NEW MILK ACTION.

Directors Indicted as Individuals—Poultry Next.

The grand jury which investigated the Milk Trust returned individual indictments yesterday against the eight directors formerly charged with conspiracy under a blanket indictment, and received instructions from Justice Goff to meet this afternoon and take up a further investigation of high food prices under the direction of District Attorney Whitman.

The new investigation will have to do with an alleged combination of live poultry dealers to raise prices. The conspiracy indictments against the Milk Trust charge that on April 29 and on July 29 the directors conspired to fix the "value" of milk. Each of them is charged in an individual indictment with having violated the law when he cast lots, as it is alleged, with his associates, to determine that "value" or price.

The indicted men appeared in court yesterday and were released in bonds of $1,000 each. They will be arraigned for pleading next Thursday.

William Travers Jerome appeared as counsel for Daniel A. McBride, Daniel Bailey, Thomas O. Smith, Henry F. Huntman and Frederick E. Seller, and the other three directors were represented by Alfred Ely, counsel for the Consolidated Milk Exchange.
