KING AND CABINET

Why George V Does Not Attend Its Meetings.

Copyright, 1910, by the Brentwood Company. King George shows no inclination to attend in person and preside over the more important meetings of the Cabinet.

The objection to the idea is that if the King were to preside at Cabinet meetings he would necessarily become identified with the political party in power to such an extent that his status as an impartial judge and arbiter between the rival political factions would be impaired.

On the other hand, the King has a perfect theoretical right to attend and preside at Cabinet meetings, for the Cabinet is, after all, nothing more nor less than one of the committees of his Privy Council, and he very often presides at meetings of the Privy Council.

Emperor Nicholas, Emperor Francis Joseph, the Sultan of Turkey, King Victor Emmanuel, King Albert of Belgium and Queen Wilhelmina of Holland never attend Cabinet meetings.

Lord Armstrong, the recent sale of whose wonderful collection of pictures—two of Millais' masterpieces, "Chill October" and "The Boyhood of Raleigh," bringing more than $3,000 apiece—at Christie's, in London, has been attracting such world-wide attention, is the grandnephew and heir of the first Lord Armstrong, who founded the great Elswick iron works, and who may be described as having been the English Krupp, since for many years he was the so-called Cannon King not only of Great Britain but also of many other nations.

Lord Alfred Douglas's animosity toward everything American is due to the treatment which he received when in the United States a few years ago. Some men in New York and Washington blessed with short memories were foolish enough to give him cards for their clubs, but his appearance there immediately led to a remembrance of his former association with Oscar Wilde and to the role which he played in the suit which culminated in the ruin and imprisonment of that gifted but misguided individual.

It is a younger brother of the present Marquis of Queensberry and also of Lord St. Helens, who, after having made an unhappy marriage with a variety show girl in California, is now earning his daily bread there, at the rate of $2 a day, as a track walker.

The unfriendly sentiments of Emperor William with regard to Greece have undergone no change since the latter's war with Turkey, in which the Ottoman troops were led to victory by German officers on the active list of his army.

Russia has a law prohibiting persons from being married more than five times. They do some things better in Russia than they do in New York—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

OBITUARY.

LESTER O. GODDARD. Chicago, July 14.—Lester O. Goddard, a well known railroad attorney, died yesterday at his home in Riverside. For many years he was connected with the legal department of the Chicago Burlington and Quincy Railroad.

MRS. ELIZABETH WADDINGTON. Mrs. Elizabeth Waddington, wife of George Waddington, died yesterday afternoon at Donnan Hills, Staten Island. Mrs. Waddington was the daughter of the late General Henry Van Rensselaer, U. S. A. Her mother was the daughter of former Governor John Alsop King. She married General Van Rensselaer when eighteen years of age, and died in 1909. For many years she was prominent in the social life of the city and lived in what was then a most fashionable quarter, East 9th street.

JOSEPH R. STAUFFER. Pittsburg, July 14.—Joseph R. Stauffer, a millionaire coal and lumber operator of Fayette County, died today at his country home in Scottsdale, aged seventy-four years. He was an officer or director of over half a dozen prominent banks in Western Pennsylvania. He aided H. C. Frick when the latter was a poor clerk.

JAMES MONROE SIGAFUS. San Bernardino, Cal., July 14.—James Monroe Sigafus, who at one time was a multi-millionaire, is dead at the Virginia Dale mining camp, on the San Bernardino mountains, as a result of the intense heat. Sigafus made and lost several fortunes. His biggest stake was made at Leadville, Col.

ELKS' PRIZES AWARDED

Women of Cincinnati Lodge Win an Automobile. Detroit, July 14.—The women of Cincinnati lodge of the Elks' Fraternity were awarded for their best appearing and largest representation at the fair sex in the Elks' parade here today.

BISHOP IN CHINA BACK HOME. The Rev. Dr. Logan H. Roots, Episcopal Bishop of the missionary district of Hankow, China, arrived here yesterday from Southampton on the White Star liner "Majestic." He said he went to China four years ago, when the patriotic spirit of the Chinaman was not as fully developed as it is now.

CONCERTS IN CENTRAL PARK. The Kaltenborn Orchestra will give concerts on Saturday and Sunday afternoons in the "natural amphitheatre" near McGown's Pass in Central Park. The programmes are largely operatic, including selections from "Tannhauser," "Madama Butterfly" and "Die Meistersinger."

PARK AGNEW. Alexandria, Va., July 14.—Park Agnew died here today, aged sixty-three years. He was interested in business ventures here and in Washington. In 1889 he was Postmaster here, and for eight years was Collector of Internal Revenue for this district. For a number of years he was chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and was recognized as one of the leaders of the party in Virginia.

STUYVESANT FISH, JR., WEDS

His Bride Miss Mildred Dick, the Daughter of Evans E. Dick. (By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Garrison, N. Y., July 14.—The little Church of St. Philip, in the Highlands here, was the scene, at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, of the marriage of Stuyvesant Fish, jr., and Miss Mildred Dick, of New York and Philadelphia. Society was largely represented. The Rev. Edward C. Chorley, the rector, performed the ceremony. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evans E. Dick, of Philadelphia. The church was handsomely decorated for the affair.

SANG OF CLOVER BLOSSOMS

But When Little Girls Saw the Flower They Did Not Know What It Was.

A group of little Italian girls from New York, who insisted stoutly that they were American Italians and not Italian Italians, once spent two weeks on a farm in one of the southern tier counties of the Empire State. They used to while away a good deal of time in singing their favorite song being one beginning, "Pretty little clover blossoms."

One day the whole group came running up to "Uncle Pete," as they called him, while one voiced the question: "What's the name of this little flower that was always buzzin' around?" "What 'Uncle Pete' saw in her chubby hand was the 'pretty little clover blossom' of the song.

Book Learning Days. Fifteen years or so ago city school authorities began to appreciate how little the majority of the school children knew about the things of nature. They believed in the importance of books and "book learning" in the literal sense of the term—not so much so, it is true, as in those days of mental gymnastics before Bacon evolved the idea that was to give the world eventually the "laboratory method"—the method of learning about things by seeing and touching the things themselves.

But this still remains the age of books and book learning in the literal sense of the term, and the great book of nature is still unread by the masses. Children of the poor quarters of our cities read and sing about birds and brooks, mountain crags and glorious sunsets, but they do not feel the refining influence of close contact with these things. Wordsworth has given the world his idea of the way to educate a girl into a lovely woman:

The floating clouds their state shall lend To her, and she shall learn her ear In many a secret. Where rivulets dance their wayward round, And birds are busy with murmuring sound, She shall pass on her face.

Who can estimate the influence upon a little child of a fortnight's association with nature's beauties? Nature speaks in a voice to which no ear can be deaf. Look at Niagara, and escape from a feeling of awe toward the Great Falls of the world. Gaze upon the wondrous solids and purples of an August sunset, and the love for the artificial withers.

Read the Book of Nature. Deprived of the contemplation of these beauties, life must be stunted. To instill a love of nature early into the heart of a child is the greatest good that can be conferred. To found a library is a great and good deed. But the world needs to see more as well as read much. To give a child the chance to read the book of nature is a greater deed. There every true emotion will be played upon; there only the true and the beautiful will be held up for admiration. And the music and the harmony of the great book will pass over into the life of the reader.

The twelve little American Italians who did not know what a clover blossom was were Tribune Fresh Air girls. Hundreds of other true and patriotic girls might be quoted to show how meagre and warped are the ideas of such children. A little girl singing "America" on the day of her arrival at a Fresh Air home said with enthusiasm as she looked around her: "Now I know what 'My Country' means; it's this place. It isn't New York."

$2,000 FOR FRENCH HOSPITAL. The annual patriotic celebration of the French Benevolent Society took place yesterday afternoon and evening at Sulzer's, 4th Avenue. There were games in the afternoon for the children, and at night an entertainment for the elders. The society realized $2,000, which will go to the French Hospital.

THEATRICAL NOTES. "The Midnight Sons" will begin its second season at Atlantic City on July 25. John Emerson, stage manager for the Messrs. Shubert, has returned from London to begin rehearsals of "The City," "The Blue Mouse" and other plays. "The Prosecuting Attorney" in Chicago on August 1. "Madame Sherry," which has been running for seven months at the Colonial Theatre, Chicago, is scheduled at the New Amsterdam Theatre, beginning Monday, August 29. Among these in the cast are Lina Arbanell, Ralph Herby and Ignacio Martini.

W. H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols will be the chief players next season in a comedy called "Bill Truett," which was written by George H. Brennan and Lee Arthur. Nearly two hundred members of the Professional Woman's League, attended the Fifth Avenue Theatre last night to see Miss Lina Clayton in her one-act comedy, "His Local Color."

Cohan & Harris will open their new theatre, at 4th street and Broadway, about October 1, when the whole Cohan family, Tom Lewis, Emma Janvier and others will be seen in a new musical play by Mr. Cohan.

Sails with Children for Europe—Mrs. Valentine Also a Passenger.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, jr., sailed for Europe yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner "Georga Washington." She was accompanied by her children, and said she would spend three months on the Continent.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was asked about her husband's appointment as assistant to the president of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, and it was suggested that he might eventually become the head of the Vanderbilt line. Mrs. Vanderbilt said she had not thought of that possibility.

Among the other passengers were F. C. Schwedman and James A. Emery, who are spending several months abroad studying the prevention of accidents and the operation of industrial indemnity insurance in Great Britain. They represent the National Association of Manufacturers.

Newport Summer Colonists Resent Photographers' Activities. (By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Newport, R. I., July 14.—A law that will in some manner curtail the liberties of photographers while on the street is the desire of some of the summer residents here. The work of the picture takers has often caused annoyance to the cottagers, and strenuous objections have been frequent during the last few years, especially in front of the Newport Casino. Whitney Warren, of New York, and a camera man clashed in front of this place within the last two weeks.

To-day when the camera men renewed their efforts there was a report current in the summer colony that the influential summer residents might make an effort to have a law passed when the General Assembly of the state meets again.
