

PEACE—NOT PERFECT.

DELEGATES ANNOYED.

Mrs. Belva Lockwood Tells "Common People" All About It.

Just to show how it could be done, two of the delegates to the Peace Congress got into a wrangle on the stage of Carnegie Hall yesterday morning when the question of the adoption of resolutions...

They were the result of sorting over a bale or two of theories from all points of the compass and all points of view by a committee, of which Dr. Benjamin F. Troubridge was chairman.

"Congressman Richard Barthold said that the reasons went further than those of the Inter-parliamentary Union in that they suggested that all international disputes should be submitted to the Hague.

Dr. Richards got the floor to say something that was burning in his mind. He wanted to say a word in defense of the German army."

Half a dozen persons presented resolutions from the floor, but it was not deemed practicable to add any of them to those the committee had brought in.

At the suggestion of Marcus M. Marks, the following committee was named to collect funds for the furtherance of the objects of the congress:

William J. Bryan got up to say he was glad the resolutions contained a clause looking to the submission to an international committee of inquiry...

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Peace Congress Advocates Making Hague Tribunal Permanent.

Resolutions adopted by the delegates of the National Arbitration and Peace Congress yesterday as a result of the three days' discussion of the best means for promoting universal peace advocate that the Hague Tribunal be made permanent, that it should be opened to all nations, and that the Hague Conference draft an arbitration treaty providing for the reference to the tribunal of international disputes.

The United States Government is requested to instruct its delegates to the Hague Conference to urge the consideration there of a decrease in the armaments of nations, to press the adoption of a proposition that private property at sea should have the same immunity from capture in war as now shelters private property on land, and to urge the formation of a more permanent international union for the maintenance of peace.

The proposition that an international committee of inquiry should be invoked in all disputes that cannot be settled by arbitration was endorsed.

A resolution of appreciation for the services of President Roosevelt in the interest of peace was adopted. Similar resolutions in appreciation of the work of Secretary Root and the Prime Minister of Great Britain along these lines were adopted.

Whereas, The nations, through the application of scientific invention and discovery to intercommunication and travel, have become members of one body, closely united by the ties of commerce, industry, and moral interests, and war in any part of the world immediately affects the interests of all nations, and undisturbed peace has become the necessary condition of the prosperity, wellbeing, and orderly progress of the world;

Whereas, The Hague Conference of 1899 made a great and unexpected advance toward the establishment of peace by the creation of a permanent court of arbitration for the judicial settlement of international disputes; and

Whereas, The principle of arbitration, having adjusted four controversies, in which nearly all the prominent powers were participants, has become an effective means of settling international disputes, though its operation is only voluntary; and

Whereas, The principle of international commissions, has provided for in the Hague Convention, has been applied to the settlement of the North Sea crisis; and

Whereas, Forty treaties of obligatory arbitration between nations, two and two, have been concluded, stipulating reference to the Hague Court for five years of all disputes arising in order and those arising in the interpretation of treaties; and

Whereas, Public opinion in favor of the pacific settlement of controversies has made extraordinary advances since the first Hague Conference, and recently, by the adoption of the present Peace Conference, has attained a practical potency and a moral authority undreamed of in 1899; and

Whereas, The nations, through the application of scientific invention and discovery to intercommunication and travel, have become members of one body, closely united by the ties of commerce, industry, and moral interests, and war in any part of the world immediately affects the interests of all nations, and undisturbed peace has become the necessary condition of the prosperity, wellbeing, and orderly progress of the world;

Resolved, That to this end it is the judgment of this congress that the government should provide that the Hague Conference shall hereafter be a permanent institution, representative of all the nations, meeting periodically for the regular and systematic consideration of the international relations of the nations, and that we invite our government to instruct its delegates to the coming conference to propose that the coming conference be held in the city of The Hague, and that the coming conference be held in the city of The Hague, and that the coming conference be held in the city of The Hague.

Resolved, That as a logical sequence of the first Hague Conference the Hague Court should be open to all the nations.

Resolved, That a general treaty of arbitration for ratification by all the nations should be drafted at the coming conference, providing for the reference to the Hague Court of international disputes which may hereafter arise, which cannot be adjusted by diplomacy.

Resolved, That the congress records its indorsement of the resolution adopted by the Inter-parliamentary Union at its conference last July, that in case of disputes arising between nations which it cannot be possible to embrace within the terms of an arbitration convention, the disputing parties, before resorting to force, shall always invoke the assistance of an international commission of inquiry or the mediation of one or more friendly powers.

Resolved, That our government be requested to extend to the coming Hague conference the adoption of the proposition, long advocated by our country, to extend to private property at sea the same immunity from capture in war as now shelters private property on land.

same immunity from capture in war as now shelters private property on land.

Resolved, That the distinguished services of the Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of State, to the cause of international peace and good will, during his recent visit to the South American capitals and to Canada, be accorded the grateful recognition of this congress.

Resolved, That we thank the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, for the noble stand which he has taken in favor of a settled policy of peace among the nations, and of a limitation of the military and naval armaments of the world.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent by a committee of three, to be appointed by the president of the congress, to President Roosevelt, to Secretary Root, and to each of the plenipotentiaries of the delegates to the forthcoming Hague conference.
