SWIFT BOARD'S RECOMMENDATIONS

The Sperry board and the Letzbe board had been composed of officers representing the practical knowledge and experience available in the fleet. Mr. Meyer's next move was to appoint a board composed of representatives of the navy yard and fleet management. This board, known as the Swift board, was directed to consider the previous reports and opinions expressed in the previous administrations, and submit a report which should aim to reconcile as far as possible the existing differences and to make recommendations for changes which were considered necessary to improve the business methods of the Navy Department.

BUREAU DIVISIONS

The only recommendation made by the Swift board was a change in the Bureau of Equipment. No changes were recommended in the other existing bureaus, and the only recommendation was that the bureau be divided into two divisions, one for the construction of ships and the other for the maintenance of the fleet. The board also recommended that the bureau be placed under the command of a single officer, either construction or maintenance, and that all work of a like nature be concentrated.

AIDS TO THE SECRETARY

The board recommended four aids to be detailed to assist and advise the Secretary on the duties of his office. These four general heads, these officers to keep thoroughly informed of those branches of effort and to advise the Secretary concerning them and keep him generally informed as to the work being done. The aids of these divisions are to have no supervisory or executive power, and their functions will be purely advisory.

CONSTRUCTION BOARD ABOLISHED

The Board on Construction as it is now constituted is to be abolished. Work heretofore accomplished by the board in connection with the construction of ships will hereafter be performed by the general board, in conjunction with the aid for operations of the fleet, and assisted by the aid for construction of ships. The technical details will, as now, rest wholly with the technical bureaus.

NAVY YARD ORGANIZATION

At the navy yards Mr. Meyer has divided the single manufacturing department established by Mr. Newberry into two divisions, each under a manager—a machinery division and a hull division. This is in accordance with the general practice in shipbuilding establishments in this country and with the practice in England and Germany. The advantages of consolidation are thus carried to the greatest limit which is deemed advantageous. All shops of the same class of work are placed under the command of the same officer, either construction or maintenance, and all work of a like nature is concentrated.

NEW ACCOUNTING SYSTEM

Mr. Meyer has also started the general reorganization of the independent accounting system for the different manufacturing departments of the navy yards, and intends also to adopt the commercial system, as far as possible, separating the duties relating to purchase and payment, both at the Navy Department and throughout the service. The new system of cost accounting has been successfully tried at Boston, and will now be extended to the other navy yards. Hitherto all cost keeping at navy yards has been done on by the working departments, this system is deemed essentially wrong in principle and contrary to commercial practice. The men who do the work should not, in the Secretary's opinion, fix the costs.

MODIFICATION FOR EFFICIENCY

The system now in force at the navy yards of a single manufacturing department, with slight modifications, since was put into effect by Secretary Newberry on February 1 last. The essential feature of the Newberry plan was consolidation, which, as was to be expected, has proved in every respect a consolidation, as far as possible, must be a feature of any business organization.

DIRECTION OF THE FLEET

In the past very little method has been provided for the use or employment of the fleet, the main object to which all other naval activities should be subordinated. For some years the Naval War College, the Board of Naval Affairs in Washington and the Bureau of Navigation in the Navy Department have been concerned with the general preparation of plans for war and the everyday employment and management of the fleet, but no direct co-ordination of the work of these three parts has been found possible. An individual officer has existed who has been directly charged with placing important matters of military policy or comprehensive plans for navy before the Secretary in such a shape that he could intelligently and quickly act.

ACCUPANTS OF SIXTEEN MORE HOUSES AT LUDLOW, MASS., ORDERED TO VACATE

Ludlow, Mass., Nov. 29.—The elements, last night and to-day added to the misery of the three hundred persons evicted on Saturday from tenements owned by the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates because of a strike in the mills of the company. The household effects of the evicted persons were piled together in heaps in the street in front of the houses from which they had been removed. The owners found refuge for themselves and their families in the houses of friends, but there was no shelter for the goods, and last night's rain caused great damage.

WANTED AIRSHIP LICENSE

Albany, Nov. 29.—The Secretary of State received another application to-day for an airship license. The applicant being a New Yorker Mr. Koenig replied that at this time the state did not issue licenses permitting persons to navigate the air. "But he was under the impression," he replied, "that the Secretary of State, then you may change your mind."

FATHER HAD ASKED THAT DAUGHTER BE WEDDED IN HIS PRESENCE

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Standing by the open coffin containing the body of her father, James Howard, formerly secretary of the Washington Park Club, Miss Juanita C. Howard was wedded to-day to Irving Herriot, an attorney.

MARRIED BESIDE OPEN COFFIN

The last wish of Mr. Howard, who was fatally injured by an automobile last week, was that his daughter should be married in his presence. Before the license could be obtained Mr. Howard, who was known as the "Gilded American Derby," had become unconscious. He died in the hospital last night.
