

Index to Advertisements.

Table listing various advertisements such as 'Agriculture', 'Automobiles', 'Business', 'Real Estate', etc., with corresponding page numbers.

New-York Daily Tribune

SUNDAY, APRIL 21, 1907.

THE NEWS THIS MORNING.

FOREIGN—The Colonial Conference in London agreed to change its name to Imperial Conference, to hold meetings every four years and to appoint a permanent staff of an imperial military organization.

DOMESTIC—The resignation of Archie D. Sanders, collector of internal revenue at Rochester, was received at the Treasury Department.

CITY—Stocks were dull, closing strong. Commissioner Bingham made four new captains and transferred two old ones.

THE NEW BRYAN PLATFORM.

According to the Hon. James C. Dahlgren, Nebraska's representative on the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Bryan is going to run for President next year on a greatly simplified platform.

LIMITATIONS OF ARBITRATION.

Mr. Bryce's philosophical reflections upon what might have been if the American colonies had not seceded from the British Empire contain in addition to their academic interest a certain vital and pertinent suggestion concerning the matter which has just been much to the fore and which presumably will be again considered authoritatively two months hence at The Hague.

COLLEGE CYNICS.

To many men who still fondly look back upon their four care-free college years with the rosy glasses of reminiscence, the remarks made by James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior, last Friday at the Alpha Delta Phi banquet will come as an unpleasant surprise.

Democratic party does not believe in the right of the people to govern themselves. It will have no difficulty in driving me out of the party.

That is a rock bottom and all-sufficing Democratic creed. The man who doesn't believe in the right of a democracy to govern itself ought not only to be driven out of the Democratic party, but also sent back to live under one of the "effete monarchies."

The citizens of a republic are, and of right ought to be, the masters of a republican form of government.

That is a platform alongside of which the whole Madison Square programme of last August looks sufficiently "ultimate."

POLICE REORGANIZATION.

General Bingham evidently intends to give the new police law a full and fair trial. He acts like a man thoroughly convinced of the value of the reforms he has urged and thoroughly determined to try them out without fear or favor.

The Tribune earnestly supported the police legislation of this session because it was convinced of the obsolescence and impracticability of the old system. Under the old order every encouragement was given to inertia and inaction.

The unconditioned backing of the politicians. Police administration became under this system a compact between those nominally required to suppress crime and those actively engaged in abetting it.

We hope to see this alliance broken up under the new arrangement. General Bingham has given many evidences of public spirit and of a sincere purpose to make the police perform their legitimate duties.

NATIONAL SANITATION.

There is room for much difference of opinion on the proposal to invest a national health officer with a secretaryship in the President's Cabinet. The weight of judgment will probably be against such a measure.

In some cases relief has been sought, and perhaps obtained, through appeal to the courts. But such a process is complicated, tedious and uncertain. An ideal solution of the problem would be found in uniformity of state sanitary laws, but that is scarcely to be expected.

THE TALK OF THE DAY.

An interesting case at law, which centered on the observance of an old Jewish custom, was decided in the Supreme Court yesterday.

THE MODERN MILKMAID.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" "I'm going to milk, sir," she said.

EDWARD H. PEPPE BRINGS SUIT.

Edward H. Peppé, author of "The Prince Charming" and other plays, began a suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against F. Ray Comstock to prevent him from producing Peppé's play, "The Hornet's Nest."

NEW LONGACRE SQUARE THEATRE.

M. S. Longacre is to build a theatre at the southeast corner of 46th street and Broadway, which was sold to a syndicate on Thursday for $1,000,000.

of disillusionment spread through the dormitories and fraternity houses, breeding a new race of cynics? Alas! Mr. Garfield is probably right.

But he has not told the whole story. When he remarked that the college man looks too much to the present and too little to the future Mr. Garfield summed up in a single charge against the student what should have been a dozen indictments against society, parents and educators.

Another University? The American passion for creating universities seems unquenchable. The latest plan is to revive George Washington's dream of a great national university at the capital.

You can't convince the police force of this city that New York lies outside the earthquake belt. The Daughters of the American Revolution adjourned yesterday at Washington after having given a creditable imitation of an enthusiastic peace conference.

After reading of Longboat's achievement at the Canadian Marathon race, it is hard to believe in the wisdom and foresight of nature. Why should a man from a small town be able to run twenty-five miles through dust, snow and sleet in record time, while thousands of suburbanites, with years of training, continue to puff at the end of a half-mile run for the train and to miss connections as well? The world's awry.

The Hon. Judson Harmon, of Ohio, is now being talked about as a Democratic Presidential candidate. He will probably stand on a platform of "harmony."

In the remarkable succession of widely distributed earthquakes reported last week an excuse can be found for suspecting that disturbances of that kind are more intimately related to one another than has yet been proved to be the case.

Forty families were thrown into a panic by a fire in one building, the "House of Babies," in Rivington street, Friday, and yet all the inmates escaped unharmed. There are yet so few ideal tenement houses on the East Side that a demonstration of the virtues of this one ought to exert a wholesome influence on landlords.

"Is your husband up yet?" inquired the early morning caller. "Well, I'd like to say a few words to him," replied the stern looking woman at the door.

The Monument, London's famous column, which, as Pope wrote, "like a bully lifts its tail and lies," is a source of profit to the City Corporation, says "The Pall Mall Gazette."

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" "I'm going to milk, sir," she said.

"Get a lactologist's license," she said.

Edward H. Peppé, author of "The Prince Charming" and other plays, began a suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against F. Ray Comstock to prevent him from producing Peppé's play, "The Hornet's Nest."

M. S. Longacre is to build a theatre at the southeast corner of 46th street and Broadway, which was sold to a syndicate on Thursday for $1,000,000.

Albert Hubbard, editor of "The Philistine," of East Aurora, N. Y., will repeat his lecture on "The Spirit of the Times," with variations, in Carnegie Hall, this evening.

About People and Social Incidents.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, April 20.—The President received a visit to-day from Leslie M. Shaw, who until a few weeks ago held the Treasury portfolio in his Cabinet. Mr. Shaw brought up a number of topics connected with political and financial matters and remained nearly half an hour.

Secretary Loeb said to-day that his newspaper men will be permitted to go to the White House and ask questions at night, they will not be allowed to return around to seek interviews with the visitors inside. The object of the rule, he said, is to discourage interference with White House visitors at night.

THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

Washington, April 20.—The Ambassador from Mexico and Señora Carrer will return to-morrow from New York, where they have spent the last week. The Ambassador from Great Britain and Mrs. Bryce returned to the embassy this afternoon from a visit of several days in New York and Philadelphia, where they were entertained constantly.

IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

Washington, April 20.—Hundreds of well known people witnessed the ball game this afternoon between members of the Chevy Chase Club and members of the Metropolitan Club, who, clad in white suits and wearing, respectively, chevrons of scarlet and blue, played for the benefit of the Federal Dispensary Hospital.

The wedding of Miss Constance Burlingame to Tracy Hoppin in St. James's Church, in Madison avenue, will take place Tuesday afternoon. The bride is a daughter of Edward Livingston Burlingame and a granddaughter of Anson Burlingame.

Many will mistake themselves to Cedarhurst on Saturday to attend the steeplechase meeting for gentlemen riders organized by the Rockaway Hunt Club. A week later, May 4, another meeting has been arranged by the Meadow Brook Club at Hempstead.

Among the arrivals from Europe this week will be Mrs. Anson Drexel, due here on Tuesday, to meet her sister, Mrs. James Henry Smith, who is expected here next week with the body of her husband and accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Manchester.

Major General and Mrs. Gillespie had dining with them to-night the Bishop of Washington and Mrs. Satterlee, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Newberry, Rear Admiral and Mrs. McGowan, Justice and Mrs. Anderson, General and Mrs. Fitzhugh, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson and General and Mrs. Kearney.

NEW YORK SOCIETY.

Jameson's tercentennial celebration will take a great number of delegates to Virginia toward the close of the week, and New York society will be largely represented at the festivities there.

The seventy-fifth annual convention of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity came to a close yesterday afternoon with a cruise off Manhattan Island on board the ferryboat Nassau, of the Long Island Railroad.

Delegates from the twenty-three colleges or universities represented, attended with many of the younger members of the fraternity. The Nassau sailed from the foot of West 42d street soon after 12 o'clock and went down the North River to the Battery and up the East River to Blackwell's Island.

Edward H. Peppé, author of "The Prince Charming" and other plays, began a suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against F. Ray Comstock to prevent him from producing Peppé's play, "The Hornet's Nest."

M. S. Longacre is to build a theatre at the southeast corner of 46th street and Broadway, which was sold to a syndicate on Thursday for $1,000,000.

Albert Hubbard, editor of "The Philistine," of East Aurora, N. Y., will repeat his lecture on "The Spirit of the Times," with variations, in Carnegie Hall, this evening.

leaving with crowded passenger lists, while others are transferring their headquarters to their country seats on Long Island, in Westchester County, along the Hudson River and in New Jersey. Tuxedo and Hempstead are just now at their best. Yet, in spite of this, there is no apparent diminution of the well dressed throngs on Fifth avenue in the fine afternoons.

Miss Gilliam Barr was married yesterday afternoon to Theodore Layton Bailey, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rufus Barr, in West 56th street. As the bridegroom was in mourning, there was no reception after the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Jocelyn Herle Evans, who were married about ten days ago, sailed yesterday on board the Campania for Liverpool. Mrs. Evans was Miss Blanche Ramsey.

Mr. Stephen H. P. Pell and several of his friends will act as patronesses and receive the guests at the dance which the Naval Militia of New York will give on Wednesday evening on board the United States warship Granite State.

The wedding of Miss Constance Burlingame to Tracy Hoppin in St. James's Church, in Madison avenue, will take place Tuesday afternoon. The bride is a daughter of Edward Livingston Burlingame and a granddaughter of Anson Burlingame.

Many will mistake themselves to Cedarhurst on Saturday to attend the steeplechase meeting for gentlemen riders organized by the Rockaway Hunt Club. A week later, May 4, another meeting has been arranged by the Meadow Brook Club at Hempstead.

Among the arrivals from Europe this week will be Mrs. Anson Drexel, due here on Tuesday, to meet her sister, Mrs. James Henry Smith, who is expected here next week with the body of her husband and accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Manchester.

Major General and Mrs. Gillespie had dining with them to-night the Bishop of Washington and Mrs. Satterlee, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Newberry, Rear Admiral and Mrs. McGowan, Justice and Mrs. Anderson, General and Mrs. Fitzhugh, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson and General and Mrs. Kearney.

The marriage of Miss Marcia Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Butler, to Edward Heald will take place on May 14 and will be a home wedding.

Beckman Winthrop, for several years Governor of Porto Rico and recently appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is expected to arrive in Washington on Tuesday. Mrs. Winthrop will accompany her husband here. They have both been guests at the White House several times and have also visited Senator Keen and his family, and are known to Washington socially. Mrs. Winthrop was Miss Wood, of New York.

Jameson's tercentennial celebration will take a great number of delegates to Virginia toward the close of the week, and New York society will be largely represented at the festivities there.

The seventy-fifth annual convention of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity came to a close yesterday afternoon with a cruise off Manhattan Island on board the ferryboat Nassau, of the Long Island Railroad.

Delegates from the twenty-three colleges or universities represented, attended with many of the younger members of the fraternity. The Nassau sailed from the foot of West 42d street soon after 12 o'clock and went down the North River to the Battery and up the East River to Blackwell's Island.

Edward H. Peppé, author of "The Prince Charming" and other plays, began a suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against F. Ray Comstock to prevent him from producing Peppé's play, "The Hornet's Nest."

M. S. Longacre is to build a theatre at the southeast corner of 46th street and Broadway, which was sold to a syndicate on Thursday for $1,000,000.

Albert Hubbard, editor of "The Philistine," of East Aurora, N. Y., will repeat his lecture on "The Spirit of the Times," with variations, in Carnegie Hall, this evening.