

NO CONCERT ARRESTS.

Police Censors Many, but Sunday Shows are Unmolested.

Undismayed by the importation of the police censors from Brooklyn, the managers of the various showhouses of Manhattan who offer "faded" concerts on the Sabbath gave their regular performances last night. None of the special dramatic critics discovered any more violations of the Sunday law than the regular bluecoated observers, and neither did the managers make any special concessions to their probably stricter and more provincial taste. It was reported last night, however, that several of the men had not been able to decide whether a knee length skirt constituted a violation, and would make special reports to the Commissioner, and if he decided that the act was against the law they would ask for a summons. In Brooklyn eight showhouses opened, and no violations were reported against them.

The only arrest of the sort made was by three agents of the Children's Society, who raided the Union Square Roller Skating Rink, at No. 46 East 10th street, gathering in a number of children, Herbert Barnum Seely as one of the alleged proprietors, the same Seely who acquired notoriety some years ago by a lively dinner party. The agents took seven girls and one boy, ranging in age from twelve to fifteen years, to the rooms of the society. The cashier was also placed under arrest. The raid was made under the provisions of the statute which makes it a misdemeanor to admit minors unaccompanied by an adult to a place of amusement where an admission fee is charged.

At all the show houses the number of plain clothes men were doubled. While the managers did not feel happy at this action of the police, only one house in the entire city of those generally open on Sundays was closed. That was Miners', at No. 145 West 11th street, where the Italian actor Antonio Majori has been giving Italian opera at popular prices. A card in Italian said that tickets for last night's show would be accepted at any other performance. The theatres had hit by the sudden police activity were the Daxer, the New Circle and the Gotham burlesque houses, where all scene shifting, make-up, acrobatic acts and costumes were abolished for the day, and only singing and monologue acts put on. This caused probably a thousand people to stay away, according to the management. The general manager of the Union Theatre Company, which controls these houses, is George F. Kraus. He said last night:

This curtailing of the pleasure of the people who visit Sunday performances is unwise and unjust. It is a mistake to suppose that the police are so strict to this whole city what every one else shall do. It is not reasonable to expect that we should have their way. It is just our business and will hurt us more, but the people will have what they want in the end.

Ted Marks, who runs the Sunday concerts at the American Theatre, said that he would distribute tickets in every vaudeville house this week, and ask people to vote for or against the Sunday concert. He does not anticipate any adverse vote worth counting.

At the American Theatre, the acrobatic features were left off the bill, but the usual scenery and make-up were used, ex-Judge Dittmer having announced for the day, that he would not appear at the Grand Opera House, that these did not constitute a violation.

At the Daxer and Keith houses, too, there were no acrobatic acts, although at least one is generally on the bill. The New York Theatre, at No. 145 West 11th street, having closed for Sunday performances a week ago.

It was learned last evening that there is a movement on foot, that has already gained considerable headway among prominent singing societies and social clubs, to petition the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen for a more liberal interpretation of the Sunday concert law. Prominent members of the Liederkreis, the Harmonic Society, the Harmonic Club and numerous athletic clubs have initiated the movement. A meeting of the organizers was held last Tuesday, and it is expected that a petition of a million names will be on the petition when it is presented to the Mayor.

SAY WOMAN PASSED BAD CHECK.

Mrs. Bolch, Held Here, Accused of Using Depew's Forged Name in Capital.

Mrs. Catherine J. Bolch, who was arrested on Saturday night on complaint of Mrs. Ray H. Hazen, of No. 61 West 12th street, charged with passing a bad check for $500, which was signed by her, was held in $200 bail in Jefferson Market court yesterday morning for examination to-morrow. The police say she is a woman who has been looking for several years, they declare she has been under the name of Mrs. Bolch, an engineer of the Panama Railway Steamship Company, who said she had not lived with her for several months.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Washington, Dec. 2.—Mrs. Catherine Bolch, alias Berger, was arrested in this city April 5 last. She gave her address as No. 219 West 17th street, New York. She was arrested at the request of the New York authorities and the records at Police Headquarters show that she was returned to New York. It is said that she was arrested in connection with the passing of checks to which, it was alleged, the name of Senator Depew was forged. A girl, who was represented as the daughter of Mrs. Bolch, was also arrested. The other girl and daughter occupied a room in a house in 6th street at the time. The daughter was released a few days after her arrest, it is said, and she was thought to have returned to New York with her mother.

TO RUSH GILLETTE CASE

Regular Supreme Court Session Awaits End—May Come To-day.

Herkimer, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The jury which is to determine whether Charles Gillette murdered Grace Brown, his youthful sweetheart, expects to receive the case to-morrow. Judge Devendorf has said that he will, if necessary, hold a night session in order to dispose of the case, which has occupied the attention of the court for three weeks of a special term, and which will delay for a day, at least, the business of the regular term of the Supreme Court, which opens to-morrow. The regular session will be called during a brief recess in the Gillette trial in the forenoon and adjournment immediately taken until the present trial is finished.

The murder case will be resumed promptly at 9 o'clock, and the attorneys promise to close up any incomplete evidence in the first half hour. The summing up of District Attorney Ward for the State and of ex-Senator Mills for the defense will be brief, but the court purposes to charge the jury before final adjournment for the day is taken. The prosecution will allege that Gillette murdered his companion when her condition was such that only a speedy marriage, sought by the girl, but unobtainable, could prevent a public scandal. On behalf of the boy prisoner, who in the absence of his family has faced his accusers alone, ex-Senator Mills will argue that realizing her condition and her lover's attitude toward her, Grace Brown determined to end her troubles by suicide. Interest through the trial has been intense, but few more than ever are anticipated for to-morrow. Many more have sought accommodations than can possibly secure admission to the courtroom.

Whatever opinion may have been formed as to the guilt, or innocence of Gillette, none of the spectators at the trial pretends to understand him. To-night, in his prison cell, he was reported to be in good spirits. The ordeal of the witness stand, through which he passed with almost seeming indifference, left traces on his face, but his keepers have said that the drawn and worried expression when the youth is locked up. In his cell, he is said at times to sing and dance.

BUTCHERS TO APPEAL TO PRESIDENT.

East Side Meat Dealers Protest Against "Meat Trust High Prices."

At a meeting of the Retail Butchers' Association of the East Side, yesterday, a resolution was passed giving the "meat trust" until Wednesday to come to an understanding about a reduction in the price of meat. A committee was appointed to confer with the "trust." If no agreement is reached the retailers say they will close every meat shop on the East Side on Thursday.

It was also decided to appeal to President Roosevelt to start an investigation and find out why the trust is continually raising prices.

The butchers said that soup meat which formerly sold by wholesale at 6 and 8 cents a pound was now selling at 10 cents. Chuck steak, known as "poor man's steak," which is regarded as the cheapest steak known, has been raised, they say, from 6 and 8 cents a pound wholesale to 10 cents, and other kinds have been raised in proportion. Louis Kirsh, president of the Retail Butchers' Association, made the following statement after the meeting:

We will give the trust until Wednesday to reduce the price, and if they refuse to do so we will hold a strike on Thursday. If the prices are not lowered, the trust will be held responsible for the loss of the meat. The prices have been continually going up, and we refuse to take the blame from the shoulders of the consumer. It is not a substantial reduction in the wholesale prices so as to enable us to sell at lower prices four thousand retail butchers will strike against the trust.

It was also decided to appeal to President Roosevelt to order a right investigation as to why the prices are raised and compel the trust to keep within the law. We will also request him to ask the newspapers to co-operate with him in forcing the trust to obey the law.

SOCIAL CONGRESS ENDS.

Addresses by Mr. Long, Dr. Hall and Archbishop O'Connell.

Boston, Dec. 2.—Three addresses on the education of the conscience, delivered before a large audience at the Colonial Theatre, brought to a close this evening the three days' session of the Social Education Congress.

The speakers to-night were the Rev. William J. Long, of Stamford, Conn., whose subject was "Nature's Message to Moral Educators"; G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark University, Worcester, who spoke on "Conscience from the Standpoint of Health"; and the Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, Catholic Archbishop Coadjutor of Boston, whose address was on "The Aspect of Conscience." Like other meetings during the congress, the attendance was very large, and thousands of teachers followed carefully the remarks of all the speakers.

Mr. Long's address was listened to with great attention, especially his descriptions of what he called the moral side of animals. Dr. Hall held up honor as the greatest attribute to be instilled in the young mind, while Archbishop O'Connell emphasized the great work which the Roman Catholic Church had done for education. Professor James P. Munroe presided.

Mr. Long said that man seemed to be the only creature who was immoral. He held, however, that the child was born a moral animal. He said that education was the leading out into the light and not the packing in. He disclaimed the belief in the doctrine that all living things had to fight for existence, and cited many instances where animals had dwelt peaceably together, notably the wolves. He admitted that much depended on the food supply, and said that this applied to man as well as beast. The beastliness of man, the envy and greed aroused by the setting up of wealth against poverty, gluttony and drunkenness and sexual vice. He said that none of these were found in the animal kingdom, except in men and monkeys. Animal instincts were good and pure and man's immorality was his own invention. He declared the struggle for individualism, and said that the message of nature was mutual co-operation and common brotherhood.

DIES AT TURKISH BATH.

Amityville Man Found Dead in Midst of Sleeping and Lounging Patrons.

Frederick Wiswall, thirty years old, of Amityville, Long Island, died from heart disease yesterday at the Murray Hill baths, in West 42d street, near Sixth avenue. His death was not discovered until an attendant tried to arouse him. A score of men were sleeping or lounging on the couches all about the dead man.

Dr. Auchenloss, of Roosevelt Hospital, who was called, said that Wiswall had been dead about two hours before the fact was discovered. Coroner Dooley issued a permit, and the body was removed to the West 67th street station.

His brother, Percy Rockefeller, will also stock a large garage.

SEEK TO CLOSE STORES EARLY.

Miss Helen Phelps Stokes, a sister of J. G. Phelps Stokes, and Miss Mary R. Stamford, visited the Central Federated Union yesterday. They were there as a committee from the Consumers' League. They explained that their mission was to ask the union to close the stores early during the Christmas holidays. The proprietors of some of the larger stores, they said, had promised to try to get their customers to do the bulk of their Christmas shopping before December 15, so that during the Christmas holidays their employees would have to work overtime. The Central Federated Union decided to co-operate in the movement.

BURNHAM TRIAL CONTINUES TO-DAY.

William Rand, defendant's counsel, at to-day's trial will announce his decision as to whether he will make James H. Wilber a witness for Magistrate W. H. in the Jefferson Market court. The prosecution offered on Friday to permit this line of cross-examination.

FREIGHT WRECK TIES UP B. & O.

"Side Swiping" Collision Blocks Main Line for Several Hours.

Baltimore, Dec. 2.—A "side swiping" collision of freight trains on the Baltimore & Ohio at Carroll switch, near Blue Top Ridge, this morning delayed traffic on the main line, between Baltimore and Washington, for some hours. An engineer and fireman barely saved their lives by jumping.

One locomotive and eleven freight cars and gondolas were smashed, and the truck and roadbed torn up. The loss is about $25,000. A force of two hundred men with Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania wrecking engines cleared away the wreckage by this evening. During the day passenger trains east and west were sent over the single track Montclare cut-off.

MATTOX TELLS STORY.

Says Operator at End of Block Told Him It Was Clear.

Lenchburg, Va., Dec. 2.—G. D. Mattox, the operator who is charged by officials of the Southern Railway with being responsible for Thursday's wreck, near here, made a statement to-day supplementing the story of yesterday with his day passenger train east and west were sent over the single track Montclare cut-off. Mattox says he remained home all day, staying for the station at 6 p. m. to report for duty, but found "a large crowd congregated outside (the tower), and I concluded it would be best not to go in the office. After that I returned home and slept the night through." He says he can prove by Mattox and a student operator that he did not give No. 37 a clear block until lawyers gave him authority, adding: "When No. 37 had entered the block, lawyers told me that No. 37 was by, and when I asked him the time, so I could record it, he opened his key and did not reply. No. 37 had gone back."

WANT REVENUE CUTTER.

Pound Fishermen Ask U. S. Government for Protection.

Seabright, Dec. 2.—Matters are becoming serious in the warfare between the pound and line fishermen along this section of the coast. Tuesday is now looked upon as a day when things are likely to happen.

Stewart Cook, a pound man, has a big pole on the beach at the foot of one of the main thoroughfares. It is used to support tackle to drag heavily laden fish boats through the surf. It is said to be on public property and an obstruction. Thirty line men asked by petition for its removal, and Mayor John W. Eyles ordered it.

Mr. Cook replied that he would raise with force, if needful, any effort to remove the pole. Mayor Eyles has extended the time for the removal until Tuesday, and says that on that day it must come down. Mr. Cook says it will come down until the whole fishery business has been thrashed out in court. A large part of the voters are line men, and it is thought the Mayor will try to carry out their wishes. Eyles ordered it.

Mr. Cook has demanded police protection for himself, his workmen and his property, and says that the latter has been damaged and that his life and those of his men have been threatened. The Mayor will try to carry out their wishes. Eyles ordered it.

FARMER CATCHES SEVEN-FOOT EAGLE.

Somerville, N. J., Dec. 2.—Cl. P. Fosker, a farmer living near the Sourland Mountain, ten miles from here, brought to this place last night a golden eagle measuring seven feet from tip to tip, which he caught in a trap set in his backyard for a chick which had recently been carrying off his chickens and lambs. The eagle made a brave fight before it was subdued. It was brought here alive and turned over to a taxidermist. This is the first eagle captured in Central New Jersey in many years.

The Wanamaker Museum Of ANTIQUES Exhibition and Sale. THE opening of our Museum of Antiques, on the Fifth floor of the Stewart Building, adjoining the French Revolution Show, is a most interesting new departure. It presents not only the opportunity to see a collection of beautiful objets d'art of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries, and still earlier periods, such as has probably never been surpassed in New York, in magnitude and value, but also to possess these unusual things at prices based upon a fair commercial valuation. The collection includes a number of rich specimens of ecclesiastical embroidery—a group of Russian Icons, or saints' pictures, for example, of the Fourteenth Century, that are extremely rare; and altar frontals, chasubles and church banners that show remarkable work. There are two embroidered pictures, of the Seventeenth Century, representing Moses in the Wilderness, and Totila, King of the Ostrogoths, received by Pope Benedict of Rome; the embroidery being done in gold and silver with decorations of coral and pearls, and the flesh tints painted on satin—most extraordinary specimens. There are numerous wood carvings—two cherubs, for instance, of considerable size, showing remarkable modeling and the work of an Italian master of the Sixteenth Century. Then there is an extremely rare carved wood pulpit, from a Bohemian church, Flemish work of the Seventeenth Century, showing St. John the Baptist, and Saints Willibrod and Boniface. There is an interesting collection of Paintings, of the Spanish, Italian and Dutch schools, including a superb "Assumption of the Virgin" attributed to Murillo, several still life paintings by W. Claes Heda, Sixteenth Century, and some fine triptychs of the early Flemish school. Some exquisite Mirrors, of the various Louis periods, are to be found in the collection—ones notably beautiful, containing an original medallion of the early Eighteenth Century, yet priced at but $500. The Museum is assuredly worth visiting, by all those who are interested in these things that are but too rarely seen in worthy examples; descriptive catalog, shortly to be issued, giving prices, will be sent free to those requesting it.

The Christmas Picture Store. In the new quarters, on the Ninth floor of the Wanamaker Building, our Picture Store presents a magnificent holiday display. Everything is new, perfect, beautiful, and the result of the most careful and extensive selection. There is a splendid assemblage of Oil Paintings by such artists as Arthur Parton, J. B. Bristol, H. P. Smith, G. Wiegand, T. B. Craig, and scores of others. All handsomely mounted in gold frames, and ranging in price from $50 to $500. There is an equally elaborate collection of Water Colors—the works of Carl Weber, George Colby, F. F. English, Henry Cadz, Francis Wheaton, and many more—in handsome gold frames at $25 to $250. The collection of Proof Etchings includes fine examples of the works of Jules Jacquet, L. Ruet, E. Chiquet, C. R. Dabney, and many more—handsomely framed, at $20 to $185. A very large collection of Fac-similes, Carbon Photographs, Photo-cyanotypes, Reproductions of old and modern masters—nicely framed, at 50c to $75. If you have pictures of your own that you wish to frame, our services are at your command. Orders for this work should be received promptly to avoid the last Christmas rush. Ninth floor, Wanamaker Building.

MAY BE AFTER MURPHY. Mayor Fagan Directs Raids Over Head of Jersey City Chief. That the official head of Chief of Police Murphy of Jersey City is marked for the guillotine seems to be the prevailing opinion in political circles of that city. It is also thought that Captains John F. Kelly, and Albert Cummings will have to answer charges. Saturday's raids on the bookmakers and policy shops were made over the heads of these officers, and it is believed that Mayor Fagan planned and directed all of them. He personally conducted the raid on the alleged policy headquarters. The Mayor declined to discuss the subject yesterday, but from an authoritative source it was learned that he has been working quietly for several weeks, conferring with his close advisers, Corporation Counsel Record, Judge Higgins and Detective Sergeant Monahan, who, from the time of his promotion from patrolman, has been assigned to duty in the Mayor's office.
