

KING GEORGE MAY GO

Greece's Ruler Makes Clear His Position.

King George, whose position in the present crisis at Athens has been the subject of some little perplexity abroad, has made his attitude clear. The ruler has received Colonel Zorbas, the chief of the Military League, which has been exercising a species of dictatorship over the Cabinet.

The King expressed his regret to Zorbas that the chiefs of the movement had not frankly confided their views to him from the beginning, to which Zorbas replied that it was difficult under the circumstances, seeing that one of the first things which the league had done had been to insist upon the removal of the monarch's sons from the army and of the members of their military entourage.

The King then affirmed to Zorbas that he would not continue to be a constitutional monarch, as he had done for the last forty-six years; but that, falling under the influence of the military entourage, he would find himself compelled to abdicate.

It was observed that, inasmuch as the ministers had not offered their resignations, the occasion had not arisen for discussing the question of a change of Cabinet or of the selection of candidates for ministerial posts.

The colonel thereupon left, and returned a few hours later, and informed the King that the league was anxious to install in office a non-political, purely administrative Cabinet in the place of the actual administration, and that he had with him a list of twenty-five persons from whom the league would wish the King to select a new Cabinet.

The King declined even to look at the list, observing that, inasmuch as the ministers had not offered their resignations, the occasion had not arisen for discussing the question of a change of Cabinet or of the selection of candidates for ministerial posts.

The King will abdicate under certain circumstances, now known, and it is believed that he will also abdicate if the Military League persists in provoking a war with Turkey, for which the kingdom is in no sense prepared.

There has been some talk at Athens of proclaiming Prince George as ruler of Greece in the event of the deposition of the King. The Prince George in question is not the sailor son of the King, formerly High Commissioner of Crete, but the eldest son of the Crown Prince, a young fellow now twenty years old, and serving as lieutenant in the 1st Regiment of Fusiliers.

It is recalled that it was a military leader which, in 1902, brought about the abdication of King George, who sought refuge on board an English vessel, with the Queen. The prolonged stay of the British squadron in the harbor of the Piræus is to assure the safety of King George and of his Queen, if it becomes necessary for them to leave, and the English vessels were landed the British bluejackets were landed the British bluejackets were landed the British bluejackets.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

According to the report of the committee on grounds and buildings, about 90 per cent of the student body will be housed on the campus by February, 1911. It is expected that the State building, with the new extension, will accommodate about a hundred and ninety students.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

YALE HAS SAGE GIFT.

University Announces Acceptance of Some Others.

New Haven, Jan. 13.—The $50,000 gift of Mrs. Russell Sage to Yale University for the purchase of the Hillhouse property here was formally accepted by the Yale Corporation at its meeting to-day.

In appreciation of the gift all but a small portion of the property, which is in the residential portion of the city, will be named the Pierson-Sage Square. Three acres, which will be set aside as a park, will be named the Hillhouse Park after the former owner of the property.

Among the other gifts announced at the meeting as having been received were $5,500 from Andrew Carnegie for the completion of the swimming pool which bears his name; $50,000 from the estate of Jane A. Townsend for the establishment of a fund for the purchase of books, manuscripts and memorabilia connected with Yale history.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

According to the report of the committee on grounds and buildings, about 90 per cent of the student body will be housed on the campus by February, 1911. It is expected that the State building, with the new extension, will accommodate about a hundred and ninety students.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

According to the report of the committee on grounds and buildings, about 90 per cent of the student body will be housed on the campus by February, 1911. It is expected that the State building, with the new extension, will accommodate about a hundred and ninety students.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

According to the report of the committee on grounds and buildings, about 90 per cent of the student body will be housed on the campus by February, 1911. It is expected that the State building, with the new extension, will accommodate about a hundred and ninety students.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

According to the report of the committee on grounds and buildings, about 90 per cent of the student body will be housed on the campus by February, 1911. It is expected that the State building, with the new extension, will accommodate about a hundred and ninety students.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

According to the report of the committee on grounds and buildings, about 90 per cent of the student body will be housed on the campus by February, 1911. It is expected that the State building, with the new extension, will accommodate about a hundred and ninety students.

Other business of interest was the decision to defer the definite choosing of a site for the graduate college. It was previously announced that the graduate college would be built on the present university plot, but in view of a further proposition from Mr. Proctor concerning his gift to the college, the board has adjourned until the meeting of the board to be held on February 20.

According to the report of the committee on grounds and buildings, about 90 per cent of the student body will be housed on the campus by February, 1911. It is expected that the State building, with the new extension, will accommodate about a hundred and ninety students.

OBITUARY.

DR. ELLERY DENISON.

Dr. Ellery Denison, for almost sixty years a practicing physician in New York City, died last night at his home, No. 113 West 12th street, from gastritis. He had been ill for several months. Dr. Denison was a descendant of the early settlers of North America, and traced his ancestry to the arrival in Roxbury, Mass., in 1631, of William Denison. A grandson of the latter married in 1848 Mrs. Mary Weatherell, a descendant of William Brewster, who came from England in the Mayflower.

Dr. Denison was born in Floy, Oneida County, N. Y., in 1827. He came to this city when a young man, and was graduated from the New York University Medical College in 1856. He joined the Republican party when it was organized. Dr. Denison was a Mason, a member of the Mayflower Society and of the New York State Medical Association. In 1857 he married Miss Ellen K. Gibb, who, with four children, survives him.

THE REV. DR. CHARLES H. BUCK. The Rev. Dr. Charles Henry Buck died from heart failure at his home, No. 113 North Broadway, Yonkers, on Wednesday evening, after a long illness.

Dr. Buck was born in 1841, in North Easton, Mass., and after receiving an education in the local schools of his home, entered Wesleyan University. He was ordained a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1864, and served in various churches and held several pastorates in Connecticut, after which he was pastor in three different parishes in Brooklyn. He retired from church work in 1903 and travelled in Europe and Asia. Three years ago Dr. Buck was taken ill, and since then had been in failing health.

THE REV. RICHARD HARTLEY. The Rev. Richard Hartley, pastor of Hope Baptist Church, at 204 1/2 West Broadway, died early yesterday morning, at the church rectory, from heart disease. Mr. Hartley had been ill since a month ago, when he was stricken with hardening of the arteries.

JOSEPH B. GRAHAM. Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Ex-Mayor Joseph B. Graham, eighty years old, died at his home here to-night from pneumonia. He had been ill only a short time. Mr. Graham was Mayor of Schenectady in 1880 and for many years was prominently identified with the commercial and religious life of the city. At the time of his death he was president of the Union College, this city, and a member of the board of trustees of Poutney (Vt.) Academy. He was a graduate of Union College of the class of '38.

MISS C. A. VAN DEN HEUVEL. Miss Charlotte Augusta Van Den Heuvel, who died on Monday at her home, No. 196 East 82d street, was the daughter of the descendant of Robert Morris, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. She was also a relative of the late John Jacob Astor.

THE INTERIOR SEX SEEN. Toronto, Jan. 13.—"The Interior Sex," a three-act comedy by Frank Statton, of London, was produced for the first time at the Royal National Theatre to-night by Miss Maxine Elliott. Miss Elliott's leading part is Arthur Byron, and the comedy role is in the hands of O. E. Clarence.

THEATRICAL NOTES. Henry E. Dickey will present at Weber's Theatre on Thursday night a new comedy by Frederick Arnold Kummer called "Mr. Buttles." The "Goddess of Liberty," now playing there, will end its engagement to-morrow night.

DR. A. M. MOORE. Naples, Jan. 13.—A. M. Moore, a retired surgeon of the United States navy, died here to-day of pneumonia. He was born in Tennessee in 1845 and attained the relative rank of lieutenant commander in 1892. At the time of his retirement, in the summer of 1908, he was stationed at the navy yard at Mare Island, Cal.

OBITUARY NOTES. THOMAS F. SCOTT, eighty-eight years old, died yesterday at his country home, Grand View Castle, Shannon, Penn. He was born in Pembroke, Me., and was the only son of David Scott, said to have been a descendant of Sir Walter Scott.

WHAT IS GOING ON TO-DAY. Free admission to the American Museum of Natural History and the Zoological Garden. Conference of the Foreign Missions Boards, at the Chamber of Commerce, 10 a. m.

ADAMIRAL BARTON STRICKEN. Admiral John B. Barton, formerly chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, suffered a mild stroke of apoplexy at his home yesterday and was taken to the naval medical hospital. It was said at the hospital to-day that he would probably be able to resume his duties in a few days.

GRIEF DID NOT KILL PASTOR. Pittsburg, Jan. 13.—Relatives of the Rev. Dr. John W. Sproull, who died here on January 5, deny that his death was due, as reported, to grief at being obliged to resign the pastorate of the Central Reformed Presbyterian Church, which he had held for thirty-eight years. Dr. Sproull's resignation had been reluctantly accepted by his congregation at his earnest request. They insisted on making him pastor emeritus, with a liberal salary. His death was due to heart disease, complicated by pneumonia.

HOTEL MEN DINE FEAST HAS 700 AT IT.

Simon Ford Lays Claim to Some North Pole Credit.

The men who cater to the annual composite appetites of other bodies of men of women, or of both "ladies and gentlemen" were they clubs, fraternities, societies or associations—had a feast of their own last night. In other words, the bonifaces who make up the Hotel Association of New York City squabbed themselves down in the richly garnished grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria to a grand dinner, with music, guests, speakers, and all the other fixings.

It was the thirty-first year the hotel-keepers tried this once-a-twelvemonth gathering upon themselves, and the way they and their guests, the number all told being about two hundred, took the occasion, it was plain that they've got this particular of the business down pretty fine.

There weren't all hotelkeepers, either. There were jurists there and statesmen, bigger or lesser—stacks of them; city officials, politicians in all degrees, from the highest to the lowest; bankers and brokers, brewers and lawyers, florists and coffee growers, and several other species of specimens of trades and professions, but all of them connoisseurs in the matter of sitting up how and what a big dinner should be.

Herr Boldt, of the Waldorf-Astoria, being president, and being as the dinner was given under his own roof, of course, presided. Oscar looked after the dinner and Charles S. Berry wrote a fifteen stanza poem in honor of the occasion, the name of most of the best known hotelkeepers in the town and gave the diners a chance to do a little complimentary hurrahing between bars.

Herr Boldt, after congratulating the association because it was getting along so well, which was his report to make, as if the hotel men did not know it, had a couple of things to say to the legislators of the state, of whom about two score were present.

He didn't make any bones about saying to the Senators and Assemblages, a good many of whom were present, that the liquor interests are a necessary adjunct to the hotel business, which is a good business and a benefit to any community, but he let 'em know that said liquor interests were not the primary object of a hostelry.

Also he thanked the legislators for their uniform courtesy and kindness toward the hotelkeepers and begged to impress it upon the whole assemblage that never a dollar had been spent by the hotel men to influence legislation in their behalf. And the bonifaces and all their guests thereupon cheered heartily.

Simon Ford, looking more like a Solomon than any of the other wisemen, was then upon the assemblage. "Sim" claimed some credit for the discovery of the pole by Commander Peary, who has stopped off and on during the last two years at his tavern, because he said Peary's reading to the Esquimaux of "Sim's" after dinner speeches had got into them a thorough willingness to get out from under the state, and the liquor interests are a necessary adjunct to the hotel business, which is a good business and a benefit to any community, but he let 'em know that said liquor interests were not the primary object of a hostelry.

THE REV. DR. CHARLES H. BUCK. The Rev. Dr. Charles Henry Buck died from heart failure at his home, No. 113 North Broadway, Yonkers, on Wednesday evening, after a long illness.

THE REV. RICHARD HARTLEY. The Rev. Richard Hartley, pastor of Hope Baptist Church, at 204 1/2 West Broadway, died early yesterday morning, at the church rectory, from heart disease. Mr. Hartley had been ill since a month ago, when he was stricken with hardening of the arteries.

JOSEPH B. GRAHAM. Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Ex-Mayor Joseph B. Graham, eighty years old, died at his home here to-night from pneumonia. He had been ill only a short time. Mr. Graham was Mayor of Schenectady in 1880 and for many years was prominently identified with the commercial and religious life of the city. At the time of his death he was president of the Union College, this city, and a member of the board of trustees of Poutney (Vt.) Academy. He was a graduate of Union College of the class of '38.

MISS C. A. VAN DEN HEUVEL. Miss Charlotte Augusta Van Den Heuvel, who died on Monday at her home, No. 196 East 82d street, was the daughter of the descendant of Robert Morris, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. She was also a relative of the late John Jacob Astor.

THE INTERIOR SEX SEEN. Toronto, Jan. 13.—"The Interior Sex," a three-act comedy by Frank Statton, of London, was produced for the first time at the Royal National Theatre to-night by Miss Maxine Elliott. Miss Elliott's leading part is Arthur Byron, and the comedy role is in the hands of O. E. Clarence.

THEATRICAL NOTES. Henry E. Dickey will present at Weber's Theatre on Thursday night a new comedy by Frederick Arnold Kummer called "Mr. Buttles." The "Goddess of Liberty," now playing there, will end its engagement to-morrow night.

DR. A. M. MOORE. Naples, Jan. 13.—A. M. Moore, a retired surgeon of the United States navy, died here to-day of pneumonia. He was born in Tennessee in 1845 and attained the relative rank of lieutenant commander in 1892. At the time of his retirement, in the summer of 1908, he was stationed at the navy yard at Mare Island, Cal.

MUSIC.

The Boston Orchestra.

First let a simple chronicle of facts be made: The Boston Symphony Orchestra gave its first concert of this season last night in Carnegie Hall last night. The programme consisted of three numbers, one of which, the first, Beethoven's "Heroic" symphony, had already been played three times by the Philharmonic Society this season. The second, Tchaikowsky's violin concerto, was played for the first time since the speaking of the season, and the third, Dukas's bit of grotesquerie, called "L'Apprenti Sorcier," for the third. Mr. Mischa Elman was the solo performer. No stranger he, but almost too familiar for his own good. And the vast concert room was sold out to the last seat, and (not unlikely) more than the last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

There are the facts. How shall they be explained? The last standing place allowed by the law. Finally, the integrity of the record requires that it be said that the audience received every feature of the concert with an outburst of enthusiasm which has had but few parallels this season.

DOUBLE BILL AT METROPOLITAN.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" the Offerings.

Our old friends "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" were with us again last night. We haven't been able to complain much of their absence this season, and we probably never will, for the operatic taste remains as it is. So last night the golden horsehoe of the Metropolitan shone resplendent, the Sicilian cohorts gathered deep behind the rails, and galleries, boxes and stades rivalled each other in enthusiasm.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

And yet his destiny, by his death, brilliancy, splendor of tone, correctness of intonation, made captives of all his listeners. It was an evening of virtuosic achievements; and it would be vain to try to find a complete explanation for it.

OFFICIAL RECORD AND FORECAST.

Table with columns for City, Temperature, Wind, Rain, Clouds. Cities listed include Albany, Buffalo, Chicago, New Orleans, Washington, etc.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Table with columns for Date, 1909, 1910, 1909, 1910. Shows temperature and other weather data for various dates.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.

Local Official Record.—The following official record from the Weather Bureau shows the changes in the temperature for the last twenty-four hours, in comparison with the corresponding date of last year.