TO RETIRE CANNON PLANS TAKING DEFINITE FORM.

Caucus to Ascertain Republican Sentiment Toward Speaker Proposed.

Washington, Jan. 25.—While those regulars in the House who place their wishes for the success of the Republican party above their desire to gratify Mr. Cannon still hope that the Speaker will soon announce his withdrawal from the field, preparations are being made to eliminate him from the present dangerous situation, if necessary, by compulsion.

PLAN TO CALL CAUCUS.

Those who are taking an active part in the discussion are Representatives Foster, of Vermont; J. Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania, and Goebel, of Ohio. They had a long conference to-day with Representatives Hayes, the insurgent leader, and members of the Ohio delegation, who are anxious that a caucus be called for the purpose of taking up the President's legislative programme.

AN ANTI-CANNON LIST.

One of the regulars who is active in the movement to have the sentiment of the anti-Cannon men recorded gave the Tribune correspondent the following list of men whom he counted to support any reasonable step in that direction.

UNIONISTS AGAIN MAKE HEADWAY

LIBERALS TO CONTROL, HOWEVER.

Moderate Men in Both English Parties May Work for Compromise.

BRITISH ELECTIONS TO DATE.

Five hundred and sixty members of the new Parliament have been elected. They are distributed as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Party and Number of Members. Includes Unionists (238), Liberals (214), Laborites (36), and Nationalists (72).

The announcement of Unionist gains continued with unbroken regularity. Out of thirty-three results declared during the course of yesterday they had nine gains, of which one was in Scotland and one in Ireland.

London, Jan. 25.—The Liberals have had another bad day in the English counties, and are likely to have another one to-morrow, when the results of forty-nine divisions will be declared.

The Unionists gained nine divisions from Cumberland to Sussex and from Essex to Wiltshire. Even so popular a turfman as Sir Charles D. Ross could not save Newmarket for the Liberals, and old conservative strongholds were regained with facility.

The net Unionist gain at midnight was 95, with 82 per cent of the seats in the House of Commons filled. Even with the remaining English counties running strongly in favor of the Unionists, the government is likely to have a majority of over a hundred, and not be absolutely dependent upon the Nationalists.

The results of eight of to-day's elections, three in England and five in Scotland, were made known late to-night. Two Yorkshire divisions, Morley and Normanton, which were uncontested by Unionists at the previous election, returned a Liberal and a Labor member respectively, with a smashing majority in each case.

The number of members elected now reaches 560, out of 670, comprising 214 Liberals, 36 Laborites, 72 Nationalists and 238 Unionists, making the present coalition majority 84.

While the extremists on both sides are talking excitedly about excluding the Irish votes from the reckoning or dragging the King into party strife, moderate men will control the situation and probably succeed in effecting a settlement of the constitutional issues.

Mr. Balfour has already quieted his unruly followers, Lord Milner and the Right Hon. Alfred Lyttelton among them, by declaring that the budget will go through if there is a majority for it in the new House of Commons.

The financial difficulties will possibly be removed by the withdrawal of the opposition to the budget in both houses.

The veto question, with the statutory safeguards which the Prime Minister has declared he must have if he retains office, is more serious. There will be a solid coalition of the majority in the House of Commons for the act prohibiting the Lords from interfering with financial measures, and presumably for the veto law on the lines proposed by the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

But the effective means of securing the consent of the Lords to these measures is not disclosed.

The British constitution has been thrown out of gear by the unprecedented course of the Lords in hanging up the budget. The machine must be repaired before it can run smoothly. A statesmanlike settlement of the relations of the two houses, brought about by conferences of moderate men representing the government and the Opposition, is more important than the immediate change in the fiscal system or the revival of Gladstonian Home Rule.

In this way the rights of the majority will be upheld and the crown kept out of a demoralizing conflict between the parties.

ELECTIONS END SOON.

English Contests Finish with the Week.

London, Jan. 25.—Sir A. F. Acland-Hood, the chief Unionist whip, retained his seat for the West Division of Somersetshire. Among those defeated were F. H. Newman, the newspaper proprietor, who previously held the seat for the Northern, or Basset, law, Division of Nottinghamshire, for the Liberals.

D. D. Sheehan was elected for the Mid-division of Cork County as an Independent Nationalist, defeating the official Redmondite candidate by a majority of 828. Sheehan is the seventh anti-Redmond Nationalist thus far elected. In 1907 he challenged the leadership of John Redmond, and subsequently resigned his seat, but was re-elected.

The elections will continue throughout the week, but the chances of the Unionists obtaining a majority or of the Liberals securing enough seats to render them independent of the laborites and Nationalists have now disappeared, and it becomes a most interesting question as to how the Liberal government is going to meet the difficult task before it. The air is full of suggestions of compromise, but nothing is likely to be decided until the Prime Minister calls a meeting of the Cabinet next
