

FRESH AIR FUND BOON TO 9,376 CHILDREN

Thanksgiving Day Means More to That Number Because of Tribune's Efficient Charity.

COST OF WORK, $47,930.48

This Sum and More Contributed by 1,300 Persons Who Never Lent Support Before—22 New Vacation Centres.

The Tribune Fresh Air Fund, during the summer of 1911, provided country vacations of a fortnight each for 9,376 children.

These children, without exception, came from the congested tenement districts of New York. In choosing them, no discrimination was made as to race or religion.

Philanthropy frequently finds it wise in dealing with adults to distinguish between the deserving and the undeserving poor. But the Tribune Fund recognizes no such problem as far as its beneficiaries are concerned.

To accommodate the army of Fresh Air children there were maintained in connection with the work of the fund fourteen Fresh Air homes.

The greatest number of these children would have been, by contrast with their world home surroundings, a haven of sweet delight. It was not, however, amid these fields that they were entertained.

Hospitality's Wide Area.

The Fresh Air territory of 1911 extended over New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Vermont, and New Hampshire.

The total capacity of the Tribune Fund home was increased this year by the doubling of the capacity of the Paul Devereux home.

Fresh Air accommodations were further increased during the summer through the kindness of the people of North Bennington, Vt., and Ramsey, N. J.

The chronicle of the Tribune Fund has been one of continuous progress and growth in benefits conferred and influence exerted.

Among the friends who for years have not called to send generous gifts to the Tribune Fund were Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. Russell Sage, Mrs. Ellen S. James, B. Parker Smith, Helen C. Julliard, J. P. Morgan, Alfred Vanderbilt, Colonel Astor, Edwin Gould, Helen Gould, Mrs. Morris K. Jesup, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Jacob H. Schiff and "A. Friend."

The money which passes through the hands of the treasurer of the Tribune Fund, however, by no means represents the total expenditure involved in providing the vacations for the 9,376 children.

Amid the successes of the year the Tribune Fresh Air Fund suffered one irreparable loss in the death of the man who for five years had so ably directed its activities.

might be termed the plant of the fund. At the beginning of the season it was planned to continue the home for undernourished children at Shokan, N. Y., through another season, despite the fact that work was progressing rapidly on the Ashokan reservoir, within the limits of which it is situated.

The history of the work of the Tribune Fund is a history of advancement in efficiency. The season of 1911 witnessed several important steps in this direction.

Military Atmosphere for Boys. As a result of this arrangement at Shepherd Knapp a little spice was given to the life of the two hundred boys by the institution of a military drill.

Through the generosity of the Rev. Shepherd Knapp the greatest drawback to the efficiency of the home will be done away with next year.

NEW PARK BRIDGE OF IRON

Art Commission Overrules Mr. Stover, Who Favored Concrete.

Old Bow Bridge, in Central Park, which is in a dangerous condition, is not to be replaced by a bridge of reinforced concrete, a plan advocated strenuously by Park Commissioner Stover.

Although months after the Stover-Parsons difference in the matter of the opinion of the former landscape architect is now backed up by the Municipal Art Commission.

Commissioner Stover would make no comment yesterday on the action of the commission. He had something to say, however, in favor of his plan for rebuilding the bridge.

"It will probably be necessary again in fifty years to rebuild Bow Bridge if in fact it is not," he said. "It would probably last forever if made of concrete."

An appropriation of $3,000 has been made for the rebuilding of the historic structure, and the Park Commissioner said the matter was now in the hands of the landscape architect.

"PLAYBOY" HISSED; BOED

One Irishman Defies John Bull—McAdoo Approves Drama.

"The Playboy of the Western World" at Maxine Elliott's Theatre had an audience composed in a large majority of women at the matinee yesterday afternoon.

Between the first and second acts an English actor two rows behind the Irish patriots reproved them severely but eloquently for their conduct.

When the patriot was told that he must be quiet or be put out, he replied: "I will be put out by a lady usher or a nigger, but not by a John Bull."

Chief Magistrate McAdoo, who attended the play as censor on Tuesday night, reported to the Mayor yesterday that the play was quite harmless and he had seen nothing objectionable in it.

MONET HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Henry P. Monet, of No. 65 Kingston avenue, Brooklyn, translator and cable checker for William E. Grace & Co., was arrested yesterday morning in the Tombs Court and remanded to the city jail.

Between the first and second acts an English actor two rows behind the Irish patriots reproved them severely but eloquently for their conduct.

When the patriot was told that he must be quiet or be put out, he replied: "I will be put out by a lady usher or a nigger, but not by a John Bull."

TO PICK COURTHOUSE SITE

Decision Expected Within a Short Time, McAneny Says.

THREE CONFERENCES HELD Selection Narrows Down to One of Four or Five Localities—Courts Need More Room.

Justices of the Supreme Court and lawyers who are chafing over the long delays in securing a new courthouse will be glad to learn that the Board of Estimate committee is going to take up the selection of a site in a vigorous manner next week and that within a short time a decision should be reached.

These conferences have been attended by the members of the committee, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, chairman of the Courthouse Commission; Grant La Farge, representing the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects; John Hodges, representing various civic bodies; A. S. Bard, of the Bar Association, and John DeWitt Warner, of the New York County Lawyers' Association.

"While I cannot say that we have reached a tentative agreement on a site, we have got so far as to reduce the selection to one of four or five sites between Canal and Chambers streets and east of Broadway. There are many considerations to be thought of, and the problem requires the most careful treatment."

Our committee of the Board of Estimate is the same that had charge of the budget, and we planned to devote our time to the courthouse site as soon as the budget was out of the way. Since that time, however, Controller Prendergast has been in the South, attending the bankers' convention. He returned to-day and we are going to get right down to business on the site next week. We expect to have some results for the public soon.

President McAneny said that the architects who are interested in the new building from a professional point of view had gone so far as to make landscape maps of the site under consideration, which have been of the greatest assistance in weighing the advantages of the various plots of ground.

The Board of Estimate has, under the Stillew bill, six months from October 12 in which to select a site, but they have no intention of taking advantage of the extended time. After the special committee reports to the board the matter of securing the property must be taken before the Stinking Fund Commission. It is thought probable that the property selected will have to be acquired by condemnation, as the area under consideration is so limited that it would be impossible to get the property at private sale at anything like fair prices.

The work of selecting a design for the new building will fall to the Courthouse Commission. The site is selected seen it may be another year before ground can be broken for the new building. In the meantime work of the Supreme Court is being more and more hampered for lack of suitable quarters. The justices hardly know where to make room for Henry D. Hotchkiss, who on January 1 will take his seat as an additional justice.

MAN SAVED BY FERRY HELD

Won't Tell Police How He Got in Water Past Strike Cord.

Asked by two deckhands, Captain Charles Allen, of the ferryboat Greenpoint, of the Astoria line, saved a man from drowning yesterday morning. To do this the captain had to run his blunt-nosed craft dangerously close to the Astoria waterfront.

The man was taken to the Reception Hospital by Dr. Keeny. He said he was Thomas Sheridan, an electrician, with no home, but later told the physicians that his right name was William Sheridan, and that he lived at No. 21 Carver street, Long Island City.

The police of the East 8th street station, after an investigation, ordered that Sheridan be detained at the hospital. There has been a strike in the Astoria Marble Yards for several days, and detectives have been guarding the premises. The police say Sheridan could not have reached the wharf of the marble works by passing through the company's yards without being seen, and that he refused to say how he had fallen into the river.

YALE MEN NOT PROSECUTED

Theatre Management Apologizes, and Rumpus Will Be Forgotten.

New Haven, Nov. 29.—The student rumpus at the Hyperion Theatre, excepting employees and members of their families, was allowed to continue in the fight with the police which followed can be set down as simply an episode in "town and gown history."

No reference was made in the City Court to-day to the cases of Louis Bomfelder, the undergraduate, and Joseph N. Ewing, supposed to have been a Princeton student, when charges of breach of the peace against them were to be heard. Last Saturday six Yale students had their cases dismissed.

Outside the court the Assistant Prosecutor explained that the cases of Bomfelder and Ewing had been dismissed with costs of $7 against each. The other students had no costs to pay.

As no student had received court punishment there will be no inquiry into the affair on the part of the Yale faculties. The police will do nothing more, and the alleged rough handling of the students by the officer will be forgotten. The theatre management already has made an apology to the student body.

JURY EXONERATES CONTRACTOR

Thomas A. Reilly, a contractor, and his father, Patrick, a foreman employed by him, were exonerated from blame yesterday in connection with the dynamite explosion at the street and Columbus avenue last Thursday, by a coroner's jury in Coroner Holtzhauser's court.

The jury held that Charles Weisell, a steamfitter, thirty-three years old, of No. 16 Hull street, was the person who set the dynamite to explode in an explosion due to "cannibalism."

New-York Tribune's Bookreaders' Contest $15,450 in Prizes

Beginning Monday, December 4th

WHAT ARE THE NAMES OF THE BOOKS THESE PICTURES REPRESENT?

Contestants will be required to write their answers upon the coupon which will be printed on page 2 of the Tribune every day during the Contest. Answers must not be sent in until the Contest is closed.

You Should Be Thankful for the Opportunities This Contest Offers

More Than a Thousand Rich and Valuable Rewards for Successful Competitors.

Do you read books? Do you know the names of books? One might as well ask a person if he knew how to walk or talk, or if he ever heard the name of George Washington. Of course, every one knows the names of books—knows the names of hundreds of them.

Next question—Do you see the sample Bookreaders' pictures published to-day? Just to try your skill for a few moments, place your hand over the coupon upon which the answers to these sample pictures are written and see if you cannot name the books from memory.

The Tribune is publishing new sample Bookreaders' pictures every day in order to acquaint each and every reader with the nature of the Official Bookreaders' Pictures, the first two of which will appear in The Tribune on next Monday, December 4.

This new contest of The New-York Tribune offers another opportunity for people of all ages. Men, women and children will all be eligible to compete and try for the rewards which will go to the successful competitors. The contest has been especially designed on new and interesting lines and is already exciting widespread interest.

The prizes are magnificent. A $3,200 Stearns' Car is offered to the contestant who submits, according to the conditions of the contest, the correct answer to the entire series of Official Bookreaders' Pictures. That prize alone is worth a good many days of labor, yet it may be secured by a few hours of quiet study and planning on the part of the successful contestant.

The second grand prize is a fine $2,200 White Stearns Touring Car, the name of which is sufficient guarantee. In all, there are ten hundred and thirty-six prizes to be distributed to those who persevere in the contest, the pictures and submit the nearest correct answers.

To convince yourself of the excellence of these rewards, glance over the complete list of prizes, which is published in the adjoining column. See for yourself whether you do not think it worth your while to spare at least fifteen minutes each day in this entertaining and even instructive competition.

An excellent feature of this contest is that contestants will not be required to supply the names of the authors of the books represented. Only the names of the books which are portrayed by the illustrations will be required upon the part of the contestant. This plan insures complete accuracy, and reduces the chance of possible errors to a minimum.

The Tribune Bookreaders' Contest is absolutely unrestricted. It is open to every one, everywhere. Those who live at a distance have exactly the same opportunity as those who live in greater New York, and no matter how far away you are, you may participate.

The conditions of the contest are such as to guarantee each contestant an absolutely fair and square opportunity of displaying the greatest skill together with accuracy, in submitting the correct answers. The contest is so arranged that you have the opportunity for intelligent recreation and the securing of such ample rewards as are offered in The Tribune's new picture contest.

Study the sample pictures published to-day. Read over the plans and conditions of the contest carefully, and you will not regret that you have ordered The New-York Tribune daily and Sunday, place an order with your nearest newsdealer to begin serving you with a copy of the paper every day from now on.

Explanation of the New-York Tribune's Bookreaders' Contest.

Every day for Seventy-three (73) days there will appear in The New-York Tribune (Daily and Sunday Editions) Two (2) Illustrations, Cartoons or other representations of the names of books. The Tribune will award ten hundred and thirty-six prizes to Tribune readers sending in the nearest correct answers to the entire series of book illustrations.

The correct names of books to be illustrated and to serve as a basis for the contest are provided in the New-York Tribune's Bookreaders' Contest Catalogue, which will be published as a guide and reference for contestants' use. The correct list of reference will be placed under seal in the safety deposit department of the National Park Bank, where it will remain until it is called for by the judges at the close of the contest. To compete for the prizes, contestants must give the name of the book exactly according to the wording, spelling and punctuation as published in the Tribune's Bookreaders' Contest Catalogue. Five (5) different editions of the Catalogue will be distributed to contestants who will not even know the answers to the puzzle pictures they draw.

CONDITIONS:

- 1. The Bookreaders' Contest is open to all readers of the Daily and Sunday Tribune, excepting employees and members of their families.
2. Contestants must write the names of the books represented by the illustrations upon the coupon provided therefor, and which will appear on Page 2 of The Tribune (Daily and Sunday) every day during the period of the contest. Answers may be written with pen, pencil or by typewriter.
3. Each picture represents the name of only one (1) book, and contestants will not be required to give the name of the author, only the title or name of the book as it appears in the Catalogue. Answers may be written in any language, but will be permitted to read five (5) answers to each book picture. If the correct answer is given, incorrect answers will not count against the contestant.
4. Only two (2) answers may be written upon a single coupon in the case of the Tribune's Contest.
5. Answers, and all coupons of the same number must be kept together in making up the set. Where contestants wish to submit additional answers to the same book illustration they may do so without filling out the entire coupon. Pictures may be submitted with the answers if contestants so desire, but they will not count for them.
6. Different members of a family may compete in the Contest, but only one (1) set of answers will be accepted from any individual contestant. Participation in any other contest now being run will not deprive any one of entering this competition.
7. All answers must be held until the entire series of book illustrations have been printed in The Tribune, and every set of coupons upon which answers are written must be arranged in numerical order, fastened securely together and delivered or mailed in a flat package, not folded or rolled, plainly addressed to THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE'S BOOKREADERS' CONTEST DEPARTMENT, TRIBUNE BUILDING, NEW-YORK CITY, within the time specified in Rule 7.
8. The time for receiving answers will have no effect upon the awarding of prizes, with this exception: All answers must be delivered at the CONTEST DEPARTMENT of THE TRIBUNE, or bear postmark of mailing of not later than midnight, Saturday, March 9, 1912.
9. Prizes will be awarded to the contestants, in order, according to the number of correct answers sent in to the entire series of book illustrations.
