

RETURNS TO WHITE HOUSE

Roosevelt's First Visit Since Leaving It as President.

INSPECTS TROPHIES OF HUNT

Meets Many Old Friends at Reception—Guest of Smithsonian Institution.

(From The Tribune Bureau.)
Washington, Nov. 19.—This was Colonel Roosevelt's busy day. The ex-President spent a busy forenoon, a busy afternoon and a busy evening, and after it all he was no more fatigued than in the days when he introduced the strenuous life to the country by personal example. It was a delightful as well as a strenuous day for Mr. Roosevelt, as he had an opportunity to examine the trophies of his African hunt, visit the White House for the first time since he left it as President on March 4, 1901, meet a score of old and dear friends and take dinner in a company of kindred spirits.

About 11 o'clock this morning Colonel Roosevelt went to the National Museum, in company with Dr. C. Hart Merriam, head of the Biological Survey, who was the first to suggest the African trip to the ex-President. At the museum he met Colonel E. A. Mearns and Edmund H. Heller, who were members of the Roosevelt expedition, and Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. The ex-President had a delightful time looking over the trophies of his hunt. He told many anecdotes connected with the specimens, and talked about the animals, their habits and characteristics, with Dr. Merriam. One of the most satisfying features of his visit was the assurance he received from the scientists that the collection from Africa will prove of great scientific value.

"By George!" he exclaimed, "I'm glad to hear you say that. That's fine. I'm glad to hear the trip did good."

The specimens Mr. Roosevelt found in all stages of completion, some in the taxidermist's shop, others still being tanned, but only a few mounted for exhibition. Looking at the big bear skull of a lion, a rhinoceros or an elephant, he would say, "That's the one I shot at such and such a place, isn't it, Heller?" In nine cases out of ten, Dr. Heller would answer in the affirmative.

An incident of the visit was the presentation to the National Museum of the flag carried by the Roosevelt party on the African trip, and always planned in front of Colonel Roosevelt's tent when in camp.

Mr. Roosevelt's first visit to-day was to the White House. He alighted from an automobile at the main door and left a card for Mrs. Taft, who is in New York. The ushers, policemen and other attendants gave their former chief a hearty welcome. From the White House he walked to the executive offices, where he was much interested in the addition made last year. He visited President Taft's office and the new Cabinet room. He expressed pleasure that the executive offices had been enlarged, referring to the difficulty he often found of handling with comfort the crowds who called when he was President.

At 5 o'clock the colonel received members of the Cabinet and some old friends. There were about two hundred callers at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, among them being Secretaries Bailew and MacVeagh, several justices of the Supreme Court and members of the diplomatic corps. He had a long chat with M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, who was a member of Mr. Roosevelt's famous "tennis cabinet."

To-night Mr. Roosevelt was the guest of the Smithsonian Institution at a dinner

GOVERNMENT WINS SUIT

Captain Oberlin M. Carter Forfeits His Property.

By a decree filed yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals awarded to the government of the United States all the property and investments of Captain Oberlin M. Carter, a former officer of the United States Army. Captain Carter, who was an officer of engineers, was in charge of the government works in the harbor of Savannah, and was convicted for conspiring with Colonel John P. Gurner, of Syracuse, and Captain Benjamin D. Greene, a former United States officer, to defraud the government. He served a term at the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Decreases have been handed down by courts in West Virginia and Illinois, as well as in New Jersey and New York, and now the whole sum that the government can recover has been handed over. The suit settled by the decree handed down yesterday was brought against Captain Oberlin M. Carter, Lorenzo D. Carter and I. Stanton Carter, the two last named having made the investments for the captain while he was in prison.

HEARST SPENT $5,500

Campaign Disbursement $500 Under Amount Allowed by Law.

Albany, Nov. 19.—William R. Hearst, Independence League candidate for Lieutenant Governor, to-day certified to the Secretary of State that he spent $5,500 which he contributed to the campaign committee under a law enacted by the last Legislature a candidate for Lieutenant Governor is prohibited from spending more than $5,000 in aid of his candidacy.

Bertha Matthews Fraser, Socialist candidate for Secretary of State, certified that her candidacy cost her nothing.

ROSENHEIMER SURRENDERS

Gets Bail on Other Charge Growing Out of Fatal Auto Accident.

Edward T. Rosenheimer, who ran down and killed Grace Hough in the Pelham Parkway last summer while in his automobile, and who was acquitted recently on a charge of murder growing out of the accident, surrendered himself yesterday to the District Attorney's office under an indictment which was found by the grand jury charging him with violation of the Callan act of an automobile to attempt to get away after an accident.

Rosenheimer was in Boston with his family when he received word of the new indictment, and came here immediately to surrender himself and plead. He was arraigned by Detective Thomas before Judge Malcolm, in Chambers, in the Court of General Sessions, and was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000. He was accompanied by his counsel, George A. Knobloch.

STATEN ISLAND MAN MISSING

Disappeared from Home of Aunt in North Pelham on Friday.

The police of New Rochelle have sent out a general alarm for Frank Arndt, of Richmond, Staten Island, who disappeared from the home of his aunt, Mrs. William Dolny, of No. 420 Ninth avenue, North Pelham, on Friday morning. He said he was going for a short walk, and started in the direction of Wynnton avenue, leading into New Rochelle.

The young man has been a victim of apoplexy in a mild form for several years, sometimes forgetting his name. He is also an epileptic. Near the Dolny home is Huguenot Lake, formerly known as Bergholt Pond. Men spent all of yesterday dragging the lake, but no trace of a body has been found.

but he would consult with his chief and find out. After a whispered conference between Dobbins and Brennan, the latter stepped forward and told Katzenstein it would be all right. Then Katzenstein, it is alleged, walked into a clothing store at Third avenue and 146th street, and soon came out with $50 in bills in his hand.

"Will this be enough?" he is alleged to have said, and when he received an affirmative nod from Brennan he placed the bills in Dobbins's hand. The refuse dealer nearly swooned from surprise and fright when the inspectors told him they were going to make him a prisoner anyway, and forthwith they escorted him to the Alexander avenue police station. There the charge of violating the salitary code was dropped, and in its place two charges, one of grand larceny and the other of bribery, were lodged against Katzenstein.

While the prisoner was still in a daze as the result of the swiftness with which events had moved in the last few minutes, the inspectors hustled him off to the Morrisania police court, where he was held in $2,500 bail on the bribery charge, and in $2,000 on the bribery charge. Samuel Greenberg, retained to defend Katzenstein, succeeded in getting an adjournment until November 23, and the prisoner was then bailed out by a saloonkeeper of No. 2908 Third avenue.

Rigid Inquiry To Be Made.

Robert Ten Tyck, Assistant District Attorney, told the Magistrate that this method of grafting had been going on for a number of years, but until a rigid investigation had been made, it would be impossible to name those directly responsible or the amount of food-stuffs stolen.

It was only when the inmates of the different institutions on the Islands began recently to complain that they were poorly fed, that suspicions were aroused, resulting in yesterday's arrest. It is expected that to-morrow the Commissioner of Accounts will start his official probe.

When Michael J. Drummond, Commissioner of Charities, was told of the arrest, he said that the so-called graft, if it did exist, did not concern his or any other city department, but was a matter for the state to investigate. He said that The Wanderer was owned by the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane and carried no city freight. The barrels must have come from Ward's Island, he said, and scouted the idea that the city's poor were being robbed.

MAY TAKE OATH IN PRIVATE

Dix Will Have to Do This as Jan. 1 Is Sunday—Formal Induction Monday.

Albany, Nov. 19.—The formal induction into office of John A. Dix as Governor of New York State will probably take place on January 2, in the Assembly chamber, as January 1 falls on Sunday. Although no definite plans have been made, it is probable that the new Governor will take the oath of office in private, in the Secretary of State's office, either on Saturday, December 31, or Sunday, January 1, to be followed on Monday noon with the usual public exercises.

Toast Drunk Standing.

Justice Hughes's remarks were punctuated by frequent applause and a toast was drunk standing to the former Governor at the other end of the room. The other speakers of the evening, among whom were Bishop Greer, Morgan J. O'Brien and Attorney General Wickerson, all paid a high tribute to Justice Hughes. Other guests at the speakers' table were Judges Ward, Hough and Hand, of the United States District Court; Dr. Henry Van Dyke, H. D. Estabrook, Arthur C. Rounds and George W. Sherman.

Bishop Greer spoke of his many years' acquaintance with "Governor Hughes," and

MANY THERE TO HONOR HIM

Declares Administration of Justice Is Final Security of Liberty and Equal Opportunity.

Justice Charles E. Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court, was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Lotos Club at the clubhouse, in West 57th street, last night. The four hundred members and guests present gave the former Governor welcome to this state an enthusiastic and prolonged public hearing of his acceptance of a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States with mingled feelings of gratification and regret—regret that a commanding figure was to be withdrawn from the activities of public life, and gratification that our greatest court was to be strengthened by his presence.

Justice Hughes spoke feelingly of his term as Governor and said that it was pleasant for him to think he had in some measure succeeded in serving the people during that time. He said he had come out from his four years of public office with a profound faith in the country's institutions.

Justice Democracy's Chief Concern.

"I have been transferred to another field of effort," he said, "justice must ever be the chief concern of democracy. If we are to have laws they must be interpreted, if we are to have constitutions, embodying the fundamental agreement of the people in their definition and in their limitation of powers, they must be enforced. The administration of justice is the final security of the liberty we have won, and is the final security of the equal opportunity we desire."

"However lofty may be the conception of the opportunities of leadership afforded by executive office, or of the high prerogative of those selected to make the laws of a free people, we must rest our final confidence for the perpetuity of our institutions upon an impartial, able, unselfish administration of justice by our courts.

"While this is not the place or time to refer to the work of the courts, I do desire to say that I have assumed this new responsibility with the deepest sense of responsibility and strengthened by your support. I enter upon this life work with but one ambition, and that is, through it to give to this nation whatever ability and strength I possess."

Toast Drunk Standing.

Justice Hughes's remarks were punctuated by frequent applause and a toast was drunk standing to the former Governor at the other end of the room. The other speakers of the evening, among whom were Bishop Greer, Morgan J. O'Brien and Attorney General Wickerson, all paid a high tribute to Justice Hughes. FEAR SCHOONER WENT DOWN

Nothing Heard of the Twohy, with 11 Aboard, Since Oct. 11.

Thirty-nine days out of New York, the four-masted schooner John Twohy, bound for San Juan, Porto Rico, is still unreported, and gravest fears are felt to-day for Captain Willard, his crew of nine men, and Frederick Dean, a dramatic and musical critic, who sailed as a guest of Captain Willard for a sea trip.

The Twohy, 908 tons, which was laden with a general cargo, left New York on October 11, and not since she filed a wax just off the sandy spit of the Hook, down the bay, for her long thrash to southward has the missing schooner been sighted or spoken.

COLLINS CONTINUES FIGHT

Still After City Job from Which He Was Removed Long Ago.

James G. Collins goes on with his fight to be restored to the office of Superintendent of Highways, from which he was removed by former Borough President Ahearn, as if his removal occurred only yesterday instead of more than six years ago.

His case has been in different courts more than a dozen times, and Collins finally obtained an order reinstating him in his old job and giving him back pay of about $33,000. The former official thereupon took forcible possession of the office, and Borough President McAneny, who inherited the litigation from Ahearn, abolished the office of Superintendent of Highways. Collins has been out since.

Although he is assured of the money that was held from him during the time that he should have been in office, Collins continues his fight for the office, too. His latest move was to ask in the Supreme Court for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel McAneny to show cause why he should not restore him to his official status. Collins questioned the good faith of the Borough President in abolishing the office. Justice Bischoff yesterday refused to grant the peremptory writ, but granted an alternative writ.

FOR HIGH SCHOOL ORATORS

Prize Cup Offered by Barnard Literary Society of Columbia.

The Barnard Literary Society of Columbia University has just announced a public speaking contest for the city high schools. According to the plans announced there will be a series of public speaking contests in which all the pupils in the public high schools will be allowed to compete, five minutes being allotted to each speaker. By a process of elimination the trials will be narrowed down to the teams of two schools, and a large silver loving cup will be presented to the winner.

The interest in this branch of activity has been very marked of late and the college faculty has encouraged the movement.

Ten high schools have accepted the offer and will send teams to compete, while more are expected to send in their entry blanks in a few days. If the contest proves successful it will be extended to pupils in the grades just below the high school class. The first of these contests has been set for December 13.

GETS MORGAN INTERESTS

International Agricultural Corporation Elects Directors.

Representatives of the Morgan interests have been elected directors of the International Agricultural Corporation, an independent fertilizer combination, which was organized about a year and a half ago by Waldemar Schmidtman, a German potash man, and Thomas C. Meadows. This is the first intimation Wall Street has received that the Morgan party had acquired an interest in this concern, the promoters of which were formerly identified with the formation of the proposed $50,000,000 fertilizer combination, which fell through because the Morgan firm withdrew its support from the project.

The Morgan interests, it is said, became connected with the International Agricultural Corporation last spring, when its capital stock was increased from $15,000,000 to $24,000,000.

The new directors are Thomas W. Lamont, vice-president of the First National Bank; Albert H. Wiggin, vice-president of the Chase National Bank; Benjamin Strong, Jr., vice-president of the Bankers Trust Company; Charles H. Sablin, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, and Francis M. Weld, of the New York Stock Exchange firm of White, Weld & Co.
