however, who does not join in the sentiment that Mr. Walker is too mean for anything.

Mr. Walker has offered a mass of historical evidence to show that his ancestor, Mahlon Stacy, settled here in 1674, while Trent did not come to the country till 1682, purchasing from Walker a plantation of 800 acres where the city now stands and which was then a growing community known as Little Worth.

The name was subsequently changed to Trent town, and finally to Trenton. The tablet put up last week bears the following inscription: To the memory of William Trent, Chief Justice of New Jersey, founder of the city of Trenton, a distinguished churchman, died December 23d, 1734, Erected by his great-great-granddaughter, Anna Russell, a communicant of this parish, 1906.

"I move," said Mr. Walker, in commenting on the tablet, "to amend the tablet erected on Thursday in Trinity Church by striking out the line which reads, 'founder of the city of Trenton,' and to insert in lieu and instead thereof a new line, to read, 'for whom the city of Trenton was named.' If this resolution should not be passed, then I will take into consideration the advisability of presenting a rival tablet, so to speak, to the Friends Meeting House, where so many of my ancestors were wont to worship, bearing the following inscription:

In memory of Mahlon Stacy, Associate Justice of New Jersey, founder of the city of Trenton, a distinguished member of the Society of Friends, erected by his great-great-grandson, Edwin Robert Walker, 1906.

Mr. Walker facetiously added: I am in the saddle with my visor down, my lance couched and the bridle firmly in my grasp, awaiting the onslaught of any champion of the house of Trenton who may desire to enter the lists and combat me on this question.

TO ACT ON REPORT TO-NIGHT.

Democratic Club Committee Wants Organization to Drop Peanut Politics.

At the monthly meeting of the Democratic Club tonight the report of the special committee of one appointed by President Fox last fall to consider the feasibility of "nationalizing" the club will come up for consideration. Many members of the club think that its scope should be so widened as to allow it to take a leading place in national politics. This, it is urged, would make it the national Democratic headquarters. William Pitt Mitchell is chairman of the committee. As stated in the Tribune on Saturday, there is trouble in the club over the question of nationalizing the club. President Roosevelt on government regulation of railway rates. Some of the members object to any order for a Republican caucus, and expect that there will be a long discussion of the report at the meeting.

ONE LIFE LOST AT MONCTON.

Body Found in Ruins of Intercolonial Railway Shops—Works to Be Rebuilt.

Moncton, N. B., Feb. 25.—While workmen to-day were looking over the ruins of the Intercolonial railway shops, which were burned last night, they found the body of a man. An inspection of the roll of employees shows that a painter named Abraham Jones is missing. As far as is known this was the only casualty. An inspection of the list of property destroyed shows that the total loss is $1,000,000. The Canadian government, which owns the railroad, carried no insurance. The private of the Intercolonial, which is a branch of the Canadian Pacific, was first insured by Henry R. Emerson, Minister of Railways, says that the burned buildings will be replaced with better structures.

SLICER FOR MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Not to Be Settled by Votes, But by History, He Believes.

The Rev. Thomas R. Slicer advocated municipal ownership in an address on the "Fetters of Today" at a meeting held by the West Side Young Men's Christian Association at the Majestic Theatre yesterday. Mr. Slicer said that this important question was not to be settled by votes, but by history. He stood for the possession by the people of every natural monopoly, and that the franchisees that render it possible, he declared, "I can't be led by Mr. Hearst or any one associated with him, but by economic forces."

CAR JUMPS SWITCH—SEVERAL HURT.

Conductor Thrown to Street—Brake Knocks Motorman Unconscious.

Passengers on a Ralph-ave. trolley car were more or less injured when the car left the tracks at the switch at St. John's Place crossing, Brooklyn, last night. The motorman and conductor of the car were so badly hurt that they were removed to St. Mary's Hospital, after they were attended by Dr. Cronin. The car was on its way to East New York, and as it was about to swing around the track struck the point of the switch, throwing it on the opposite rail.

KENYON CADETS' BODIES FOUND.

Gambier, Ohio, Feb. 25.—The bodies of James J. Fuller, Warren, Ohio; J. E. Henderson, Farm Ridge, Ill.; and Winfield Scott Kunkle, Astabula, Ohio, charred almost beyond recognition, were found this afternoon in the ruins of the Kenyon Military Academy. They were the cadets who were missing yesterday. The injured cadets are improving and no more deaths are expected. The Deputy State Fire Marshal had little headway in his investigation of the fire, which is thought, was caused by spontaneous combustion. The probably ignited spontaneously.

POLICEMAN HURT BY HIS OWN PISTOL.

Police station, W. Lake, attached to the Elizabeth Irving, while on special duty yesterday, was accidentally shot in the Whitehall Building. His revolver fell from his trousers pocket and was discharged, a bullet entering his chest and was removed to the Hudson Street Hospital and the missile extracted.

BIG FIGHT TO GET N. Y. C. FREIGHT.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 25.—On March 1 the Louisville office of the New York Central fast freight lines, after being a fixture in Louisville for forty years, will be relocated and the business of the line will be transacted in the freight office of the Big Four Railroad. At the same time the Louisville office of the New York Central, Ohio, and Company, which has been in the hands of the Big Four Railroad, will be expected that the office in Indianapolis will also be moved to the business turned over to the Big Four office.

WILL SERVE CATALO AT DINNER.

Hybrid Animal, Weighing 2,480 Pounds, Will Grace Canadian Camp's Board.

A catalo, the new hybrid of the buffalo and domestic cattle, is to be served whole at the Canadian Camp dinner to-night at the Hotel Astor. This animal is said to surpass in rarity Prince Henry's two-horned rhinoceros, Lieutenant Peary's spiral eared Arctic moose or Grover Cleveland's Adirondack bear, which the club and its guests have sampled at previous dinners. A portion of the catalo, it is announced, was served at a private dinner in the White House several weeks ago. The catalo was killed December 12 by Colonel Jones on the northern end of Montana, close to British Columbia. There will be nearly four hundred at the annual dinner of the club to-night. The catalo weighs 2,480 pounds, and will be from the dining room by six cooks and served from a platter especially constructed. The hide, which is valued at $1,200, is to be presented to Prince Henry of Prussia.

ELMENDORF LECTURES ON "AFRICA."

Greeted by Crowded House at Carnegie Hall Last Evening.

Dwight Elmendorf, despite the inclement weather, delivered the first of a new series of lectures at Carnegie Hall last night before an audience that filled the house. His subject was "Africa." The lecture was illustrated with telephotographs in color and motion pictures, which were frequently applauded. Mr. Elmendorf conducted his audience on a tour that started at Hohenheim, stopping first at Algiers, then giving a peep into the garden of a harem. From this place of queer people and queer scenes he led the way to Tunis. The lecturer showed some colored pictures of mosaics that were laid centuries ago and have recently been discovered in Algiers and Tunis. Some of these specimens were found buried a few feet below the ground and were parts of ancient tombs.

In the course of the lecture Mr. Elmendorf called attention to the capable French military government maintained at Algiers and incidentally expressed the hope that France would conquer Morocco, but there was no applause to greet this sentiment.

"Holland" will be the subject of the third Elmendorf lecture, which takes place at Carnegie Hall this afternoon.

BOY KILLED BY WEDDING COACH.

Owner's Son Was Driving When Accident Occurred—Man on Box Escapes.

Philip Sterling, five years old, was run over and almost instantly killed by a carriage on its way to a wedding in East New York yesterday afternoon. The carriage was being driven by Max Shapiro, the ten-year-old son of Wolf Shapiro, of No. 181 Watkins-st., the owner of the vehicle. Nearly a dozen people were in the carriage, and they became alarmed when they saw the boy running across the road. The carriage was thrown over the side of the road, and the boy was killed. The driver, Max Shapiro, escaped with only a few bruises.

TWO GUARDSMEN COME CROPPERS.

Squadron C Riders Thrown from Their Horses and Badly Bruised.

John Keegan, of Bay Ridge, and Ernest Brower, of No. 1,084 Park Place, Brooklyn, members of Squadron C, were both thrown from their horses, yesterday afternoon, and severely bruised. Brower is a son of ex-Park Commissioner George E. Brower. Keegan was thrown in Prospect Park while trying to mount his horse running away. Brower was already mounted, and followed Keegan's horse. At Myrtle and North Portland aves. Brower's horse slipped, and he was thrown on his face. Keegan's horse was caught by a policeman. Brower, limping, led his horse to the army, and was then taken home in a cab, badly bruised about the face and head. Keegan was bruised on the right side.

OLD UPTOWN BUILDING COLLAPSES.

A house which for many years has been a landmark in West 152d-st., near Broadway, collapsed last night, as a result of the heavy rains of yesterday, and nothing was left of the building but a heap of boards. The date of its erection is unknown. Workmen have been digging a deep excavation next to the building, and it is suspected that the foundations were undermined.

MOVE AGAINST CUNARD LINE.

Rumor that Hamburg-American Will Make Liverpool a Port of Call.

London, Feb. 25.—The "Daily Telegraph" correspondent at Liverpool, in a dispatch published this morning, refers to a persistent though unconfirmed report that the Hamburg-American Steamship Company contemplates making Liverpool a port of call for inward and outward traffic, and says he thinks it may be an attempt in connection with the quarrel over the Hungarian emigrant traffic to carry the war into the camp of the Cunard Line.

BRITISH IMMIGRANTS IN CANADA.

Forty Families Arrive at St. John Under the Rothschild Plan.

St. John, N. B., Feb. 25.—Forty immigrant families, sent from England to Canada by Lord Rothschild arrived here to-day on the Canadian Pacific Railway steamer Lake Champlain on the way to Ontario, where places await the heads of the families. The party numbered 181.

CARED FOR TRAMPS FORTY YEARS.

Unique Charity by Mother of Congressman Talbot, of Maryland.

Baltimore, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Temperance Ellen Talbot, the mother of Congressman J. F. C. Talbot, who died yesterday at the age of ninety-one years, was well known for her charities. She also had implicit faith in the honesty of "hoboes." No tramp or beggar was ever turned away hungry from her large estate on the Northern Central Railway, near Lutherville, Baltimore County. For nearly forty years the "knights of the road" who stopped at the gates always obtained a good meal, and in cold or stormy weather a place to rest and sleep. Mrs. Talbot had bunks constructed in one of the large barns, which were kept filled with clean straw for the accommodation of the tramps. In the morning the farm hands started them on their way with breakfast and frequently a nicely prepared luncheon for their next meal. In all these years Mrs. Talbot never had anything stolen or damaged by tramps on her farm.

GENERAL THOMAS J. WOOD DEAD.

Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 25.—Major General Thomas J. Wood, a native of Kentucky, a graduate of West Point in 1846 and a fighter in the Mexican, Indian and Civil wars, died at his home in this city this afternoon, at the age of eighty-two years. He had been in bed since Christmas suffering from the infirmities of age. He was on General Zachary Taylor's staff in the Mexican War and was promoted to a captaincy of the first cavalry in 1847 for gallant conduct during the campaign. He commanded a division in the Civil War and was wounded at the battle of Stone River and again at the siege of Atlanta. General Wood was retired in 1868 and has resided in this city since. He was a member of the Board of Visitors of the Military Academy under President Cleveland, and in 1902 delivered an address at West Point to survivors of the battle of Gettysburg. His funeral will take place at West Point on Wednesday.

LIGHTSHIP AGAIN AT ANCHOR.

Newport, R. I., Feb. 25.—Unable to find the station buoy on account of fog, the Nantucket Shoals Lightship, reported by wireless to-day that she had been obliged to anchor on Philips Bank, about twelve miles northeast of her station. The lightship went adrift about midnight on Thursday last during a heavy northeast storm.

HITS BUSINESS METHODS.

Dr. Abbott Attacks Money Grasping Tendency.

(By Telegraph to the Tribune.) Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 25.—Dr. Lyman Abbott scathingly attacked American business methods in a sermon before a large audience of Harvard students in Appleton Chapel here this evening. Dr. Abbott said in part: The portraits of all the pickpockets of the country do not hang in the rogues' gallery. The pictures of the biggest pickpockets of the country are not to be found there. The man who takes money which he has not honestly earned from the pockets of the people at the gambling table, or in the speculator's shop, or in the industry in which young children are ground up in the sweatshop to supply cheap goods, is far more a robber than the petty thief in the streets. In the life of the baby-stealer, the young man in college who recognizes thieves are made for the baby, the child and the collegian, but when the young man leaves college and enters business this whole order and our American people seem to accept as a truth that man was made for them, and that the measure of a man is the amount of money that he can make. Money is the greatest evil of our time, but it is true of many and many of our people no one can doubt. If we are to accept it as true, lets us change the stars in our flag to dollar and not to thirteen stripes and thirteen stars.

"Be successful, honestly if you can, but be successful." Is money always a badge of character? I was recently talking with a noted lawyer in New York who told me that for a large number of wrong and immoral methods of business practiced in New York City to a large extent there was no punishment on the statutes of law in that place. The law was made twenty years ago and since then both the law and crime have increased, but crime has outstripped the law. Can it be said that money, the badge of ability to take the life of the baby, the child, the illegals and that illegal, is a sign of character?

TAKEN FOR $4,000 THEFT.

Man Accused of Daylight Robbery Brought from Boston.

Boston, Feb. 25.—Emmanuel Brodey was taken to New York to-day by officers from that city to answer a charge of stealing silverware, valued at $4,000, from the store of Schumann's Sons, in Broadway, on November 12. Brodey was arrested here several days ago.

FOR CITY AMBULANCES.

St. Luke's Superintendent Also Wants Receiving Stations.

It is suggested by the Rev. George F. Clover, superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital, that it might be a good thing for the city to take charge of all the public ambulance work. The suggestion was made when his attention was called to the article in the Tribune yesterday on the lack of system in the hospitals in the city and the abuses that arise from the present ambulance system. St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

MINIATURE ALMANAC.

Sunrise 6:58 Sunset 5:40 Moon's phase 8:50 Moon's age 3 1/2

INCOMING STEAMERS.

TO-DAY.

From. Line. Vessel. Arrive. From. Line. Vessel. Arrive.

OUTGOING STEAMERS.

TO-DAY.

Vessel. For. Line. Mails close. Vessel. For. Line. Mails close.

SHIPPING NEWS.

Port of New-York, Sunday, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

ARRIVED.

Steamer New-York, Roberts, Southampton and Cherbourg, New-York, Feb. 25, 1906.

Dr. Stuedel's

Anti-Septic

Creme Dentifrice

Tooth Powder

Elixir Balm

Used by the Elite of the World Since 1850.

FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

CANDY KILLED CHILD.

Coroner Harburger May Order Arrest of Those Who Sold It.

Coroner Harburger ordered last night an autopsy performed on the body of Vivian Bello, a child, who died at her home, No. 414 West 52d-st., yesterday afternoon, from poisoning. The coroner asserts that poisoned candy, which the child ate on Friday night, caused her death, and he said that arrests will likely be made to-day. Vivian celebrated her sixth birthday on Friday. Her stepfather, Harry Thompson, took her out to buy her some presents in the evening, and while passing a confectionery store on 9th-ave, the child asked him to buy her a bag of candy. He did so, and Vivian ate several sticks of the candy, and a few minutes later was taken sick. Dr. John McAlpin was summoned, and discovering that the child had been poisoned informed the coroner's office. After a thorough investigation the coroner intimated that he would probably order the arrest of the proprietor of the candy store and also the manufacturer.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.

St. Luke's Hospital has a public ambulance service, which he believes that the voluntary hospitals with such a service do all they possibly can. It is, of course, impossible for such institutions to keep incurable cases, to the exclusion of those suffering from acute diseases or in need of surgical treatment. It thus becomes necessary to transfer patients to the public institutions. I think it would be a good idea for the city to have charge of all the ambulances and establish a system of receiving stations throughout the city, where the patients could be taken, and from which they could be sent to such hospitals as were able to receive them.