

MARK TWAIN AT CASTLE JESTING WITH ROYALTY.

Authentic Report of a Tacitful Conversation at Windsor.

London, June 22.—Mark Twain was the centre of attraction at the King's garden party at Windsor this afternoon, and besides meeting the King and the royal party shook hands with several hundred notable persons during the afternoon.

He was accompanied to Windsor by John Henniker Heaton, the "Father of Imperial Penny Postage," who introduced him to many of the King's guests on his way to the party, including Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Fridtjof Nansen, Sir Henry Mortimer Durand and Ellen Terry.

After tea, which was served on the lawns, Ambassador Reid presented Mark Twain to King Edward and Queen Alexandra, and the King and the humorist spent a quarter of an hour in conversation, the King laughing heartily at Mr. Clemens's jokes.

His majesty was very courteous. In the course of the conversation I reminded him of an episode sixteen years ago, when I had the honor to walk with him when he was taking the waters at Homburg.

His majesty intimated his willingness that I should continue to disseminate that piece of history, and added a compliment saying that he knew good and sound history would not suffer at my hands, and that if this good and sound history needed any improvements beyond the facts he would trust me to furnish those embellishments.

I think it is no exaggeration to say that the Queen looks as young and beautiful as she did thirty-five years ago, when I saw her first. I never saw for the first time a woman so young as never to say an obvious thing, but to leave an obvious thing to come plain and inexperienced people to say.

That she still looks to me as young and beautiful as she looked thirty-five years ago, and that she has not lost a single hair, and that she has saved her majesty the vexation of hearing it for the ten thousand and ome time. All that report about my proposal to buy Windsor Castle and its grounds is a false rumor—I started it myself.

Mr. Clemens has announced that he will be a passenger on the steamer Minnetonka, sailing for New York on July 13. This prolongation of his stay abroad has enabled him to accept a few of the hundreds of invitations that are pouring in on him.

FALTERED, THEN DIED.

Young Physician Killed Self After Losing Hope of Success.

Philadelphia, June 22.—Fearing he could not succeed in his chosen profession, Dr. Henry S. Hutchinson, son of a well known citizen of this city, committed suicide in a field at Lansdowne, Penn., near here, by cutting his throat with a razor.

It is believed that Dr. Hutchinson, after swallowing the poison, cut his throat to make sure of death. In the letter to his father he stated that he feared he could not succeed in his profession, and had become melancholy. Dr. Hutchinson was about thirty-five years old, and was graduated from Harvard and from the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania.

SPECIAL FOR DELANCEY NICOLL JR.

Boy Suffering Relapse Hurried Here with Physicians from Groton, Mass.

Worcester, Mass., June 22.—Fearing longer to leave his fifteen-year-old son, DeLancey Nicoll, Jr., in a country town, where he might not get proper medical attention after he had suffered a relapse following a severe attack of the measles, DeLancey Nicoll, of New York, reached Worcester with his son, nurses and physicians in a specially chartered hospital car attached to a New York express to-day.

The boy is an attendant at Groton School, and Mr. Nicoll took him to his New York home that he may have every care known to medical science.

At the home of Mr. Nicoll, No. 23 East 29th street, it was learned that DeLancey Nicoll, Jr., is suffering from inflammation of the heart, following the measles. It was said that the boy had been ill eight weeks, and it was feared that he would remain in bed for several more weeks.

ELEPHANT FOR HEARST.

DOESN'T WANT RECOUNT.

Albany Politicians Think Editor Is After Presidency.

Albany, June 22.—"Now that the recount bill has been passed and become a law, what will William R. Hearst do to evade the actual recount of the actual ballots cast in the disputed Mayoralty election?"

This is the question that many Albany politicians are asking themselves and one another now. They believe that Hearst wanted no actual recount, that he prefers to play the role of martyr to being either "counted in" or "counted out."

"Mr. Hearst," said one of the prominent politicians here to-day, "will endeavor to avoid a recount by every possible means until after the country cry has been raised for the next Presidential campaign. He wants to be Mayor of New York? No, he wants to see how far the martyr argument will carry him toward the Presidential nomination."

"Oh, well, he need not worry about an immediate recount," retorted another. "McClellan will play the game for him, if that is really his game. The Mayor will take the recount bill from court to court on one pretext or another, and by the time the courts get through with deciding on its constitutionality and its legality it will be time to elect another Mayor for New York City."

It is the prevalent opinion in political circles here that the bill has been introduced for the passage of the recount bills just as he had them prepared. It is freely stated that the "great fight" he has been making for a recount was merely a gigantic bluff, its only serious object being to annoy and humiliate Mayor McClellan.

Now that, owing to the stand taken by Governor Hughes, the bill has been passed and become law, both Democrats and Republicans are watching with amused interest the sequel to the fight. "What will he do next?" "We have given him what he has been crying for and he has a white elephant on his hands." These and similar expressions are constantly heard.

"Hearst would have liked to be elected Governor of the state," said a Democrat to-day; "he would like still better to be nominated for President by the Democratic party, but he does not care about being Mayor of New York City. He only likes to tell people that—it is good political capital to go before the people of the country crying 'I have been robbed' at the office of Mayor of the City of New York. I have not gotten an honest or a square deal. Now you have an opportunity to show you disapprove of the injustice I have suffered by nominating me for President. What are you going to do about it?"

A Republican Assemblyman suggested as an alternative combatting for the Democratic party the following ticket:

For President—William Randolph Hearst. For Vice-President—William Schuyler Jackson. "This is a little hard on the country," said he, "but think what a rare pair they would make. At least there would be no discord between the candidate and his stanch henchman, the Attorney General."

"That Hearst considers himself a strong Presidential nomination probability cannot be doubted," he continued. "One has only to put his ear to the ground to hear unmistakable sounds to that effect. Hearst is always organizing, cautiously, but surely, his forces for that conflict. Nor is there any man who would be a more or less formidable man should he run."

STINESS SECRETLY WEDS.

Son of R. I. Justice Marries War Governor's Granddaughter.

Providence, June 22.—Miss Inez Sprague, twenty-one years old, granddaughter of William Sprague, Rhode Island's "War Governor," and Harry Williams Stiness, twenty-seven years old, only son of ex-Chief Justice John H. Stiness, were secretly married last evening in St. Stephen's Church by the Rev. Herbert W. Barker, a new curate, in the presence of two chums of the bridegroom. The couple immediately took an automobile for Narragansett Pier, and to-day sought the blessing of the venerable ex-Governor. The bridegroom's parents are in Europe, and the bride's mother is in Wilmington, Del.

Mrs. Stiness comes of a well known Virginia family on her mother's side, her father was William Sprague, Jr. He committed suicide in Denver some years ago, after an elopement with her mother, who afterward married a wealthy Cleveland man, Orestes Weed, uncle of Mrs. Stiness, killed himself in a New York hotel some months ago, after eloping with Katharine Derouhae, of New York, from Massachusetts.

INSANE OVER MURDER.

Mount Vernon Youth Says He Is Hound on Culprit's Trail.

The first man to become insane as the result of the murder of Julius T. Rosenheimer, a wealthy resident of Pelham, is Harold H. Walsh, twenty years old, son of John C. Walsh, of No. 108 Hills avenue, Mount Vernon. He is now locked up in the Mount Vernon police station awaiting a second examination by experts. He was examined by Drs. Fleming and Robinson yesterday afternoon, and to them he explained that he was a human bloodhound and was running down the murderers of Mr. Rosenheimer. Young Walsh is an inveterate cigarette smoker. Before being taken into custody he walked around Pelham with a big club, and held up every stranger he met. His home is in the neighborhood of the Rosenheimer estate. Walsh's mother died two weeks ago, and it is believed that grief, superinduced by the Rosenheimer murder, has made the young man insane.

TRAGEDY IN TRAIN. FIFTEEN YEARS FOR GUY.

Italian, Crazy by Vermont, Kills One and Injures Two. Jury Finds Dentist Guilty of Manslaughter in First Degree.

Denver, June 22.—In a shooting affray in a chair car of passenger train 5, west bound, on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad late last night between Dresden and Selden, in Western Kansas, C. V. Topp, of Minneapolis, was killed and Mrs. Morris Olsen and her sister, Mrs. Harry Blakesley, both of Marshall, Minn., were wounded. The shots were fired by John Bello, an Italian barber, on his way from Boston to San Francisco, who had boarded the train at Chicago on Thursday night.

When the shooting began most of the passengers were dozing in their chairs. They were awakened by frantic yells and pistol shots. Five shots were fired in rapid succession by Bello, as he walked through the aisle from the front to the rear of the car, taking aim at one passenger after another.

The first shot struck Mrs. Olsen on the left side of the face, the bullet passing through the jaws. Mrs. Olsen's sister, sitting opposite her, was hit in the right shoulder with the second bullet. Their wounds are not fatal. After being shot both women rushed to the smoking car ahead and a majority of the male passengers followed, tumbling over one another in their haste to escape.

Bello's third bullet passed through Mr. Topp's heart. He was found dead later in his seat. His facial expression was calm, and from his position it seemed that he was sleeping when shot.

Charles A. Gilliat, of Denver, an employe of the Griffin Wheel Company, and D. R. Slawson, of Pueblo, Colo., closed in on Bello and wrenched the revolver from his hands, but not before two more shots had been fired, neither of which took effect. Before being overpowered Bello drew a razor and with this he fought desperately. A negro porter from the tourist car, armed with a billy, finally succeeded in knocking the razor out of the Italian's hand, and Bello was then seized and bound by Gilliat, Slawson and the porter and others. The train crew stayed out of the car while the disturbance was in progress.

At Goodland Kan., Bello and a travelling companion "Patsy" Longobardi, also an Italian, were removed from the train and locked up in jail. Bello was accompanied by his wife and four children and Longobardi by his wife and five children. The women and their children decided to-day to return to Chicago. Mrs. Longobardi said the two men had been drinking vermouth all night yesterday. About 8 o'clock they fell asleep. At 10:30 Mrs. Longobardi said Bello awoke and began to protest wildly that some one was trying to rob him. Then he rushed up the aisle and began shooting.

The body of Topp was left at Goodland and the two women were taken to the hospital there. Mrs. Olsen is a young bride.

CROWDED CARS CRASH.

Dozen Trolley Passengers Badly Hurt Near New Britain.

New Britain, Conn., June 22.—A bad head-on trolley collision, which probably will result fatally, occurred to-night on a grade near White Oak Park, a summer resort between this city and Plainville. Nearly a dozen persons were injured. Both cars, which were crowded with pleasure seekers, were wrecked. The passengers had practically no time in which to jump and make their escape.

Several of those hurt were brought to the New Britain Hospital in special cars. They are: FIKKIN, Mrs. Bessie, and her daughter Florence, New Britain; JOSEPH, Joseph, motorman; crushed knees and bad scalp wounds; injuries may prove fatal. BUBER, Miss Kittie, Plainville; severe bruises on the back. TERRY, Charles, motorman; crushed about the legs and arms.

Many doctors were sent to the scene of the wreck from this city and Plainville.

BOY DOVE INTO SOFT MUD OF CREEK.

Parents Find Body in Upright Position with Head Submerged in Mire.

His head held fast in two feet of soft mud, the body of twelve-year-old Ernest Lewis, of Henderson avenue, West New Brighton, Staten Island, was found last night in Bodine's Creek, between West New Brighton and Port Richmond. The body was in an upright position. The boy had climbed to the top of a lumber pile. From there he evidently dove into three feet of water. He was held fast in the mire, where his parents, who had become alarmed at his long absence, had sought for him.

STORY OF DEATH PLOT.

TO KILL ROSENHEIMER.

Ex-Convict Said to Have Given a Clew to the Murder.

To Joseph Murray, a contractor, living at Fourth avenue and 19th street, Wakefield, in the Bronx, is attributed a story which may solve the murder of Julius Rosenheimer, of Pelham. According to the story credited to Murray, the slayer of the needle manufacturer is an ex-convict who was hired to commit the crime by a man supposed to be a friend of Mr. Rosenheimer, but who secretly plotted his death.

The story is that Murray was awakened last Monday night by a noise in the vicinity of his henery. Hurrying to the poultry yard he found a man hiding in the shadow of a building. The contractor recognized him as an ex-convict who had been employed at a roadhouse in the vicinity of Mount Vernon. The ex-convict said that he had walked all the way from Pelham, and was tired.

"What are you doing up here?" asked Mr. Murray.

"I was sent for by a certain party to drop a man," replied the ex-convict. "When he sent for me he told me he wanted a job done. He came up to see him to-night, and he said he wanted a rich man at Pelham settled to-morrow night. I told him I was down and out and was willing to stick up anybody, but I would not murder. The guy that was to be done up walks out in his yard every night after supper, and goes away from the house. His son boxes in the evening with 'Kid' Everett in a gymnasium they have fixed up in the house, and the old man could be settled and robbed before anybody could hear an alarm."

Mr. Murray is said to have asked some more questions and to have given the man carte blanche to New York. He happened to mention the matter to some friends the next day, but thought no more about it. On Wednesday morning, the story goes, he was amazed when he picked up a newspaper and read an account of the murder of Mr. Rosenheimer.

The story of Mr. Murray's alleged experience was followed by a rush of persons to his residence across the street from him. They were unable to see Mr. Murray. His wife said he had gone to Astoria, Long Island. The prolonged absence of the contractor could not be explained either by his wife or his brother, who lives with him. They said he usually arrived home in time for his dinner. Even the Pinkerton men who were seeking for the Rosenheimer case had not succeeded in finding the contractor up to a late hour last night, and it is believed that he is being kept under cover.

The contractor's wife and brother said that they knew nothing of the story until they read it in the newspapers, and were inclined to doubt the truth of it.

"My husband knows 'Kid' Everett, the boxer, very well," said Mrs. Murray. "They both came from the same place up the state. Of course, when he found that 'Kid' Everett was at the Rosenheimer mansion at the time the murder occurred he became very much interested. Before he had a deal about it. He has spoken of the case almost every day to us, but I am sure he has said nothing of having any clew."

The brother, John Murray, said: "Of course, I cannot say positively, but I am almost certain that there is no truth in the story." Neither Sheriff Lane nor Coroner Wiesenbaker had heard of the story until it was alleged to have been told by Murray until they read it in an evening newspaper yesterday. They said that it was strange that if Mr. Murray had such important information he had not communicated with the police. James E. Curran, son-in-law of the murdered man, was asked about the story, and replied: "There are a lot of false stories afloat, and I believe that this is another one of the same order."

The most important result of the efforts of Chief Marks of the Pelham police force to capture the murderer was the shooting Friday night of an Italian who knew nothing about the crime. The man was seen prowling about in Pelham Manor, a mile from the scene of the tragedy, by Policeman Savage, who, believing him to be a robber, fired four bullets into him. The wounded man's name is Francesco Stodman, of No. 32 Mulberry street. It was said at the New Rochelle Hospital yesterday morning that he would recover. The Pelham Manor police Friday night attempted to hush up the shooting by denying that they knew anything about it.

It is not believed that the principal cause of the failure of the police to capture the murderer is that Chief Marks did not inform the police of the surrounding towns of the crime on the night it was committed. Acting Chief Atwell of Mount Vernon, Chief Timmons of New Rochelle and the White Plains police all say that they know nothing of the crime, excepting from other sources.

SAILORS ON RAMPAGE.

Knock Down Citizens in Broadway and Fight Policemen.

Two sailors of the Dutch cruiser Gelderland, which is anchored in the North River, off 80th street, were locked up last night charged with assault. The police said the men made a path for themselves down Broadway by knocking down nearly everybody they met.

Before the men were locked up it was necessary to clear out the reserves from the West 80th street police station. They are Derive Schang and Henry Weisberger. Each is about thirty years of age.

They turned into Broadway from Riverside Drive at 79th street at 8:15 p. m. In the two blocks between 79th and 81th street, the police say, the sailors knocked down at least six citizens who remained with them for their conduct. At 77th street they turned east and at West End avenue and 77th street are said to have insulted a young woman who lives in the neighborhood. John Kindergarten, of No. 317 East 119th street, interfered and was badly beaten.

A bicycle policeman, Patrick Merritt, heard the cries of Kindergarten and went to his rescue. Several hundred persons, many of them guests of the fashionable Bellelaire Hotel, at 77th street and Broadway, were watching the fight. Patrolman Howe came to the rescue of Merritt and between them they conquered the sailors.

HONOR NAVAL MILITIA

GOVERNOR IN PRAISE.

Medals Given to Heroes of U. S. Cruiser Yankee.

A celebration in honor of the sixteenth anniversary of the formation of the naval militia, and also the presentation of medals to those of the militia who were on the United States cruiser Yankee and in other stations during the Spanish-American War, took place yesterday afternoon. Governor Hughes presented the medals, and among the guests of the navy "boys" were many men prominent in both the national and state army and navy. The celebration was opened with a luncheon given to the Governor on the cruiser Newark, which has been turned over to the state naval reserves and which is anchored in the North River, off 80th street.

The Governor arrived at the ship about noon and was greeted with a Governor's salute of seventeen guns. He was welcomed on board by Captain J. W. Miller, head of the naval militia, and Captain William B. Franklin, commander of the 1st Battalion. Governor Hughes was accompanied by his military secretary, Colonel Treadwell, and after being introduced to the other guests of the host luncheon was served. Present were Adjutant General Henry, Colonel Ingraham, Major Crossett, Rear Admiral C. F. Goodrich, U. S. N., Rear Admiral Brownson, U. S. N., Colonel Appleton of the 7th Regiment, Colonel Hotchkins of the 72d Regiment, Colonel Morris of the 9th Regiment, Colonel Bates of the 71st Regiment, Major Wilson of the 2d Battalion, Naval Militia, Major Bridgman of Squadron A, Major Terriberry of the Field Hospital, Colonel Duffy of the 6th Regiment, Lieutenant Aggar, Rear Admiral West, U. S. N., Captain Frankel, Commissioner of Parks Hermann, Controller Metz, Captain Herbert Satterlee, Commander W. Butler Duncan, jr., Commander Foshew, Lieutenant Commander Ford and Paymaster Purdington.

After the luncheon the parade formed and marched from 79th street and Riverside Drive east to Broadway, thence south to 72d street and west to Riverside Drive. A great reviewing stand at 80th street and Riverside Drive. The Governor was driven directly to the reviewing stand from the cruiser, and on his arrival was greeted with cheers. He responded by removing his hat and keeping it off until the last man had passed the stand. The men marched in the following order:

A platoon of mounted police. First Battalion of the Naval Militia. Squadron A. Regiment companies of the 7th, 8th and 9th, N. G. N. Y. Veterans of Naval Reserves in civilian clothes, commanded by Commander W. Butler Duncan, jr.

The parade continued to Grant's Tomb, where it was joined by Governor Hughes. Standing on the steps of the monument in the scorching sun with bare head, he was introduced by Captain Miller, who gave a history of the Naval Militia and its part in the battles of Santiago, Cienfuegos and Guantanamo. In replying, Governor Hughes said that this day bring home upon every mind the great reserve of citizenship for the protection of the country's liberty. No one can look upon such a spectacle as that of a naval militia, a body of trained men, ready to go forward in defense of their country's honor. The Spanish-American War showed us the necessity of being prepared and the pressing need of a naval militia, a body of trained men, ready to go forward in defense of their country's honor. I appreciate as I never did before what is going on for the preservation of the peace of the country. I appreciate the spirit of the great American people, and I am proud to be a part of it. I am proud to be a part of it. I am proud to be a part of it.

Here Rear Admiral Brownson said a few words of congratulation and appreciation for the part performed by the naval militia, and the medals were presented to the men, each in turn responding to his name as it was called and receiving the coveted honor at the hands of the rear admiral.

Governor Hughes and staff left after the medals had been distributed, being driven away in a carriage escorted by four mounted policemen. The programme for the afternoon was admirably carried out, but one incident occurring to mar the proceedings. While Governor Hughes was speaking several photographers attempted to make use of a ladder to obtain a good portrait of the ex-convict. A police officer, who was with him, was Michael Timothy, attempted to prevent them from doing so, and there did fail to be a fist fight, when Lieutenant McKee, of the Police Department, who is one of the medal men, broke through the line of spectators and put an end to the quarrel. Governor Hughes was visibly annoyed by the disturbance, but kept on with his speech.

The Police Department never showed to better advantage than yesterday. They maintained perfect police lines and were cheered along the line of march. They were commanded by Second Deputy Commissioner English and Inspector James Thompson.
