Ancient Ceremonies of Proclamation Carried Out in Capital of the Empire.

TRUCE IN WAR OF HOUSES

Desire to Give the New Ruler Time to Decide on Policy—Plans for Funeral—Royal Children at Pageant.

(By Cable to The Tribune.)

London, May 9.—London took a sudden plunge into medieval tradition to-day when George V was proclaimed with ancient ceremonial.

It was a well ordered military pageant, with seven thousand troopers keeping the line for the royal carriages to the Mansion House, but the unheeded incidents had more human interest than the medieval mummery.

The cavalcade, under the escort of the Life Guards, halted at Charing Cross for a second reading of the proclamation by another herald, and at Temple Bar for the traditional challenge from the city trumpeters and the Lord Mayor and the removal of the scarlet silken cord.

Queen Mary was not proclaimed, although, like Queen Alexandra, she was destined to be crowned at Westminster Abbey by the Archbishop of York.

The programme for the funeral, which was announced to-day, provides for three days of lying in state at Westminster Hall, a march across London, similar to the solemn pageant at the closing of the Victorian reign, and a burial at Windsor with equal statefulness.

The Prime Minister, returning from a holiday voyage, has found the political situation entirely transformed. Even the fiery Radical press concludes that the King must be allowed a breathing space and that the question of royal guarantees must be deferred to a more convenient season.

NATION'S LIFE RESUMED

Theatres Not To Be Closed—Return of the Premier.

London, May 9.—George V was proclaimed King throughout the empire to-day, with all the ceremony of past centuries. In Dublin the Ulster King-at-Arms read the proclamation in the presence of Lord Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and Lady Aberdeen.

The country is now beginning to resume its normal life, the King's earnest desire being that except on the day of the funeral of Edward VII, which is now formally fixed for May 29, the national mourning should inflict no unnecessary sacrifices upon the people.

SERVICES OVER BODY OF KING

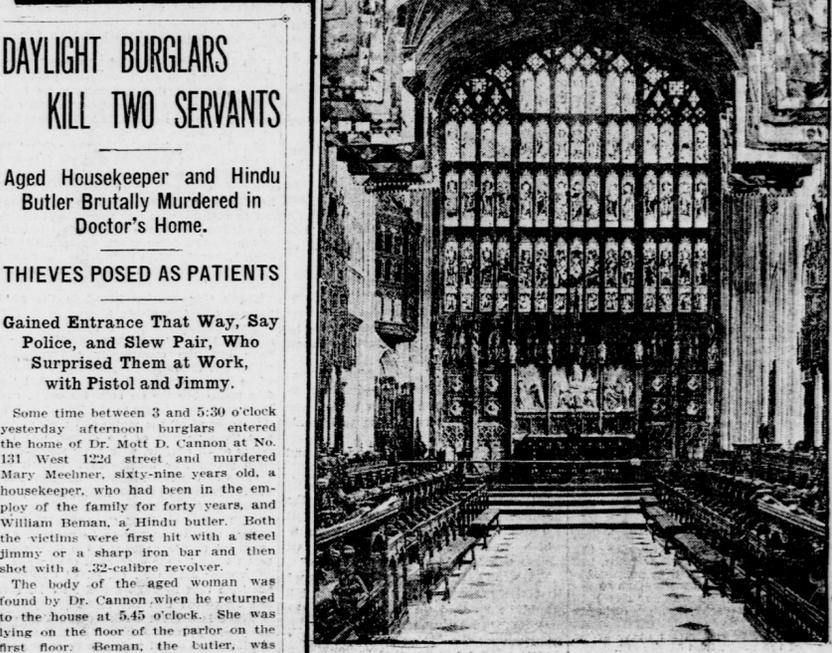

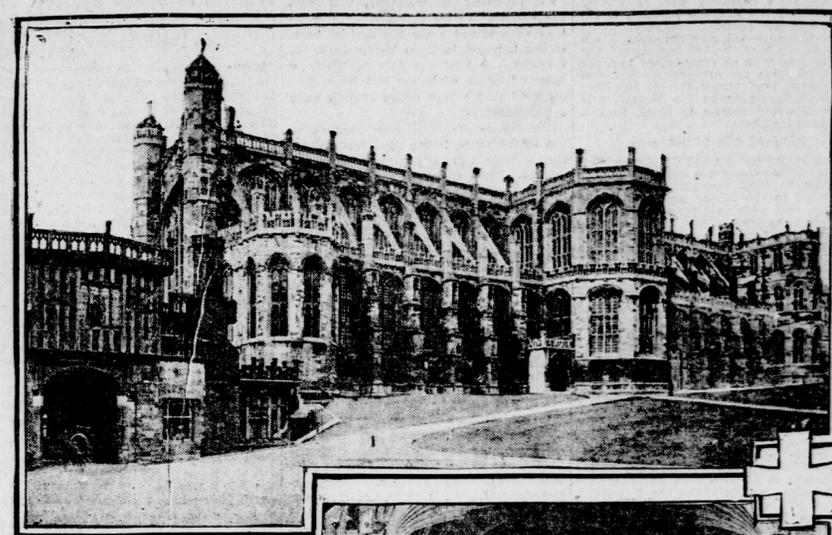

Many of King Edward's personal friends, including Earl Roberts, A. J. Balfour, Lord Curzon of Kedleston and Lord Kitchener, were permitted to view the body to-day, and late to-night, after a brief solemn service, which was attended by the widow and all the members of the royal family, including King George and Queen Mary, the body was transferred to the casket shell, which was kept open until after the arrival of Queen Maud of Norway.

DAYLIGHT BURGLARS KILL TWO SERVANTS

Aged Housekeeper and Hindu Butler Brutally Murdered in Doctor's Home.

THIEVES POSED AS PATIENTS

Gained Entrance That Way, Say Police, and Slew Pair, Who Surprised Them at Work, with Pistol and Jimmy.

Some time between 3 and 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon burglars entered the home of Dr. Mott D. Cannon at No. 131 West 122d street and murdered Mary Meehner, sixty-nine years old, a housekeeper, who had been in the employ of the family for forty years, and William Beman, a Hindu butler.

The body of the aged woman was found by Dr. Cannon when he returned to the house at 5:45 o'clock. She was lying on the floor of the parlor on the first floor. Beman, the butler, was found at the door of the basement, two jagged gashes in his head and a bullet wound behind the right ear.

Dr. Cannon's home is a four story house, of Indiana limestone, with a street entrance upon one flight of stone steps and a second entrance through the basement door, which is slightly below the street level. The house is in the middle of the block between Lenox and Seventh avenues and is adjoined by many private houses of well-to-do persons.

At the time of the tragedy in the house Dr. Cannon and the Misses Freeborn were out, having left the house about 3 o'clock. Only the housekeeper and Beman, the butler, were in the place when the burglars entered. It is the supposition of the police that the burglars gained admittance to the house by way of the front door, passing themselves off as patients of the doctor.

Surprised in Doctor's Room.

After the white haired servant had let them in, and had left them waiting in the front parlor, it is thought that she went back to the second floor, where she was looking over the doctor's monthly account book. It was then, according to the belief of the police, that the two men started in to ransack the place, going first to Dr. Cannon's room in the rear of the second floor.

AFT SURE OF RAILROAD BILL

President Tells Passaic Diners Measure Has Not Been Emaculated.

OTHERS EXPECTED TO PASS

Outbursts of Applause Mark Review Showing Satisfaction with Legislative Situation.

Passaic, N. J., May 9.—In a speech before the Passaic Board of Trade here to-night, in which he discussed the legislative situation at Washington, President Taft declared with a great deal of emphasis and amid an outburst of applause that the railroad bill has not been emasculated, and predicted that a satisfactory law would be passed.

"The bill," said the President, "still retains its important features, and I am hopeful that within the next two weeks we shall see the passage of the bill in both houses, the adjustment of the differences between the two houses and its final enactment."

The President declared that the newspaper reports of the crippling of the railroad bill had been greatly exaggerated, and he set out in detail the provisions of the measure as it now stands. He said he hoped the provision which permits a road owning 50 per cent of the stock of a competing road to acquire the remaining stock would be restored, and told why.

CONFIDENT BILLS WILL PASS

In his review of pending legislation Mr. Taft expressed the belief that the following measures will be enacted into law:

Statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, postal savings banks, anti-injunction, the so-called validating bill, the conservation measures, the publicity of campaign expenditures and the railroad bill.

In his comment on the delay in passing the statehood bill the President said that there was a "hesitation" on the part of the Republicans in the Senate to pass a bill which is "so likely to add four Democrats to the Senate."

"Or if not Democrats," he added, in taking what was regarded as a little passing reference to some insurgents, "then Republicans of that radical type who are entirely out of sympathy with the more conservative notions of the East."

In spite of this the President said he was very anxious that the party should carry out its statehood pledge, and he did not think he would be disappointed.

PRaises Passaic Leader

Mr. Taft gave his speech by referring smilingly to the energy displayed by the Board of Trade's president in securing Mr. Taft as a guest, stating that if Mr. Mason put the same amount of persistence in other purposes of the organization there was no limit to the usefulness the Board of Trade might not reach.

The President also touched briefly on the litigation between New York and New Jersey over the emptying of sewage into the Passaic River, and remarked that he hoped the liberal course of New Jersey in reaching a settlement with the federal government in the matter would appeal to the good sense of New York and permit of a similar result. Then the President took up national questions, saying:

You doubtless have been advised by your newspapers that there is certain legislation pending in Congress which the administration has a very intense interest, growing out of the fact that it was promised by the platform of the Republican party and has been recommended by the President to Congress, and I feel as if it might not be without some use for me to say what the condition of the legislation is and what the prospect is of its passage.

In the first place, the bill granting statehood to New Mexico and Arizona passed the House some months ago, but it is still pending in the Senate. Objections were made to the bill as it passed the House in regard to certain provisions as to elections which disfranchised Mexicans not speaking English, and as to the provisions made in respect to the public lands and the payment of the debts of the territories.

Hopes for Statehood Bill

There is a hesitation on the part of the Republicans in the Senate to pass a bill which is so likely to add four Democrats to the Senate, or if not Democrats, Republicans of that radical type that are entirely out of sympathy with the more conservative notions of the East. Still, there is a promise in the platform, distinct and clear, that the bill will pass. I am very anxious that the party shall meet its obligations in this regard, and enact the necessary legislation. I do not think that I shall be disappointed.

Police Try to Connect a Suicide and an Accident Case.

The police are working to unravel the mystery of a halfbreed Indian and a Mexican who were taken to hospitals yesterday afternoon, both suffering from gunshot wounds received almost at the same time, in houses a block apart in West 14th street. One case was reported as a suicide and the other as an accident. The two men were friends. Another Mexican, who was a friend of both, is locked up in the Charles street police station as a witness.

The Indian, Ulrich Kenrade, of No. 214 West 14th street, who was on the stage up to a few months ago, shot himself in the side and died in St. Vincent's Hospital soon after being admitted. Camille Cobent, eighteen years old, who occupied an adjoining room in the same house, was held by the police as a witness.

John Diaz, of No. 313 West 14th street, a clerk employed by Eduardo Sainz, a Mexican exporter, of No. 335 Broadway, was taken from his room fifteen minutes after the removal of Kenrade, with a bullet in his left breast, to the New York Hospital, where it was said that he cannot live. Diaz said the gun was accidentally discharged.

So far the police have been unable to connect the two shootings, although they learned that the Indian and Mexican were friends, and that Cobent is employed by a firm at No. 295 Broadway, the same building in which Diaz worked. Kenrade was a graduate of the Carlisle Indian school, and before going on the stage in "The Squaw Man" and "The Indian Mail Carrier" is said to have attended Columbia University.
