

PERKINS SEES ROOSEVELT

Dr. Lyman Abbott His Only Other Visitor at Oyster Bay. CONDITION STILL IMPROVES

Colonel Probably Will Be in Active Touch with Campaign in Few Days.

(By Telegraph to the Tribune.) Oyster Bay, Oct. 23.—Ex-President Roosevelt saw visitors at his bedside today for the first time. There were only two of them—Dr. Lyman Abbott and George W. Perkins, executive chairman of the National Progressive party.

Colonel Roosevelt has been resting in bed since his arrival here and is decidedly better. His wound shows the healthy healing processes are going on.

Dr. Terrell, who has been in attendance right along, has been quartered at the home of Colonel Roosevelt, near Sagamore Hill, and can be called at any hour of the day or night.

Colonel Roosevelt has denied himself to all visitors since Tuesday morning, because his condition demanded a complete rest after the constant strain to which he had been subjected in Chicago receiving visitors and talking with various persons outside of the immediate family.

Senator Dixon, George W. Perkins and O. K. Davis, who had motored to Oyster Bay to see Colonel Roosevelt at his own request, returned to Progressive National headquarters with glowing accounts of Mr. Roosevelt's splendid condition.

The most remarkable improvement noticeable, said Mr. Davis, who had been with Colonel Roosevelt at the time of the shooting, was that the grayish pallor of his face has been replaced by a healthy color.

"Colonel Roosevelt chatted in the most spirited manner," said Senator Dixon, "telling us his remarkable experience. He was sitting in his pajamas, with a dressing gown thrown around him. The campaign was not mentioned."

As to Mr. Roosevelt's appearance at the mass meeting next week, Senator Dixon said that although the doctors would not announce definitely that Mr. Roosevelt would be able to speak, it seemed as if the colonel was quite certain that he would be present at the meeting.

ANTIQUE LOST IN BOSTON FIRE. Boston, Oct. 23.—Richard C. MacLaurin, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, discovered a fire today in the Back Bay home of George P. Hamlin, a prominent business man, and his alarm saved the house from being destroyed.

CZAREVITCH COMFORTABLE

Temperature Rises at Night—Great Anxiety in Russia. St. Petersburg, Oct. 23.—The condition of the Russian crown prince is causing the greatest anxiety at the imperial court and among the general public.

The Russian crown prince last night passed the best night since the beginning of his illness. He slept uninterrupted for two hours without waking.

The swelling in groin has not disappeared, but it is almost painless. His temperature is 100.9, and his pulse 134.

The strictest silence is preserved in regard to the nature of the accident met by the Grand Duke Alexis. That it was a serious one is indicated by the summons by telegraph sent to Dr. Raunhuss, the court physician, who attends on the imperial children, to proceed at once to Spala, in Russian Poland, where he arrived to-day.

Religious services at which prayers were offered for the recovery of the heir to the throne were held at Spala yesterday and attended by the minister of the imperial household, a large number of court officials, soldiers and servants.

WILSON TALKS IN CHURCH

Sermonizes to Presbyterians at Trenton Anniversary. KEEPS OFF POLITICS

Speaks of the Value of Example of Consecrated Men—Won't Take Stump Till T. R. Does.

(By Telegraph to the Tribune.) Trenton, N. J., Oct. 23.—Governor Wilson came here to-night to help celebrate the 20th anniversary of the First Presbyterian Church, and the five hundred members of the congregation present at the services were treated to the novel sensation of a Presidential candidate two weeks before election delivering what practically was a sermon from a church pulpit.

In his discourse Governor Wilson kept as far away from the political atmosphere as any full fledged parson would under similar circumstances, although he went dangerously near the line when he said:

"Always be afraid of a man who is indifferent to his own success, and certain of the success of the things he represents. Stand out of the way, for he has behind him the hosts of the Almighty."

"The Church," Governor Wilson said, "represents a structural part of humanity." Then he went on to say:

"It represents that spiritual part which does not seek expression in the forms of government or even in the forms of society, but seeks expression in its search for God. In its search for ultimate explanation of life, in its search for the ultimate fountains of the human spirit."

The things that are outside of us and beyond our control and higher than we are are the things by which we seek to measure ourselves, and every church is an attempt to discover a standard.

We know that that standard cannot be discovered in our own lives, because we see how our own lives change and alter under the very impulse of our own changing conclusions and varying temptations.

The permanent side of life. We know the very impulse of our own changing conclusions and varying temptations. We know that life without something like the standard of the church is a mere quackery in which we walk, not only with faltering and stumbling footsteps, but with a sinking sense that we have nothing under our feet.

So that when I think of this church I think of it as one of the expressions, one of the many expressions, of the permanent side of life.

A theological controversy arises out of doubt, Governor Wilson said. It arises out of a difference of opinion, it arises out of a difference of information. Somebody has said that the church a man belongs to is largely a question of temperament, largely a question of his spiritual approach to the angle from which he looks at a thing. He continued:

Some people enjoy the service, Presbyterians have an inordinate taste for sermons. They come to be instructed, they come to hear things discussed, and the standards applied to life upon some high plane of exposition; whereas, others wish to have their emotions stirred to no preference to their intellectual sides.

But, however the variation may be, no matter what the epidemic that afflicts the church, the external form may be, they are all looking for a foothold, they are all looking for some firm ground upon which to stand. The church witnessed many changes, the rise of a nation, the birth and death of political parties, it has seen everything change, except this search for God.
