

RYAN OFFERS $10,000 FOR FLIGHT IN MEET

Prize Is for Trip from Belmont Park to Statue of Liberty and Return.

SPEED TO DETERMINE AWARD

Grahame-White Signs Entry Blank and Will Appear—Hamilton Favored for Trophy Contest.

Thomas F. Ryan has offered a prize of $10,000 for the fastest flight from Belmont Park around the Statue of Liberty in the course of the international tournament, which is to be held from October 22 to October 30.

The aviation committee is working on the rules to govern the competition for this prize, so as to have them ready for publication in the official programme.

It is probable that each aviator will be allowed to take any route he chooses in reaching the statue. The distance is thirty-three miles if the flight be made in a direct line over South Brooklyn, but should the flight be made from Belmont Park to the harbor and then over to the statue the distance would be about sixty-five miles.

Arrangements will be made to place the Statue of Liberty in wireless communication with Belmont Park so that every moment of the flight may be followed.

The instant that the aviator reaches the statue the fact will be made known to those in the park. It is thought that the French aviators will take special interest in the competition for sentimental reasons, because France gave the statue to this country.

Claude Grahame-White, a member of the British team, formally signed his entry blank yesterday. The aviator said that two new racing Bleriot machines would arrive in this city within a few days.

One is a 50-horsepower monoplane, which is expected to reach here on the Adriatic to-morrow, and the other a 100-horsepower racer of the same type as will be used by Alfred Leblanc, of the French team.

White intends to fly. Mr. Grahame-White was greatly surprised and annoyed to learn that there had been a rumor that he did not intend to uphold British aviation in the international meet, and said he would certainly take part in the meet.

Two small planes coming. Audemars is a Swiss by birth, and for several years was known as a leading motorcycle racer. He will bring a Niouport monoplane, which belongs to the humming bird class of flying machines.

Step Right Off Broadway Into a Suit That Belongs There

Into a suit that belongs on Fifth avenue, or wherever correctly-attired business and professional men are to be seen.

These clothes possess those distinctive traits of style which habit a man in quiet, impressive appearance; which represents about ninety per cent. of the success-total in modern business computation.

They are cheap clothes in no sense of the word, though the top price for young men is $35 and for older men $48. They could not be cheap clothes and be fashioned so correctly and carefully, of fabrics approved for tone and guaranteed against a thread of cotton.

The clothing sold in the Wanamaker Men's Store comes to you as the result of well-nigh half a century of clothes-making and selling. Fifty years of reputation that could be dissipated in fifty days were the standards to be relaxed. Is our unceasing vigilance to be wondered at?

We invite the well-dressed men of New York to call and inspect these hand-tailored suits. The more capacious, the more welcome. Glad to show the overcoats, too. Black, Oxfords, fancy worsteds, cassimeres, chevots, etc., $16.50 to $35. English top-coats, more and more popular, $30 and $35.

Pure worsted striped trousers, $5 to $12. Main floor, New Bldg.
