

FRESH AIR TRIP TO-DAY

Tribune Fund's First Trip of Season to the Catskills. One Hundred Children Go.

Diet Adapted to Each and Proper Exercise Await Little Ones at Shokan.

The summer season in the Catskills will be marked to-day by the arrival at Shokan, N. Y., of the first delegation of children to be sent out by the Tribune Fresh Air Fund this year.

The children will be one hundred in number. They have been living in anticipation of this expedition for weeks, and it is safe to say that few of them overstep this morning, so eager were they for the mountain vacation trip to begin.

The youngsters who will make up this party are undernourished children. They were all selected with one standard in mind—their need of rest and of upbuilding which can be accomplished only through proper nourishment of their impoverished systems.

The selections were all made for this party by hospital workers or by social service workers in hospitals.

At the home at Shokan a diet especially adapted to each child will be provided. In addition to this, precautions will be taken that the children shall not overdo in the matter of exercise.

The work of examining the children who are to constitute the future Fresh Air companies is going on busily. Yesterday the special physician of the fund inspected two lots of applicants. One of these groups was passed in review at No. 45 West first street and the other at No. 4 East 7th street.

The careful study of these physical examinations is that so small a proportion of the applicants pass. At the preliminary examination usually less than one-half of those inspected receive the official O. K., which indicates that they are free from eye and throat afflictions and that they are up to the standard of health.

The second examination always produces better results, but even then many of the little ones are turned away with tears in their eyes. In many cases the turning away is unavoidable, but, on the other hand, it is only a result of home conditions, with which the workers at the settlements, churches and missions from which the children come are unable to cope.

WILL OF STEWART M. BRICE

Widow and Adopted Son Beneficiaries of Estate of More than $10,000.

The will of Stewart M. Brice, son of the late Senator Calvin M. Brice and formerly a city councillor, who died at Asbury Park on June 9, was filed yesterday in the Surrogate's office. The value of his estate was said to be more than $10,000 in personal property.

The will directs that after payment of the debts of the testator the residue of his estate is to be divided into two parts, one consisting of nine-tenths and the other of one-tenth. The income of the nine-tenths is to be given to his widow, Catharine Mount Brice, for her maintenance and support for life, and the income of the one-tenth to his son, Marshall Cooper Mount, or Stewart M. Brice, Jr., who had been adopted by Mr. Brice. On his death the principal of the fund is to be divided among Mr. Brice's two sisters and two brothers, or their survivors.

The other one-tenth may be dealt with in the same way, the income going to Mrs. Isabelle Pearce for life, and on her death to Marvella Mount Brice, but as she is dead the income will go to young Brice, or Mount, for life, and then to his father's next of kin.

Louis M. Schwan and John Schwarzkopf were appointed executors of the will, which was executed on October 17, 1907.

OLIVARES STILL AT POST

NINE YEARS MUST ELAPSE

Eight Delegates Expected to Commit Suicide—Leaders Oppose Open Rebellion.

Peking, June 27.—An imperial decree issued to-day refuses the popular and insistent demand recently made for the immediate convocation of a national parliament. The urgent petition, which was presented by delegates to the provincial assemblies and was supported by organizations of merchants throughout the country, was considered at the first meeting of the Council of the Regent held during the absence of Prince Chun.

It appears that the Regent proposes to adhere to his original programme, which provides for a general legislative body, to be summoned nine years after the first meeting of the provincial assemblies, which were constituted by imperial decree on October 3, and concurrent with the summons of the national assemblies to meet on October 3, and announcement was made of ninety-six members, representing all classes, and the people were instructed to prepare for a constitution and to elect the delegates. The Regent wished the immediate convocation of a general popular legislative body, and in this ambition they were encouraged by many merchants, who have refused to pay the stamp tax, hoping in this way to influence Prince Chun.

The agitation increased early in June, when a delegation met in the capital and, memorializing the throne, announced their intention of remaining in Peking until their demands were granted. Eight of the number were pledged to suicide in case of a refusal.

The delegates included several from the Chinese colonies in the Philippines, Australia and elsewhere, and as they were believed to represent the revolutionary elements among Chinese living in foreign lands they were closely watched by the palace spies. The leaders of the movement, however, made known that they did not propose to employ drastic measures, fearing that an anti-dynastic revolution would result in the introduction into China of the armies of foreign powers.

VACCINE FOR TYPHOID

Dr. Vincent's Formula Believed To Be Same as U. S. Army's.

Chicago, June 27.—Simultaneously with the announcement by Professor Vincent in Paris, before the Academy of Medicine, of his discovery of a typhoid vaccine, the statement with an anti-typhoid vaccine, the statement issued by Commissioner Eugene H. Porter, of the New York State Department of Health, that there is more typhoid in the United States than in any other country, 1909, aroused the interest of medical men throughout this country in the system for prevention.

Although the treatment has been used to a considerable extent in the armies of England, Germany and this country for some years, it has not come into general practice as yet.

Medical authorities in this city are unable to determine, from the brief dispatches from Paris, just what advances Professor Vincent may have made, but his formula, it is asserted, is practically the same as that employed in the laboratories of the United States army medical corps at Washington.

It is noted that Professor Vincent makes no claim that the vaccine he has discovered is more effective than the vaccine of curing typhoid, once the disease makes its appearance, although its effectiveness as a preventive is no longer questioned.

Anti-typhoid vaccine has been used in the United States army for two years, and during the last year no fewer than ten thousand soldiers have been treated, including almost the entire garrison at Fort Brady and hundreds of the soldiers at Fort Sheridan and other posts. Vaccination against typhoid is not compulsory in the army, and all those who have been treated have submitted themselves voluntarily.

The vaccine, according to Colonel L. M. Maus, of the medical corps of the United States army, is prepared on practically the same basis in England, Germany and the United States as that followed by Professor Vincent. It is an attenuated culture of the typhoid bacillus, made from the bacilli of the disease, and made to contain toxins for tetanus, cholera, alpheria and plague.

"An typhoid vaccine," said Colonel Maus, "has not yet been used in civil life, except perhaps in a few instances, because the average person does not expect to have typhoid fever and consequently takes no precautions against it. Nor is it to be expected that physicians would suggest that their neighbors should be vaccinated against an attack of the disease. In the event of an epidemic in a certain locality, however, a general vaccination of those in danger of contracting the disease is doubtless advisable."

"There has as yet been no opportunity to observe or make comparisons as to the effectiveness of the treatment in the United States army for the reason that we do not have typhoid in the army in times of peace. Our posts are so sanitary and the drinking water so pure that a case of typhoid in the army is of very rare occurrence."

"But in the English army the opportunity for observing the value of the vaccine came through the Boer war. England was first to use the anti-typhoid vaccine, and great numbers of the soldiers sent to South Africa were treated. The result showed that among those who had been vaccinated there was a very small percentage of typhoid, while among those who had not been treated there was a vast extent of the disease."

"Any effort to introduce the general use of the vaccine would doubtless be met with the same skepticism and prejudice as exist in this country even has an anti-vaccination society, the members of which are opposed to vaccination, in spite of the fact that we wiped out the smallpox in Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines through compulsory vaccination."

Health Commissioner Evans also held that Professor Vincent was by no means the originator of the vaccine against typhoid, but credited that his experiments which have had the effect of increasing the effectiveness of the treatment in rendering humanity immune from the disease.

"Professor Wright, of England, was the first in the field to use anti-typhoid vaccine," said Dr. Evans, "and it has been successfully in the hands of the army. Since then extensive experiments have been made in many of the United States and other countries. Of course, the vaccination of the entire population of a municipality as a precaution against typhoid is out of the question, which eluding for a time, Chicago is at present practically free from typhoid. There have been ninety deaths this year, which is an average of eight per 100,000 of population, and the lowest rate of any city in this country."

DOG LEADS MERRY CHASE

Eludes Police and Crowd After Biting Boy in Street.

The police of the Alexander avenue precinct are looking for a dog that bit a boy, and are credited the attempts made to capture him last night "dead or alive."

The much-wanted stranger first appeared in St. Mark's Park, 143rd Street and Southern Boulevard. Several small boys were chasing him and crying "Mad dog!" The park was crowded, and a stampede of several hundred persons were in pursuit. Several shots were fired by the policemen, but they went wild. Finally the dog dashed down Willis avenue to the freight yard of the New Haven Railroad. As the winded pursuers reached the railroad tracks, the "mad dog" escaped.

The animal had bitten Joseph Klein, ten years old, who was in the street near his home, No. 35 East 104th street. The child was taken to the Pasteur Institute for treatment.
