

BOTH BORDEN AND DAUGHTER VANISH

No Trace of Them in Boston and Clew at Worcester Fails with Hotel Departures There.

MRS. WHITE MISSING, TOO

On Way to Chicago, Says Lawyer—Mother of Ramona Reported Coming Here from the West to Meet Her.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Boston, April 27.—The mystery of the disappearance of Ramona Borden, the daughter of Gail Eorden, the milkman millionaire, of New York, has been followed by another almost as startling. Where is Mr. Borden and his daughter, now that they have been reunited? Even the present whereabouts of Mrs. William J. White, of Washington, who was Miss Borden's companion on part of her wanderings before her discovery here, is not as puzzling.

What action Mr. Borden meant to take as a result of the flight of his daughter and whether he would attempt to punish those who had assisted her, the wealthy New Yorker did not disclose when he and his daughter met here at the Hotel Touraine yesterday. That was a subject to be discussed when the harrowed feelings of the father had calmed down.

Meantime Mr. Borden and his daughter have dropped from view, and in spite of every effort of those interested to find them no trace of them at present can be had. They are believed to be in or near Boston, but the search for them has been fruitless.

DEPEW SHUNS CEMETERY

Ex-Senator Objects to Being Even a Trustee of One.

[From The Tribune Bureau.] Washington, April 27.—Ex-Senator Chauncey M. Depew objects to being named as a trustee of a cemetery, especially without his consent.

That fact developed when a petition was filed by Mr. Depew in the Circuit Court of Upper Marlboro, Prince George County, Md., asking that his name be stricken from the Prince George County papers of the incorporation of the Capital Cemetery. He sets forth that he just recently discovered that the incorporation filed a certificate in 1910 to the effect that five trustees, including himself, would manage the cemetery. He asserts the use of his name was unauthorized.

LORIMER IN SENATE RACE

Plans to Try for Seat in 1914 by Direct Election.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Chicago, April 27.—William Lorimer plans to run for the United States Senate in the direct election in 1914. His arrangements already have been formulated by the Republican Club of Illinois, successor to the Lorimer Lincoln League.

William Hale Thompson, one of Lorimer's chief lieutenants, has been selected as the organization's candidate for Mayor. A canvass is being made in an effort to obtain signatures to the Thompson petition. These names later will be used to put Lorimer on the Senate ballot, it is said.

ROBBER SPOILS HER SLEEP

Miss Loew Awakened by Man Who Loots House.

Westbury, Long Island, April 27.—Miss Margaret Loew, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Goodby Loew, who live in the Wheatly Hills section, was awakened early this morning by the sound of some one trying to break into her room. The girl shrieked, and a man jumped from the front porch and disappeared.

The household was alarmed and servants ran in all directions, but no trace of the man could be found.

When things had quieted down it was discovered the man had entered other rooms and had stolen $85 in cash, pair studs, a gold watch and several trinkets.

Just how the robber escaped is causing considerable speculation, as there are a number of dogs kept on the place.

FISHING RECTOR IS LATE

Mounts Pulpit and Tells Congregation He Forgot Appointment.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Middletown, Conn., April 27.—The Rev. George B. Gilbert, rector of Emanuel Episcopal Church, at Killingworth, went fishing before church and the speckled beauties were so responsive he forgot about his appointment with his congregation. It was half an hour after the time for the service to commence when he finally hurried into church, armed with a fish pole and with his basket over his shoulder. He threw these into a rear pew and entered the pulpit mopping his brow.

The congregation, which had been waiting patiently, was astonished when the rector explained that he had started early that morning to fish on the way, and had forgotten his appointment. A frank acknowledgment of the sermon, he proceeded with the sermon, after the service he allowed his fish to fry in a pan into his basket's basket, and those who saw his catch vowed the rector was excusable.

SCUTARI'S CAPTURE WAS A PUT-UP JOB

Essad Pacha, in Connivance with King Nicholas, Now Proclaims Himself King of Albania.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] London, April 28.—King Nicholas has played his trump card. It would appear that the surrender of Scutari was a put-up job between himself and Essad Pacha, commander of that fortress. Nicholas was to obtain Scutari and Essad was to take whatever he could get in Albania, and each was to support the other, for now comes the news that Essad has proclaimed himself King of Albania at Alessio and has joined hands with Djavid Pacha, the Turkish general who commanded in Albania. Between them the two must have at least forty thousand men under arms, and if they have reached an agreement with King Nicholas it is not very clear how Europe can intervene with effect to make that agreement void.

While the powers have been painfully delimiting the exact frontier of Albania the Montenegrins and the Albanians have settled the question among themselves. It is a stroke of exquisite humor and one which makes the much vaunted concert look exceedingly foolish, but it adds a fresh complication in the Albanian imbroglio, and, perhaps gravest of all, creates an additional incentive for Austria to take aggressive action.

"BENEFACITOR" ASKS PAY; SOCIETY BALKS

He Induces Leading Westchester Men to Organize a Charity for Cripples and Then a Tangle Ensues.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] Leading citizens of Westchester, who are officers and directors of a new charitable organization, The Cripples' Welfare Society, are dissatisfied with some of the things George W. Ryder, of Poughkeepsie, the society's "founder," has been doing. A special meeting will be called soon by the president, Judge Frank V. Millard, ex-surrogate of Westchester, to take action toward carrying out the designs which brought the society into being.

Among those identified with the organization are the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Tarrytown; Dr. Frank E. Russell, president of the Westchester County Medical Society, and Dr. William S. Coons, president of the Yonkers Board of Health.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

ESSAD PACHA. Late commander of besieged garrison at Scutari, who now proclaims himself King of Albania.

MUTE TALE OF SEA TRAGEDY

Life Raft and Body Sighted in the Atlantic.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Philadelphia, April 27.—A life raft and a floating body, discovered at sea by the officers and crew of the German steamship Euphemia, which just reached here from London, is believed to be the record of a marine disaster in which an unknown vessel and her crew have been lost.

The body was that of a seaman. The mute evidence of the sea tragedy was sighted in latitude 36.22, longitude 74.21, on April 13.

DEPEW SHUNS CEMETERY

Ex-Senator Objects to Being Even a Trustee of One.

[From The Tribune Bureau.] Washington, April 27.—Ex-Senator Chauncey M. Depew objects to being named as a trustee of a cemetery, especially without his consent.

That fact developed when a petition was filed by Mr. Depew in the Circuit Court of Upper Marlboro, Prince George County, Md., asking that his name be stricken from the Prince George County papers of the incorporation of the Capital Cemetery. He sets forth that he just recently discovered that the incorporation filed a certificate in 1910 to the effect that five trustees, including himself, would manage the cemetery. He asserts the use of his name was unauthorized.

LORIMER IN SENATE RACE

Plans to Try for Seat in 1914 by Direct Election.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Chicago, April 27.—William Lorimer plans to run for the United States Senate in the direct election in 1914. His arrangements already have been formulated by the Republican Club of Illinois, successor to the Lorimer Lincoln League.

William Hale Thompson, one of Lorimer's chief lieutenants, has been selected as the organization's candidate for Mayor. A canvass is being made in an effort to obtain signatures to the Thompson petition. These names later will be used to put Lorimer on the Senate ballot, it is said.

ROBBER SPOILS HER SLEEP

Miss Loew Awakened by Man Who Loots House.

Westbury, Long Island, April 27.—Miss Margaret Loew, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Goodby Loew, who live in the Wheatly Hills section, was awakened early this morning by the sound of some one trying to break into her room. The girl shrieked, and a man jumped from the front porch and disappeared.

The household was alarmed and servants ran in all directions, but no trace of the man could be found.

When things had quieted down it was discovered the man had entered other rooms and had stolen $85 in cash, pair studs, a gold watch and several trinkets.

Just how the robber escaped is causing considerable speculation, as there are a number of dogs kept on the place.

FISHING RECTOR IS LATE

Mounts Pulpit and Tells Congregation He Forgot Appointment.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Middletown, Conn., April 27.—The Rev. George B. Gilbert, rector of Emanuel Episcopal Church, at Killingworth, went fishing before church and the speckled beauties were so responsive he forgot about his appointment with his congregation. It was half an hour after the time for the service to commence when he finally hurried into church, armed with a fish pole and with his basket over his shoulder. He threw these into a rear pew and entered the pulpit mopping his brow.

The congregation, which had been waiting patiently, was astonished when the rector explained that he had started early that morning to fish on the way, and had forgotten his appointment. A frank acknowledgment of the sermon, he proceeded with the sermon, after the service he allowed his fish to fry in a pan into his basket's basket, and those who saw his catch vowed the rector was excusable.

SCUTARI'S CAPTURE WAS A PUT-UP JOB

Essad Pacha, in Connivance with King Nicholas, Now Proclaims Himself King of Albania.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] London, April 28.—King Nicholas has played his trump card. It would appear that the surrender of Scutari was a put-up job between himself and Essad Pacha, commander of that fortress. Nicholas was to obtain Scutari and Essad was to take whatever he could get in Albania, and each was to support the other, for now comes the news that Essad has proclaimed himself King of Albania at Alessio and has joined hands with Djavid Pacha, the Turkish general who commanded in Albania. Between them the two must have at least forty thousand men under arms, and if they have reached an agreement with King Nicholas it is not very clear how Europe can intervene with effect to make that agreement void.

While the powers have been painfully delimiting the exact frontier of Albania the Montenegrins and the Albanians have settled the question among themselves. It is a stroke of exquisite humor and one which makes the much vaunted concert look exceedingly foolish, but it adds a fresh complication in the Albanian imbroglio, and, perhaps gravest of all, creates an additional incentive for Austria to take aggressive action.

"BENEFACITOR" ASKS PAY; SOCIETY BALKS

He Induces Leading Westchester Men to Organize a Charity for Cripples and Then a Tangle Ensues.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] Leading citizens of Westchester, who are officers and directors of a new charitable organization, The Cripples' Welfare Society, are dissatisfied with some of the things George W. Ryder, of Poughkeepsie, the society's "founder," has been doing. A special meeting will be called soon by the president, Judge Frank V. Millard, ex-surrogate of Westchester, to take action toward carrying out the designs which brought the society into being.

Among those identified with the organization are the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Tarrytown; Dr. Frank E. Russell, president of the Westchester County Medical Society, and Dr. William S. Coons, president of the Yonkers Board of Health.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

SCUTARI'S CAPTURE WAS A PUT-UP JOB

Essad Pacha, in Connivance with King Nicholas, Now Proclaims Himself King of Albania.

AT HEAD OF 40,000 MEN

Pretender Effects Junction with Djavid Pacha—Europe Faced with New Complication Still More Provocative to Austria.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] London, April 28.—King Nicholas has played his trump card. It would appear that the surrender of Scutari was a put-up job between himself and Essad Pacha, commander of that fortress. Nicholas was to obtain Scutari and Essad was to take whatever he could get in Albania, and each was to support the other, for now comes the news that Essad has proclaimed himself King of Albania at Alessio and has joined hands with Djavid Pacha, the Turkish general who commanded in Albania. Between them the two must have at least forty thousand men under arms, and if they have reached an agreement with King Nicholas it is not very clear how Europe can intervene with effect to make that agreement void.

While the powers have been painfully delimiting the exact frontier of Albania the Montenegrins and the Albanians have settled the question among themselves. It is a stroke of exquisite humor and one which makes the much vaunted concert look exceedingly foolish, but it adds a fresh complication in the Albanian imbroglio, and, perhaps gravest of all, creates an additional incentive for Austria to take aggressive action.

"BENEFACITOR" ASKS PAY; SOCIETY BALKS

He Induces Leading Westchester Men to Organize a Charity for Cripples and Then a Tangle Ensues.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] Leading citizens of Westchester, who are officers and directors of a new charitable organization, The Cripples' Welfare Society, are dissatisfied with some of the things George W. Ryder, of Poughkeepsie, the society's "founder," has been doing. A special meeting will be called soon by the president, Judge Frank V. Millard, ex-surrogate of Westchester, to take action toward carrying out the designs which brought the society into being.

Among those identified with the organization are the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Tarrytown; Dr. Frank E. Russell, president of the Westchester County Medical Society, and Dr. William S. Coons, president of the Yonkers Board of Health.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

"BENEFACITOR" ASKS PAY; SOCIETY BALKS

He Induces Leading Westchester Men to Organize a Charity for Cripples and Then a Tangle Ensues.

CALLS WOMAN IMPOSTOR

She Posed as "Mrs. G. H. Ryder," but He Denies She's His Wife—Judge Millard and His Associates Plan Anew.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] Leading citizens of Westchester, who are officers and directors of a new charitable organization, The Cripples' Welfare Society, are dissatisfied with some of the things George W. Ryder, of Poughkeepsie, the society's "founder," has been doing. A special meeting will be called soon by the president, Judge Frank V. Millard, ex-surrogate of Westchester, to take action toward carrying out the designs which brought the society into being.

Among those identified with the organization are the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Tarrytown; Dr. Frank E. Russell, president of the Westchester County Medical Society, and Dr. William S. Coons, president of the Yonkers Board of Health.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.

Ryder, who unfolded the plan to form the society to Judge Millard a little over a year ago, was born in Westchester County. He knew many persons in Tarrytown, having once driven a milk wagon for a dairy company. Bearing every evidence of prosperity, he told Judge Millard that he was prepared to aid cripples, as he himself had lost one leg in a collision between his milk wagon and a trolley car.