

FAMOUS HOUSES IN BATH

Traffic in Celebrities—Sheridan, De Quincey and Lord Chesterfield.

Bath, September 6. Bath is the city of celebrities. London alone in the kingdom can rival it in the number of famous residents during the last three centuries.

Richardson was a frequent visitor; another in the North Parade where John Wilkes was often with his sister; and another close by where Wordsworth stayed for several weeks.

Beau Nash, the master of ceremonies of the old Assembly Rooms, and Dickens, the most vivacious commentator on the existing establishment, were among the earliest celebrities to be honored.

GUNNERY CONTROVERSY

Lively Dispute Between Army and Navy.

Washington, Sept. 18.—A decidedly interesting controversy has arisen in army and navy circles which, if it is ever decided, can probably be settled only by the commander in chief, who, it is suggested, may have been responsible for its inception.

The unpublished reports on the engagement with the Spanish fleet at Santiago showed that only 2 per cent of the shots fired by the United States vessels reached their mark, and immediately an effort was made to bring navy gunnery up to a higher state of efficiency, with remarkable results.
