Radical Democrats as Well as Republicans Will Make Up Steering Committee of Seven on Organization.

COLONEL RUNS WHOLE SHOW

Governor Johnson of California Presides at Second Meeting in Chicago, but Roosevelt Is Dominating Force in the Background.

A DOZEN STATES CLAIMED

Illinois, However, Deserts, and Probably Missouri Will, While the Levy Election Law Makes Scheme Practically Futile in New York.

[By a Staff Correspondent of The Tribune.] Chicago, June 23.—Theodore Roosevelt will go back to Oyster Bay to-morrow, jubilant over the prospect of running for the Presidency as the candidate of a third party made up of Republicans and Democrats.

James R. Garfield, of the Roosevelt cabinet, announced to-night that there would be Roosevelt candidates for Presidential electors in every state. Also, wherever possible, there will be a Roosevelt state ticket and Roosevelt candidates for Congress.

Under the guidance and direction of the ex-President, Governor Hiram Johnson of California is to be the head of the temporary third party organization. In plain fact, it will be a Roosevelt built affair.

This third party scheme pleases Colonel Roosevelt and some of his radical followers almost beyond utterance. It has not pleased others at all, and there is no question that he will lose some men from his camp who up to date have figured as staunch Rooseveltians.

And there are some who must be whistled, of course—who declare that Roosevelt is going into this third party movement now because he believes this was the proper year to smash the Republican party, but that 1916 will be the proper year for him to win that third term in the White House.

The actual beginning of organization is bothering the men who will be called on to do the work. Garfield declared to-day that there would be ample funds. The Rooseveltians have found, however, that the laws of the states differ widely regarding the selection of Presidential electors.

In some states it may be necessary to place the names of Roosevelt electors on the ballots by petition. In others men already have been selected. That is the case in Minnesota. They happen to be Progressive, but, according to Hugh T. Halbert, of St. Paul, a Roosevelt member of the credentials committee, they will resign and then have their names placed on the ballot again by petition, to avoid any possible question of their right to vote for the colonel.

In New York, however, the Levy election law requires about fifty thousand signatures to set Presidential electors placed on the ballot for an independent candidate. Those signatures must be divided pro rata among the Congress districts, and none may sign who is enrolled in the old line parties.

In Indiana, however, it would be easy to have third ticket electors on the ballot. In several other states, however, like New York, the process is most complicated.

Claim a Dozen States Already.

It was made plain to-night by many of the Roosevelt workers that they believed they had a good beginning of their machine in most of the Roosevelt primary states. They expect, and so does Colonel Roosevelt, that California's original Republican organization will become Rooseveltian. They figure that the Republican machines in Idaho, Maine,

SCORE DIE IN NIAGARA RIVER AS PIER FALLS

More than 200 Persons Thrown Into Water at Park on Grand Island.

MOTOR BOATS TO RESCUE

Swift Current Adds to Difficulty of Saving Pleasure Seekers—Eight Bodies Recovered—Many Injured.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] Buffalo, June 23.—Between fifteen and twenty persons were drowned and many injured to-night, when a fifty-foot pier at Eagle Park, Grand Island, Niagara River, collapsed under the weight of 250 people, throwing them into twelve feet of water. Up to midnight eight bodies have been recovered, of whom six have been identified.

The steamer Henry Koerber had just warped into the pier to take on a load of returning pleasure seekers. The pier was crowded with people and more were coming down from the grove above. The gang planks were thrown out and the section of the crowd nearest to the steamer began to move forward. Captain Fix on board called out to them to move slowly. The words were no more than out of his mouth when the centre of the pier, half way between the place where the boat was tied up and the shore end, sank with a crash.

The planking held fast to the timbers on both sides of the pier, forming a pocket in the centre into which the struggling mass of people were thrown. Many were caught in the wreckage of the pier, but fully one hundred and fifty went into the water, which, beneath the dock, was from ten to twelve feet in depth, with a current of about ten miles an hour.

The wreckage of the pier served to hold the bulk of the struggling crowd, but several who fell clear of it began to float away. Rowboats and motor boats were pressed into service, and some of these were rescued. It is certain, however, that in addition to the bodies rescued in the vicinity of the pier many were swept away, and it will be some time before their identity can be established.

Rowboats and motorboats were used to release many jammed in the broken timbers, and men who could swim stripped and dove into the river to help the women and children. Supervisor Henry Lieb, who was in the centre of the throng that went down, was rescued after being in the water for more than thirty minutes.

"I believe that over twenty lives were lost," said Mr. Lieb. "There were fully 250 people on the dock and three-quarters of them went down with it. There was but little warning before the crash came. The dock trembled slightly, and I thought it was caused by the steamer coming in closer. But a second later we went down."

"I swam clear of the jam and got hold of a spile, but owing to my weight I was unable to hold on there very long. Some one dropped a rope through the opening and helped me over to the side where I could get a better hold. I then fastened the rope around the waist of a woman, who was drawn up on the dock."

A. Stocker and M. L. Martin rescued about twenty-five persons, mostly women and children, in their launch, in which they were just about to start for Buffalo. "When I saw the extent of the disaster," said Stocker, "I called to Martin to tie up to the dock, and both of us stripped. It was hard work to do anything against the current under the dock, but as fast as we could get hold of any one by working together we could get them on the motor boat, from which they were taken on board the Koerber."

BRYAN WILL FIGHT PARKER TO FINISH

Reported that Wilson Men Have Made Overtures to Clark Forces to Unite on Ollie James.

LINE-UP AGAINST OLDTIME BOSSES

Thomas Fortune Ryan and Corporation Allies Much in Evidence—Hold Conferences with the View of Electing the Ex-Judge as Presiding Officer—Murphy Keeps Out of the Wrangle by Playing Golf.

(By a Staff Correspondent of The Tribune.)

Baltimore, June 23.—The opening round of the fight with which it is now assured the Democratic convention of 1912 will begin will start to-morrow morning, when the full national committee meets to take up the matter of the temporary chairmanship in a report from the subcommittee which met last Thursday.

Two things in connection with that report were made certain by Bryan's arrival to-day, and by the developments in the reactionary camp. They are, first, that the name of Alton B. Parker, of New York, will be presented to the national committee as the designation of the sub-committee for the temporary chairmanship, with the full and united backing of the old-line bosses who started the Parker movement, and, second, that the full weight of every ounce of strength that Bryan can command in the national committee will be swung into line against Parker and in favor of a radical candidate for the temporary chairmanship. It is probable that the radicals will be united on Senator John W. Kern, of Indiana.

There was talk to-night that the adherents of Governor Wilson of New Jersey had made overtures to Speaker Clark's forces to join in a fight to put up Senator-elect Ollie James, of Kentucky, as temporary chairman of the convention against Judge Parker. James is a Clark supporter. There was no definite action, however, and it is said the matter may be taken up to-morrow.

Bryan gave a long interview to the newspaper men to-night, and in it, among other things, he made it absolutely plain that he would fight Parker's selection to the last inch.

Coincident with Bryan's arrival, or, in fact, preceding it by an hour or so, came the big financial and legal lights of New York who are always to be found backing the moves of Thomas Fortune Ryan, including Allan Ryan, the financier's son.

The impending fight between radicals and reactionaries in the national committee completely overshadowed even the talk of the old-line boss crowd instigated this temporary chairmanship fight deliberately, and they propose to take up the issue and fight it out at the beginning, before they proceed to the business of nominating candidates.

BRYAN VS. MONEY-REACTIONARISM.

For that reason the gossip of the convention city to-day was all of the line-up in what is viewed here as Bryan radicalism versus money-reactionarism, and the arrival of the big gun men on the two sides of that argument threw into the shade the question of who is to win the Presidential nomination.

The old-line bosses who are behind Parker were more willing to talk to the press to-day than they have ever been before, and the burden of their talk was that it would be a terrible blow to harmony in the Democratic party to begin by "humiliating" a former candidate of the party.

That was the word Norman E. Mack used when he spoke of the impending fight.

"It would certainly not work for harmony in this year, when our prospects are so bright," he said, "to begin by humiliating a former national candidate of our party."

On the other side of the fence the radicals were taking little thought or care of the feelings of Mr. Parker, or any one else. They were busy all day preparing for Bryan's advent, and they were busy most of the night trying to see him.

CLARK MEN TO SUPPORT BRYAN.

Senator Stone, Clark's manager, was reported to be directing all Clark adherents to support Bryan in the anti-Parker fight, but he whisperingly denied the report during the afternoon.

Late this evening it became known, however, that a message was sent to the newly arrived Massachusetts delegation, where Clark won the preference primary vote, asking them to line up against Parker. The message purported to come from the Clark headquarters, and the Massachusetts men seemed too ready to accept it without question, in spite of "Gumshoe Bill" Stone's denial of the fact that he was working against Parker.

As a matter of fact, the only noticeable political development of the day, apart from the Parker affair, seemed to be a sort of "spreading" of the Clark strength. Clark delegates were reported to be flirting with the Harmon people, and Clark delegates were to be seen openly seeking advice on the Parker fight around the Wilson headquarters.

Judge Parker himself arrived during the afternoon, with at least a part of his "keynote" speech, which he may or may not have the chance to deliver, completed. About his aspirations toward the temporary chairmanship he declined to commit himself, but he was reported later to be in conference with Thomas Fortune Ryan at the Maryland Club, so it was pretty well accepted that Parker would not withdraw himself from the field.

CONFIDENT OF BEATING PARKER.

The bosses who are supporting Parker in the preliminary committee fights face the unpleasant duty of holding their strength up to a maximum, not only through the committee discussions, but also on the floor of the convention, and while the radicals are confident that they will defeat Parker in the session of the national committee to-morrow morning, they go right along to say that even if defeated there they will surely make Judge Parker walk the plank at the organizing session of the convention on Tuesday.

"Boss" Murphy of Tammany Hall, whom Ewing, of Louisiana, accused of being the original instigator of the Parker movement, spent most of the day on the golf links of the Green Valley Country Club, playing with a party which included the social arbiter, J. Sergeant Cram. Commissioner Cram, by the way, is going around with the same happy smile with which he was wont to attend the Tammany boss in all his movings, exactly as if there had never been a period when they suspended all Damon and Pythias intercourse.

SELECTION OF PARKER WOULD BE A DISGRACE, SAYS BRYAN

[By a Staff Correspondent of The Tribune.] Baltimore, June 23.—William Jennings Bryan, an evasive candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, submitted to an invitation grilling and interview to-night at the end of which the distinguished Nebraskan and perennial candidate was tired, hot and fully ready to call off the interview proposition and return to plain and simple politics. Mr. Bryan was courteous personified to the hundred newspaper men who crowded in his room on the ninth floor of the Belvidere Hotel to-night, and he was also cautious personified. He caught the score of questions hung
