

CHESS GAME ADJOURNED LASKER LIKELY TO WIN.

Marshall's Position Hopeless in Eighth Contest for Title. Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—The eighth game of the championship chess match, played at the Franklin Chess Club in this city, between Dr. Emanuel Lasker and Frank J. Marshall, this afternoon and evening, was adjourned shortly after 10 o'clock. Play will be resumed to-morrow afternoon. Present score: Lasker, 3; Marshall, 0; drawn, 4; adjourned, 1. The ninth game will be played in this city on Thursday.

The game to-day proved interesting, and at one time Marshall appeared to have the stronger position. The fighting, however, in the end game stage, and when adjournment was taken on the forty-ninth move Marshall's game looked hopeless, and Lasker appeared to have another victory safely won.

A large number of chess players assembled at the clubroom to watch the eighth game of the match, it being the second of the series to be contested in this city. G. C. Bowers, of Chambersburg, Penn., a member of the Franklin Chess Club, who represented Pennsylvania in the interstate match against New York at Keuka Lake in 1898, was Lasker's second, while Dr. J. Benjamin Kopf, of Brooklyn, made a special journey to this city in order to act as Marshall's second. Walter Penn Shipley, who introduced the principals to the spectators, was the referee.

The game to-day proved interesting, and at one time Marshall appeared to have the stronger position. The fighting, however, in the end game stage, and when adjournment was taken on the forty-ninth move Marshall's game looked hopeless, and Lasker appeared to have another victory safely won.

The spectators were surprised at seeing Black in a French defense getting an attack at all, and to judge from the remarks of all the experts present the McCutcheon variation of this particular opening is likely to become popular in important chess encounters. This was the state of affairs after sixteen moves had been recorded.

Marshall next brought his queen's bishop into play, but it was thought that he should have played B-Q4 instead of the text move, B-K2. Subsequent analysis, however, failed to disclose any strong advantage Marshall could have had. He had adopted the B-Q4 variation, and none of the experts present were able to demonstrate a tactical advantage.

After an exchange of bishops and queens the fencing for position ensued, with the result that an open position was created. This Marshall had a double pawn on the king's bishop's file, but on the other hand, his pieces were somewhat better in position.

Lasker then tried to force matters by pushing his king's bishop's pawn, but subsequent play showed that this move was a blunder. Marshall had a twenty-ninth move was also criticized by the on-lookers, who thought that the champion ought to have played B-K2 instead of B-K3. On the other hand, Marshall's position was so cramped a nature that he could not afford to do with his king and queen's pawns.

After thirty-three moves had been recorded Lasker sealed his thirty-fourth move. Up to the moment when Lasker announced two hours and ten minutes to Marshall's two hours and ten minutes.

Play was resumed at 8 o'clock, and when Lasker's sealed move was made on the board, namely, R-K5, it became evident that the champion had the idea of forcing a king's pawn on the king's side and advancing his pawns on the queen's side. A few moves later the board presented a position which was decidedly in favor of Lasker. Marshall could not move either pieces of pawn to advantage.

Lasker kept pushing his pawns on the queen's side, but Marshall's king's knight moved on his thirty-third turn, namely, P-K3. On the other hand, Marshall's position was so cramped a nature that he could not afford to do with his king and queen's pawns.

Shortly afterward the game was adjourned. Marshall sealing his forty-ninth move. The moves in detail follow:
