

notes now and shall have them to-morrow night."
Meanwhile every effort is being made by New York State Representatives and Republican leaders in close touch with the federal administration to swing a sufficient number of Senators to Hinman to insure his success.

"I told him I was pledged to Cobb and should vote for him," said Brough. "I realize that the connection of Woodruff and Barnes with Cobb's candidacy has damaged it, but they jumped aboard the Cobb band wagon. They were not invited and not wanted. Cobb's a good man, and the best man for the place."

Sherman Takes Hand in Fight. Vice-President Sherman also talked with Senator Heacock, of Herkimer county. Heacock's county is part of Sherman's old Congress district.

Hinman men declare with much positiveness that when the time for a vote comes in to-morrow's caucus Senator Hinman will have an ample margin of safety. This will be brought about by no improper interference or pressure from federal officeholders, they maintain, but by the simple power of argument and indications of the temper of the constituents of those Senators who change to Hinman.

"Now consider the situation," said a prominent Republican to-night. "It isn't much of a secret what induced Senator Root to take so positive a stand. It is pretty well known here that he had heard the most alarming reports of a likelihood that Senator Allds would be whitewashed if the old guard elected its candidate. This election of a temporary president is really a small thing in the political game being played now, but the consequences of permitting the wrong move to be made first were apparent to Senator Root.

Could Restore Prestige. The right man as the party's representative at the head of the Senate majority could bring restored prestige and credit to the party and insure victory this fall because of the people's approval of the party record. As good an American as Senator Cobb is conceded to be, elected by the men who now are supporting him, he could not, in my judgment, prevent those men from taking actual command away from him and shaping such a course in the Legislature as would bring down on the Republican party the utmost leathling and contempt of every decent voter without much regard to party."

The issue which Senator Davis's supporters made early in the Davis-Cobb contest—support or opposition for the Higher legislation and the Governor's desire for a new political deal—has been intensified by Senator Root's support of Hinman as a "Hughes candidate" on a "Hughes platform." The federal administration, so far as this state is concerned, now is pledged quite as definitely as Governor Hughes to the so-called Hughes policies and the "new deal" with Woodruff deposed and a progressive Republican in his place, and in the opinion of many politicians here the federal administration is more directly concerned than Governor Hughes.

They reason that the Governor's political career—temporarily, anyhow—is to end on December 31. But before that time Congress must be elected, and the result of the campaign will be considered in connection with the election. Also a state ticket is to be elected. It is a foregone conclusion, to these men, that Governor Hughes's active participation in the campaign will be necessary to save the state ticket and with it the Congressmen. Certain legislators say the Washington Republicans are not willing to commit political suicide now by alienating Governor Hughes, if some Republicans here are.

There was a report to-night that Mr. Littleton would make use of the Root telegram for the benefit of Senator Allds when the investigation of the Conger charges opens to-morrow.

Yesterday Conger's attorney held Allds up to condemnation because he confessed that he followed the orders of Senator Platt when the latter was party leader against his own convictions. Littleton, it is said, will introduce the Root telegram in evidence to show that a member of the Legislature is expected to obey the state leader, regardless of his individual ideas.

If Mr. Root's leadership is disowned, some Republicans declared to-night that nothing but the return of Theodore Roosevelt could cement the party in time to present an unbroken front to the enemy at the next state election.

Washington, March 9.—Senator Root said to-day that he had no present intention of going to Albany on account of the situation there. He added that he had expressed his opinion and that he did not now foresee that he would be called on to do more.

Notwithstanding this announcement, it is known that Senator Root has been in telegraph and telephone communication with friends in Albany and that he contemplates going to New York City on Saturday. Whether he will confer at that time with Republican state leaders cannot be said.

NOT THE ONLY CREATOR. Justice Gerard decided yesterday that Giuseppe Creatore, leader of the band bearing his name, was not the only creator in creation. The band applied to the court for an injunction restraining Francesco Creatore, who leads a small band, from advertising himself as the nephew of the "great Creator." But the defendant showed his right to the name was clear and the court denied the application.

PROF. MARY WHITNEY STRICKEN. Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 9.—Professor Mary Whitney, head of the astronomy department of Yassar College, suffered a stroke of apoplexy yesterday, and to-night her condition is very critical.

Hunyadi Janos. Natural Laxative Water. Speedy Sure Gentle. Drink Half a Glass on Arising for CONSTIPATION.

SAIL WITH MEXICAN BIRDS. Prince and Princess Radziwill Take Home Large Collection. The Prince and Princess Radziwill of Poland, who came through New York several months ago on an ornithological trip to Mexico, returned to Europe yesterday on the Cunarder Lusitania. The prince, who is a student of birds and who has a rare collection of the feathered tribe in Poland, took with him on the Lusitania many cages of cockatoos, parrots and other birds peculiar to Mexico.

SLIDE AGAIN BLOCKS C. P. Vancouver, March 9.—A snowslide to-day at Glacier again blocked the Canadian Pacific railway. The avalanche was half a mile long and thirty feet deep. All trains will be delayed. The main line from Revelstoke to Calgary, is closed.

STUDENT'S DEFENCE FOR CRIME. Stable Will Tell His Side To-day of McGrath Killing. The defence in the case of Vincent Stable, the City College student on trial in General Sessions charged with murder in the first degree, will open to-day. The prosecution rested last night with the placing in evidence of the revolver which Stable is alleged to have killed John McGrath on September 25, in front of No. 54 West 42d street.

Among the witnesses who testified yesterday was Agnes Scott, a friend of McGrath, who stated that she was talking to him, when she heard a pistol shot, saw McGrath fall and saw Stable walk away from behind him.

Deckhand Jumps Into Icy River and Pulls Workman Ashore. Gustave F. Merkle, a deckhand on the Department of Correction's steamer Massasoit, at the risk of his own life, saved a man from drowning near Stanton street and the East River last evening. The rescued man is Emile Hausman, of No. 107 Goerck street.

Not in Milk Trust. The Original and Genuine HORLICK'S MALTED MILK. The Food-drink for All Ages. At restaurants, hotels and fountains. Delicious, invigorating and sustaining. Keep it on your sideboard at home. Don't travel without it. A quick lunch prepared in a minute. Take no substitute. Ask for HORLICK'S. Others are imitations.

Margaret Murtha. 17 West 30th St. SALE AT THIS STORE ONLY. THURSDAY AND FRIDAY. BALANCE OF OUR STOCK OF Tea Gowns, Dinner Gowns, Negligees, Made of Crepe de Chine, Chiffon, Zenana Flannel. At 50% Reduction.

CRYSTAL DOMINO SUGAR. BEST SUGAR FOR TEA AND COFFEE! BY GROCERS EVERYWHERE!

TROOPS CALLED OUT TO PRESERVE ORDER IN CORINTH, N. Y.

Company of Militia, Ordered to Papermakers' Town, Received Without Violence.

Corinth, N. Y., March 9.—State troops, flushed from Saratoga to-day to prevent further acts of violence which have characterized the strike of paper makers and sulpitite workers of the International Paper Company, guard the company's plant here to-night, but there has been no trouble since their arrival. The troops marched through the town this afternoon, equipped for action and prepared to shoot if necessary, but there was no demonstration by either strikers or sympathizers.

Four hundred union men in the Fort Edward plant of the company voted in mass meeting to-night to strike at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

A delegation of strikers left here late to-night to intercept a party of strike breakers en route from Wilton.

Nearly twelve hundred men are now out in this vicinity—six hundred here, three hundred at Glens Falls and two hundred at South Glens Falls. It is expected in addition that a strike in sympathy will be declared in the company's plant at Niagara Falls. The men demand a 10 per cent increase in wages, recognition of the union and no Sunday work.

The armed strike breakers, brought here by the International Paper Company in express cars of a regular passenger train, were arrested to-night by the village police, charged with carrying concealed weapons, and locked up. There is a general belief that any attempt to import strike breakers on a large scale will be bitterly resented and is sure to provoke trouble.

Several small parties of strike breakers have been despatched from Saratoga to the mills at South Glens Falls, but none being brought here to-night, and the main body of strike breakers is still held there for orders.

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 9.—Three hundred union men walked out of the South Glens Falls mills of the International Paper Company this afternoon, and less than five minutes later fifty strike-breakers walked in. They were admitted singly, through the company's office, and not until they were safely inside did the strikers fathom the trick, but they showed no open anger and made no demonstration. Provisions and bedding are being taken to the mills, and officers of the company say they will run the business on their own terms or not at all, even if the mills never turn another wheel. Every hour brings its small batch of strike breakers from Troy and Saratoga by trolley, but they have not been molested or detained thus far, nor has it been thought necessary to mobilize the local national guard.

Against the resolute and energetic stand of the company is the united front of the men. In the last paper strike, two years ago, the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers did not support the International Brotherhood of Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers when the latter walked out, and in the long strike that followed the Sulphite Workers' lost. Now both unions have joined hands.

At a union meeting held here late this afternoon President Cary of the Paper Makers and President Malin of the Sulphite Workers sat side by side and cooperated in the appointment of an executive committee of ten to direct the local situation. This arrangement follows that adopted at Corinth.

The company's mills at Fort Edward probably will be closed to-morrow, making the shutdown in this vicinity complete.

A. N. Borbank, president of the International Paper Company, issued this statement last night: The strike at the International Paper Company's mill at Corinth came without any preliminary demands of any nature having been made on the company, nor has any grievance been alleged since. When the strike of 1908 at all the mills of the company was ended the Paper Makers' Union was disbanded, but the Pulp Makers' Union, which had not participated in the strike, retained its organization.

Having recently affiliated itself under the working agreement with the remnants of the Paper Makers' Union, the two unions, without provocation, have assumed an antagonistic attitude toward the company, and, although no complaints have been presented and no proposition made to the company, rumors were rife that a strike would be ordered at the Corinth mill on March 9. The strike, however, was a paper mill worker, who had been reported as taking some of the company's property without authority from its premises, was discharged therefor. A few paper makers refused to continue working unless this offender was taken back.

Their places were filled by others, and nothing further occurred until Sunday, when all the men except firemen and carpenters voted to strike. The company was therefore unable to start its plant on Monday.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 9.—About four hundred men were thrown out of work here to-day by a strike of the fifty paper makers in the local plant of the International Paper Company. The men declare that they are out for a 10 per cent advance in wages, but officials of the company say that the walkout is a sympathetic movement to support the strike at other plants of the company.

OSBORNE'S BUSY DAY. CONGER LAYERS GOES OVER ALDS'S ACCOUNTS. MR. PRICE EXPLAINS. Says Senator Bought and Paid for Vehicle Stock.

Frank Julian Price, now an Assistant Corporation Counsel and formerly an Assembly colleague of Senator Allds and a fellow lodger with him in the so-called House of Commons in 1909, said last night that he had received a tip which he gave to Allds that the Senator purchased one hundred shares of the New York Electrical Vehicle and Transportation Company, about which Senator Allds testified on Tuesday.

"I have looked up the matter," said Mr. Price, "and though I do not find any correspondence, I have found two entries in my father's books showing that Allds paid him for the stock in two separate payments, aggregating $1,200. The first payment was by check and was for $500, and as to the final payment there is nothing to show whether it was by check or cash."

The stock was bought by both himself and Allds, Mr. Price went on, because of a tip he had received that it was a good thing to buy, and the transaction was conducted through his father, Colonel George A. Price.

He did not recall all the details of the matter, he said, but he emphasized the point that he was perfectly clear in his recollection of the fact that Allds bought and paid for his stock as any one would do.

"Just an Ordinary Deal." He purchased it at my suggestion, because I had received the tip," said Mr. Price. "It was just an ordinary deal, and I had a tip, and I don't think it is good, but this suggestion that Allds didn't purchase that stock is nothing more than an infernal imputation."

Theodore P. Gilman and Edward H. Fallows, who were also fellow lodgers with Allds and Price in the House of Commons, and who were mentioned by Senator Allds on Tuesday, his testimony regarding the transaction, entered that denial yesterday that he had bought the stock for Allds.

"I never bought any stock for or with Mr. Allds or any one else in that House," said Mr. Gilman. "I have a faint recollection of Price having had a tip. What the others did I don't know, but I know I never bought any stock. I wasn't a stock buyer then or now."

Mr. Fallows was equally positive that he had never bought any stock for Senator Allds, either then or at any other time. "I don't even recall the incident," he said. Last night, however, after communicating with Mr. Price, Mr. Fallows recalled the fact that he had spoken of it to him, but he was positive that he had never bought stock for Allds nor for himself on that tip.

BACKS UP ALLDS. MR. PRICE EXPLAINS. Says Senator Bought and Paid for Vehicle Stock.

Frank Julian Price, now an Assistant Corporation Counsel and formerly an Assembly colleague of Senator Allds and a fellow lodger with him in the so-called House of Commons in 1909, said last night that he had received a tip which he gave to Allds that the Senator purchased one hundred shares of the New York Electrical Vehicle and Transportation Company, about which Senator Allds testified on Tuesday.

"I have looked up the matter," said Mr. Price, "and though I do not find any correspondence, I have found two entries in my father's books showing that Allds paid him for the stock in two separate payments, aggregating $1,200. The first payment was by check and was for $500, and as to the final payment there is nothing to show whether it was by check or cash."

The stock was bought by both himself and Allds, Mr. Price went on, because of a tip he had received that it was a good thing to buy, and the transaction was conducted through his father, Colonel George A. Price.

He did not recall all the details of the matter, he said, but he emphasized the point that he was perfectly clear in his recollection of the fact that Allds bought and paid for his stock as any one would do.

"Just an Ordinary Deal." He purchased it at my suggestion, because I had received the tip," said Mr. Price. "It was just an ordinary deal, and I had a tip, and I don't think it is good, but this suggestion that Allds didn't purchase that stock is nothing more than an infernal imputation."

Theodore P. Gilman and Edward H. Fallows, who were also fellow lodgers with Allds and Price in the House of Commons, and who were mentioned by Senator Allds on Tuesday, his testimony regarding the transaction, entered that denial yesterday that he had bought the stock for Allds.

"I never bought any stock for or with Mr. Allds or any one else in that House," said Mr. Gilman. "I have a faint recollection of Price having had a tip. What the others did I don't know, but I know I never bought any stock. I wasn't a stock buyer then or now."

Mr. Fallows was equally positive that he had never bought any stock for Senator Allds, either then or at any other time. "I don't even recall the incident," he said. Last night, however, after communicating with Mr. Price, Mr. Fallows recalled the fact that he had spoken of it to him, but he was positive that he had never bought stock for Allds nor for himself on that tip.

Mr. Price said it was his recollection that the tip had been generally accepted by both Gilman and Fallows, as well as Allds, but on looking up the records of his father's books he found only the entries concerning his own purchases and that of Senator Allds.

Senator Allds's recital of the facts relating to the stock purchase, as given under cross-examination on Tuesday, differed slightly from the version given yesterday by the former Assemblyman now in this city.

Price Ready to Testify. When he was asked to tell the Senate how he came to buy the stock Senator Allds testified: "One of the members of the house in which we lived made a purchase for three or four members of the family there, and the shares of stock, the one hundred to which I subscribed, were issued to me in my name."

He then mentioned three members of the "family" of the House of Commons—Gilman, Price and Fallows—as the men he thought had bought the stock for him.

Mr. Price declares it was "a temptation in a teapot" and "an infernal imputation" to try to make it seem that Allds had not bought and paid for the stock, and he stood ready, he said, to go to Albany if Senator Allds's counsel wanted him to testify to the records in his father's books and his recollection of the whole transaction.

"In the mean time," said Mr. Price last night, "I am sending Senator Allds a statement of the whole matter as I remember it, with a copy of the entries in my father's books bearing on his part in the transaction, which will show conclusively that Allds bought and paid for his stock."

CRITICISES FUND. Editor Suggests Changes in Rockefeller Fund.

In an article on "Social Forces" the editor of "The Survey" writes in the current issue of that publication that a dispassionate study of bequests and endowments will at least raise very serious doubts as to the wisdom of the Rockefeller Foundation in its proposed form. The editor believes that too very breadth and liberality of the charter of the new foundation might conceivably lead to artificial and untimely support for established institutions and agencies which are blocking human progress, and continues:

The personal property and funds of the foundation are to be exempt from taxation. Assuming that the endowment yields 4 per cent and is all productive, and that ordinary taxation absorbs annually 1.3 per cent of the value of the property, that means that taxpayers who are not exempt are furnishing annually and in perpetuity one-third of the resources of the foundation. The value of the property thus withdrawn from taxation will amount, according to some estimates, to a thousand million dollars. Frederick T. Gates, who doubtless knows as much as any one about it, intimates that even one-half of this sum is an exaggeration.

The article brings forward the question whether the withdrawal forever of such a sum from taxation does not in effect constitute the nation a partner in the beneficent enterprise, and suggests the following additional provisions:

That the government should have a voice in the selection of corporators and trustees. That it should be stipulated that the annual income during the life of the endowment should actually be a thousand million dollars. That within a specified period, which might properly be a hundred years or more, any given endowment should be entirely expended, both principal and interest.

SAVES MAN FROM DROWNING. Deckhand Jumps Into Icy River and Pulls Workman Ashore. Gustave F. Merkle, a deckhand on the Department of Correction's steamer Massasoit, at the risk of his own life, saved a man from drowning near Stanton street and the East River last evening. The rescued man is Emile Hausman, of No. 107 Goerck street.

Hausman had been working on a scow tied up near the Massasoit and fell into the water while trying to climb from the deck of the scow to the pierhead by pulling himself up hand over hand on a rope. A boy saw Hausman fall, and his cries attracted Merkle, who swam out and brought Hausman ashore. The rescuer lives at No. 24 East 29th street.

MR. ALDRICH TO WED MARCH 28. (By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Boston, March 9.—The marriage of Miss Dorothy Davenport, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Davenport, of Beacon street, to William T. Aldrich, son of Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, is to take place at the home of the bride's parents, when she is married, March 28. Mr. Aldrich is an architect connected with the New York firm of Carrere & Hastings.

OSBORNE'S BUSY DAY. CONGER LAYERS GOES OVER ALDS'S ACCOUNTS. MR. PRICE EXPLAINS. Says Senator Bought and Paid for Vehicle Stock.

Frank Julian Price, now an Assistant Corporation Counsel and formerly an Assembly colleague of Senator Allds and a fellow lodger with him in the so-called House of Commons in 1909, said last night that he had received a tip which he gave to Allds that the Senator purchased one hundred shares of the New York Electrical Vehicle and Transportation Company, about which Senator Allds testified on Tuesday.

"I have looked up the matter," said Mr. Price, "and though I do not find any correspondence, I have found two entries in my father's books showing that Allds paid him for the stock in two separate payments, aggregating $1,200. The first payment was by check and was for $500, and as to the final payment there is nothing to show whether it was by check or cash."

The stock was bought by both himself and Allds, Mr. Price went on, because of a tip he had received that it was a good thing to buy, and the transaction was conducted through his father, Colonel George A. Price.

He did not recall all the details of the matter, he said, but he emphasized the point that he was perfectly clear in his recollection of the fact that Allds bought and paid for his stock as any one would do.

"Just an Ordinary Deal." He purchased it at my suggestion, because I had received the tip," said Mr. Price. "It was just an ordinary deal, and I had a tip, and I don't think it is good, but this suggestion that Allds didn't purchase that stock is nothing more than an infernal imputation."

Theodore P. Gilman and Edward H. Fallows, who were also fellow lodgers with Allds and Price in the House of Commons, and who were mentioned by Senator Allds on Tuesday, his testimony regarding the transaction, entered that denial yesterday that he had bought the stock for Allds.

"I never bought any stock for or with Mr. Allds or any one else in that House," said Mr. Gilman. "I have a faint recollection of Price having had a tip. What the others did I don't know, but I know I never bought any stock. I wasn't a stock buyer then or now."

Mr. Fallows was equally positive that he had never bought any stock for Senator Allds, either then or at any other time. "I don't even recall the incident," he said. Last night, however, after communicating with Mr. Price, Mr. Fallows recalled the fact that he had spoken of it to him, but he was positive that he had never bought stock for Allds nor for himself on that tip.

Mr. Price said it was his recollection that the tip had been generally accepted by both Gilman and Fallows, as well as Allds, but on looking up the records of his father's books he found only the entries concerning his own purchases and that of Senator Allds.

Senator Allds's recital of the facts relating to the stock purchase, as given under cross-examination on Tuesday, differed slightly from the version given yesterday by the former Assemblyman now in this city.

Price Ready to Testify. When he was asked to tell the Senate how he came to buy the stock Senator Allds testified: "One of the members of the house in which we lived made a purchase for three or four members of the family there, and the shares of stock, the one hundred to which I subscribed, were issued to me in my name."

He then mentioned three members of the "family" of the House of Commons—Gilman, Price and Fallows—as the men he thought had bought the stock for him.

Mr. Price declares it was "a temptation in a teapot" and "an infernal imputation" to try to make it seem that Allds had not bought and paid for the stock, and he stood ready, he said, to go to Albany if Senator Allds's counsel wanted him to testify to the records in his father's books and his recollection of the whole transaction.

"In the mean time," said Mr. Price last night, "I am sending Senator Allds a statement of the whole matter as I remember it, with a copy of the entries in my father's books bearing on his part in the transaction, which will show conclusively that Allds bought and paid for his stock."

CRITICISES FUND. Editor Suggests Changes in Rockefeller Fund.

In an article on "Social Forces" the editor of "The Survey" writes in the current issue of that publication that a dispassionate study of bequests and endowments will at least raise very serious doubts as to the wisdom of the Rockefeller Foundation in its proposed form. The editor believes that too very breadth and liberality of the charter of the new foundation might conceivably lead to artificial and untimely support for established institutions and agencies which are blocking human progress, and continues:

The personal property and funds of the foundation are to be exempt from taxation. Assuming that the endowment yields 4 per cent and is all productive, and that ordinary taxation absorbs annually 1.3 per cent of the value of the property, that means that taxpayers who are not exempt are furnishing annually and in perpetuity one-third of the resources of the foundation. The value of the property thus withdrawn from taxation will amount, according to some estimates, to a thousand million dollars. Frederick T. Gates, who doubtless knows as much as any one about it, intimates that even one-half of this sum is an exaggeration.

The article brings forward the question whether the withdrawal forever of such a sum from taxation does not in effect constitute the nation a partner in the beneficent enterprise, and suggests the following additional provisions:

That the government should have a voice in the selection of corporators and trustees. That it should be stipulated that the annual income during the life of the endowment should actually be a thousand million dollars. That within a specified period, which might properly be a hundred years or more, any given endowment should be entirely expended, both principal and interest.

SAVES MAN FROM DROWNING. Deckhand Jumps Into Icy River and Pulls Workman Ashore. Gustave F. Merkle, a deckhand on the Department of Correction's steamer Massasoit, at the risk of his own life, saved a man from drowning near Stanton street and the East River last evening. The rescued man is Emile Hausman, of No. 107 Goerck street.

Hausman had been working on a scow tied up near the Massasoit and fell into the water while trying to climb from the deck of the scow to the pierhead by pulling himself up hand over hand on a rope. A boy saw Hausman fall, and his cries attracted Merkle, who swam out and brought Hausman ashore. The rescuer lives at No. 24 East 29th street.

MR. ALDRICH TO WED MARCH 28. (By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Boston, March 9.—The marriage of Miss Dorothy Davenport, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Davenport, of Beacon street, to William T. Aldrich, son of Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, is to take place at the home of the bride's parents, when she is married, March 28. Mr. Aldrich is an architect connected with the New York firm of Carrere & Hastings.

STUDENT'S DEFENCE FOR CRIME. Stable Will Tell His Side To-day of McGrath Killing. The defence in the case of Vincent Stable, the City College student on trial in General Sessions charged with murder in the first degree, will open to-day. The prosecution rested last night with the placing in evidence of the revolver which Stable is alleged to have killed John McGrath on September 25, in front of No. 54 West 42d street.

Among the witnesses who testified yesterday was Agnes Scott, a friend of McGrath, who stated that she was talking to him, when she heard a pistol shot, saw McGrath fall and saw Stable walk away from behind him.

OSBORNE'S BUSY DAY. CONGER LAYERS GOES OVER ALDS'S ACCOUNTS. MR. PRICE EXPLAINS. Says Senator Bought and Paid for Vehicle Stock.

Frank Julian Price, now an Assistant Corporation Counsel and formerly an Assembly colleague of Senator Allds and a fellow lodger with him in the so-called House of Commons in 1909, said last night that he had received a tip which he gave to Allds that the Senator purchased one hundred shares of the New York Electrical Vehicle and Transportation Company, about which Senator Allds testified on Tuesday.

"I have looked up the matter," said Mr. Price, "and though I do not find any correspondence, I have found two entries in my father's books showing that Allds paid him for the stock in two separate payments, aggregating $1,200. The first payment was by check and was for $500, and as to the final payment there is nothing to show whether it was by check or cash."

The stock was bought by both himself and Allds, Mr. Price went on, because of a tip he had received that it was a good thing to buy, and the transaction was conducted through his father, Colonel George A. Price.

He did not recall all the details of the matter, he said, but he emphasized the point that he was perfectly clear in his recollection of the fact that Allds bought and paid for his stock as any one would do.

"Just an Ordinary Deal." He purchased it at my suggestion, because I had received the tip," said Mr. Price. "It was just an ordinary deal, and I had a tip, and I don't think it is good, but this suggestion that Allds didn't purchase that stock is nothing more than an infernal imputation."

Theodore P. Gilman and Edward H. Fallows, who were also fellow lodgers with Allds and Price in the House of Commons, and who were mentioned by Senator Allds on Tuesday, his testimony regarding the transaction, entered that denial yesterday that he had bought the stock for Allds.

"I never bought any stock for or with Mr. Allds or any one else in that House," said Mr. Gilman. "I have a faint recollection of Price having had a tip. What the others did I don't know, but I know I never bought any stock. I wasn't a stock buyer then or now."

Mr. Fallows was equally positive that he had never bought any stock for Senator Allds, either then or at any other time. "I don't even recall the incident," he said. Last night, however, after communicating with Mr. Price, Mr. Fallows recalled the fact that he had spoken of it to him, but he was positive that he had never bought stock for Allds nor for himself on that tip.

Mr. Price said it was his recollection that the tip had been generally accepted by both Gilman and Fallows, as well as Allds, but on looking up the records of his father's books he found only the entries concerning his own purchases and that of Senator Allds.

Senator Allds's recital of the facts relating to the stock purchase, as given under cross-examination on Tuesday, differed slightly from the version given yesterday by the former Assemblyman now in this city.

Price Ready to Testify. When he was asked to tell the Senate how he came to buy the stock Senator Allds testified: "One of the members of the house in which we lived made a purchase for three or four members of the family there, and the shares of stock, the one hundred to which I subscribed, were issued to me in my name."

He then mentioned three members of the "family" of the House of Commons—Gilman, Price and Fallows—as the men he thought had bought the stock for him.

Mr. Price declares it was "a temptation in a teapot" and "an infernal imputation" to try to make it seem that Allds had not bought and paid for the stock, and he stood ready, he said, to go to Albany if Senator Allds's counsel wanted him to testify to the records in his father's books and his recollection of the whole transaction.

"In the mean time," said Mr. Price last night, "I am sending Senator Allds a statement of the whole matter as I remember it, with a copy of the entries in my father's books bearing on his part in the transaction, which will show conclusively that Allds bought and paid for his stock."

CRITICISES FUND. Editor Suggests Changes in Rockefeller Fund.

In an article on "Social Forces" the editor of "The Survey" writes in the current issue of that publication that a dispassionate study of bequests and endowments will at least raise very serious doubts as to the wisdom of the Rockefeller Foundation in its proposed form. The editor believes that too very breadth and liberality of the charter of the new foundation might conceivably lead to artificial and untimely support for established institutions and agencies which are blocking human progress, and continues:

The personal property and funds of the foundation are to be exempt from taxation. Assuming that the endowment yields 4 per cent and is all productive, and that ordinary taxation absorbs annually 1.3 per cent of the value of the property, that means that taxpayers who are not exempt are furnishing annually and in perpetuity one-third of the resources of the foundation. The value of the property thus withdrawn from taxation will amount, according to some estimates, to a thousand million dollars. Frederick T. Gates, who doubtless knows as much as any one about it, intimates that even one-half of this sum is an exaggeration.

The article brings forward the question whether the withdrawal forever of such a sum from taxation does not in effect constitute the nation a partner in the beneficent enterprise, and suggests the following additional provisions:

That the government should have a voice in the selection of corporators and trustees. That it should be stipulated that the annual income during the life of the endowment should actually be a thousand million dollars. That within a specified period, which might properly be a hundred years or more, any given endowment should be entirely expended, both principal and interest.

SAVES MAN FROM DROWNING. Deckhand Jumps Into Icy River and Pulls Workman Ashore. Gustave F. Merkle, a deckhand on the Department of Correction's steamer Massasoit, at the risk of his own life, saved a man from drowning near Stanton street and the East River last evening. The rescued man is Emile Hausman, of No. 107 Goerck street.

Hausman had been working on a scow tied up near the Massasoit and fell into the water while trying to climb from the deck of the scow to the pierhead by pulling himself up hand over hand on a rope. A boy saw Hausman fall, and his cries attracted Merkle, who swam out and brought Hausman ashore. The rescuer lives at No. 24 East 29th street.

MR. ALDRICH TO WED MARCH 28. (By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Boston, March 9.—The marriage of Miss Dorothy Davenport, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Davenport, of Beacon street, to William T. Aldrich, son of Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, is to take place at the home of the bride's parents, when she is married, March 28. Mr. Aldrich is an architect connected with the New York firm of Carrere & Hastings.

STUDENT'S DEFENCE FOR CRIME. Stable Will Tell His Side To-day of McGrath Killing. The defence in the case of Vincent Stable, the City College student on trial in General Sessions charged with murder in the first degree, will open to-day. The prosecution rested last night with the placing in evidence of the revolver which Stable is alleged to have killed John McGrath on September 25, in front of No. 54 West 42d street.

Among the witnesses who testified yesterday was Agnes Scott, a friend of McGrath, who stated that she was talking to him, when she heard a pistol shot, saw McGrath fall and saw Stable walk away from behind him.