

URGES BREAD BY WEIGHT University Settlement Worker Commends Driscoll Plan. SPECIAL BENEFIT TO POOR Baking Concern's Representative Gives His Views in Opposition to Scheme.

Whether the sale of bread by weight will result in getting better bread and more of it for the money is a question that is being discussed all over the city as a result of the announcement of Clement J. Driscoll, Commissioner of Weights and Measures, that he intends to enforce the ordinance which provides that bread shall be sold by weight.

Workers in settlements say that the new rule will operate to the benefit of the poor, inasmuch as they will get more bread and better bread than they have been getting under the present rule.

Charles S. Bernheimer, assistant secretary of the University Settlement, No. 184 Eldridge street, said: "It is very important that people should know exactly what they are getting for their money."

"To my mind, it is also important that the conditions under which the bread is made should be investigated, for in that respect, too, the people of a neighborhood like this are in the dark."

H. M. Taylor, secretary of the Shultz Bread Company, which includes also the Hildebrand Baking Company, said yesterday that he could not see where any advantage was to be gained for the consumer by weighing bread.

BRINDLE HUNTED TROUBLE Bulldog Found It as Patrolman's Revolver Snapped Twice.

Brindle, a bulldog, started trouble yesterday noon in 125th street, near Eighth avenue, when he saw a needle on the end of a blue ribbon that led up to a small gloved hand.

Brindle seemed soothed by the things he found in a manure parlor on 125th street, but was taken away by John Barry, a neighboring carter.

And whether Brindle should have been locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct or sent to Matteawan is to be solved with the curtains drawn, by Patrolman Mitchell, of the West 125th street station, put two bullets in him to secure him for the Board of Health.

The new Pennsylvania Railroad terminal at 31st and 33rd street and Seventh avenue was declared officially opened yesterday afternoon by President James McCrea, and coincident with the ceremony the large bronze statue of the late president of the Pennsylvania, Alexander J. BRONZE STATUE OF ALEXANDER J. CASSATT. Unveiled in the Pennsylvania Station yesterday.

A hundred of the various officials, including the board of directors, came from Philadelphia on a special train for the occasion. The station will not be open to the public, however, for some time.

Representatives of the railroad said it was planned to operate trains in the East River tube on regular schedule, beginning September 8, but no time has yet been fixed for the operation of the entire terminal system from Jersey City.

Messner fell from the edge of the platform to the uptown track about 11 o'clock, when the station was crowded with shoppers for the occasion.

As the fitting conclusion to these ceremonies, I now declare this station officially opened. Brooklynn Man Grabs Fender, Saving Himself—Assaulted Is Arrested. Henry H. KEELER RECEIVES A LETTER DID WIDER RISK ALL? MAY HAVE "SALTED" SOME Say Former Cashier Laid Plans Carefully—Trial Postponed Until To-morrow.

The belief that Erwin J. Wider, erstwhile cashier of the Russo-Chinese Bank agency, used a comparatively small amount of the $200,000 of securities, which he confessed he took from the agency's safe, for margins in Wall Street speculation was strengthened yesterday by the attitude of the District Attorney's office toward the case, and also by information obtained in financial circles.

It was learned yesterday that did not extend beyond the office of Dick Brothers & Co., J. S. Bache & Co. and Josephthal, Louchheim & Co. He is said to have lost about $200,000 in cotton speculation through Dick Brothers, and a total of $300,000 with the other two firms.

When Wider came up for pleading in General Sessions yesterday his counsel, Leon E. Ginsberg, asked for an adjournment. He said that he had conferred with Mr. Moss, acting District Attorney, and Frank Moss, acting District Attorney, and had agreed to allow the pleading to go over for two or three days.

It was said that the District Attorney's office had declined to submit to Wider's counsel that the case would be no further indictments sought against the cashier in the event of his pleading guilty to the one already found, and that the adjournment was asked to allow Mr. Ginsberg to further consider the nature of his plea.

Wider was a picture of good health when he appeared in court. He had lost the frightened look and weakness which were apparent Friday when he was arrested. He was neatly dressed in a light gray suit and twirled his straw hat on his finger indifferently as he waited in the line of prisoners for his turn at the bar.

Mr. Moss said yesterday that it was likely other indictments might be found against Wider. "That depends on the nature of the proof we are able to get," said Mr. Moss. "It is not reasonable to suppose that Wider's various transactions could be grouped under one indictment. There may be evidence of several distinct crimes. Our business is to investigate crime in all its phases, and that is what we have done so far in this case."

Italy's Failure to File Formal Complaint Does Not Mean Freedom. The failure of the Italian government to file the formal complaint within the time limit, forty days, will not open the gates of the Hudson County Jail at Jersey city to liberate Porter Charlton, who confessed that he murdered his wife in the villa they occupied on the bank of Lake Como.
