

About People and Social Incidents.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC - The Rose of the Rancho.
THEATRE - The Grand Opera House.
CANTON - The Canton Model.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

POLITICAL VICISSITUDES.

When Mr. Ahearn was calling the attention of his recalcitrant subordinate, Dalton, to the attractions of private life he said, according to that witness: "If you resign there will be a vacancy in such and such a firm" (mentioning one which was doing a lot of work for the Borough President), "and you may enter it."

Index to Advertisements.

Table with 4 columns: Page, Col., Page, Col. listing various advertisements and their locations.

New-York Daily Tribune.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 16, 1908.

This newspaper is owned and published by The Tribune Association, a New York corporation.

THE NEWS THIS MORNING.

CONGRESS.—Senate: A joint resolution remitting to China about thirteen million dollars of the Boxer indemnity was passed.

DISASTER.—An earthquake followed by a tidal wave caused much damage at Gonaives, Hayti; communication with the town is cut, but an early dispatch said that no lives were reported lost.

DEATH.—The Curator Line reduced and booted on his arrival at Agram. Rear Admirals Thomas Sperry and Emory were guests of President Penna at Petropolis and Ambassador Tuedley gave in garden party to all American officers.

DOMESTIC.—Secretary Cortis denied reports that he contemplated resigning from the Cabinet to become connected with some large financial institution of this city; the presidency of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, it was learned, has been offered to him.

CITY.—Stocks moved irregularly, closing steady. William R. Montgomery, ex-president of the Hamilton Bank, was indicted on the charge of overdrawing his account.

THE WEATHER.—Indications for to-day: Rain. The temperature yesterday: Highest, 42 degrees; lowest, 27.

THE TREASURY OUTLOOK.

The slackening of business and the checking of importations which followed the October-November panic have necessarily curtailed the Treasury's income from customs and internal revenue receipts.

The December balance sheet shows, of course, the heavier decline in income, for trade collections at their worst late in November and early in December. The last month in the year is usually one of the best for the Treasury.

Two-thirds of this loss was due, however, to increased expenditures, the Treasury's outlay in 1907 being $23,500,000 greater than it was in 1906. Receipts have declined only $11,000,000.

Prof. Paul Milyoukov, who has been very successful in his efforts to bring about a general strike in Russia, is a man of unusual power and ability.

James R. Randall, who died on Tuesday at Augusta, Ga., in his seventieth year, sprang into fame through a single lyric, "Maryland, My Maryland," which he produced in the stress of excitement caused by the Baltimore riot of April, 1861.

Among the general public there is a widespread impression that the Italians, of all the European peoples, come to this country with one main idea, to connect with "the main chance" as quickly as possible and then go back to their native land to spend the dollars earned in America.

The action of the Clearing House Association in offering to admit to full membership all trust companies maintaining a 25 per cent reserve will meet with general approval.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

and of this total a shrinkage of $5,500,000 is credited to December. Returns for the first two weeks of January indicate that the worst of the strain is over, since the falling off in income for the fortnight is only $2,300,000.

actually increased their deposits in that period by $26,000,000.

That she will win is hardly to be doubted, but it will not be an easy victory. Japan has not the vast undeveloped resources which America had at the close of our Civil War.

She has, however, ingenuity, enterprise, thrift, patriotism and indomitable ambition, so that, though the burden is heavy and galling, we shall expect to see her carry it bravely and unwaveringly to a triumphant end.

But since there is no reason to suspect Japan of desiring to commit hara-kiri, it is inconceivable that she should be seeking a war with any important power, or, indeed, that she should not be earnestly intent upon keeping the peace.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

actually increased their deposits in that period by $26,000,000. The reduction of loans by the trust companies was correspondingly greater and these two items taken together indicate how violent was the strain upon the trust companies and how extensively they had to call loans to protect themselves. The figures of cash reserve maintained by the companies give the clew to the severity of their suffering from the panic. In August the trust companies had in their vaults $54,700,000—not quite an 8 per cent reserve. Had they held a 25 per cent reserve, like the banks, they would have had on the same total of deposits $173,000,000, or nearly $120,000,000 more than they actually had—a sum greater than all the gold imported to relieve the situation.

"MISREPRESENTED."

In a leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

It is in leading editorial in the State Gazette, of Trenton, N. J., complains that The Tribune has injuriously misrepresented the sanitary condition of typhoid fever there—though it admits that typhoid is always prevalent there at this time of year and that "an unusual number of cases have been reported this winter"—and then, turning to The Tribune's suggestion that the water of the Delaware River should be redeemed from pollution with sewage, says:

The suggestion is a good one, and The Tribune should set a wholesome example by urging the towns in New Jersey along the banks of the Delaware to stop emptying their sewage and garbage into the stream. It might, with consistency, suggest that the New York Legislature enact laws under which the health authorities of the state could act with the purpose of compelling towns in that state to dispose of the sewage and garbage by mechanical or chemical methods.

The Tribune does not confine its interest in human welfare to any one state, but reckons, with Terence, that whatever concerns humanity concerns it. If the editor of "The State Gazette" had read his Tribune with half the zeal with which he mistakenly criticizes it he would have known that it has frequently and earnestly urged precisely such action as he now mentions for the redemption of not only the Delaware but all other potable waters from pollution, and that it has let the people of its own state and city have the benefit of its advice with the effect of checking more than one incipient epidemic of typhoid fever within the limits of the New York water system.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The President to-day discussed naval affairs with Representative Richard Pearson Hobson, who has introduced a bill calling for $50,000,000 annually for new battleships. Mr. Hobson said the President promised his support to the measure.

Senator Curtis and Representative Anthony, of Kansas, asked the President to promote General C. B. Hall, of the Fort Leavenworth Staff College, to major general before his retirement in August. General C. B. Hall, chief army officer, and Captain Chandler the signal corps balloon expert, came to introduce J. W. Hutchinson, who has invented an airship he wishes tested by the army.

Other visitors at the White House were Senators Carter, William Aldin Smith and Martin, Representatives Goulden, Marshall, Mann, Bennett, Crum-packer and Cocks, Postmaster Barnes of Washington, Assistant Attorney General Cooley and Louis F. Payne, of New York.

The President, Mr. Roosevelt, has sent out invitations for a dinner on January 24, to be followed by a musical entertainment.

AT THE VICE-PRESIDENTS.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The Vice-President and Mrs. Fairbanks gave their annual reception this evening in honor of members of the Senate. Invited to meet them were members of the Cabinet, the diplomatic corps, the Supreme Court and other judicial bodies, with their wives, and a large number of official and non-official guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Dingley, of Kalamazoo, Mich., are guests of the Vice-President and Mrs. Fairbanks.

THE CABINET.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. James R. Garfield entertained at dinner to-night Senator and Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge, Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Colonel and Mrs. Charles S. Bromwell, Mr. and Mrs. William C. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. A. Garrison McClintock, Miss Hagner, Miss de Lagarde, Rear Admiral Capps and Major Fournier.

Mr. and Mrs. Dingley, of Kalamazoo, Mich., are guests of the Vice-President and Mrs. Fairbanks.

THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The Italian Ambassador and Baroness Mayor des Planches gave a dinner to-night in honor of the Ambassador from Austria-Hungary and Baroness Hengelmüller. Invited to meet them were Viscount d'Alte, the minister from Portugal; the Counselor of the French Embassy and Mme. des Portes de la Fosse, the Second Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. George Young, Mr. and Mrs. Falmesock, the naval attaché of the Italian Embassy and Signora Fialler, Miss Mary Patten, Rear Admiral O'Neill and Signor Montagna.

Another formal dinner party in the diplomatic corps was that of the minister from Belgium and Baroness Moncheur, who had among their guests the Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Straus, the minister from Switzerland, the Turkish Minister, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Foster, the naval attaché of the French Embassy and Mme. de Bianpre and Mrs. Hans.

IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Newberry entertained guests at dinner to-night complimentary to the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Metcalf. To meet them were the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Bacon, Brigadier General and Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. William Phelps Eno, Mrs. Nicholas Fish, Miss Williams, Representative Butler Ames and Representative Edwin Denby.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tiffany Dyer had dining with them to-night Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Ellis, Miss Patten, Mr. Kroupensky, of the Russian Embassy staff, and others, whom they afterward entertained at the opera.

NEW YORK SOCIETY.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt Dixon Barnes are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son at the West 49th street house of Henry Burr Barnes, with whom they are spending the winter. Mrs. Courtlandt Dixon Barnes was Miss Katharine L. Ridgely McKee.

GOVERNOR GIVES RECEPTION.

Albany, Jan. 15.—Governor and Mrs. Hughes to-night gave the annual reception to members of the Legislature. A state official, the judiciary and others, Governor and Mrs. Hughes were assisted in receiving by members of the Governor's military staff and their wives.

The foreign consuls at New York City were invited to attend the reception. This is said to be the first time that such an invitation has been extended to consuls by a Governor of this state. Germany was represented by Consul General Buehn.

H. O. HAVEMEYER ESTATE TO FAMILY.

The will of Henry O. Havemeyer, head of the American Sugar Company, was filed for probate in the Surrogate's office yesterday. The value of the estate is not given. It is all left to the testator's family.

Barney and is a daughter of the widowed Mrs. Charles T. Barney. Her marriage took place last spring at the home of her parents, in Park avenue.

Mrs. Frederick W. Whitridge will give a dance this evening at her house in East 11th street for her younger daughter, Miss Joan Whitridge, who is one of the debutantes of the season.

The Thursday Evening Club will be entertained to-night by Charles E. Sampson at Sherry's. There will be music, with Fritz Kreisler and Emilio de Gogorza on the programme.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.

Samuel T. Skidmore, of the Union and other New York clubs, was married yesterday at noon to Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, of St. Paul, at the house of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Forman Cosby, in Fifth avenue. The Rev. H. C. Sempie, of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was arrayed in an Empire gown of white satin and lace, with a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies-of-the-valley, had no attendants save her little niece, Violet Cosby, who acted as flower girl. Louis V. Dousman gave his sister away and C. Wheaton Vaughan was the best man. Only near relatives and a small number of intimate friends were present.