

HADLEY A DIRECTOR OF NEW HAVEN ROAD

President of Yale University Chosen Member of Board at Meeting in Office of Howard Elliott.

REGARDED AS AUTHORITY

Mellen Resigns Presidency of New York, Ontario & Western, and Is Succeeded by J. B. Kerr, Former Vice-President.

Dr. Arthur Twining Hadley, president of Yale University, was elected to the directorate of the New Haven road at a meeting held in the office of President Elliott...

Dr. Hadley's election, according to Mr. Elliott, was first recommended by the executive committee, although the "New England Protective Committee," formed after the succession of disastrous wrecks on the New Haven road...

Since 1885, when Dr. Hadley wrote and published "Railroad Transportation: Its History and Its Laws," he has been recognized as the leading railroad theorist in the country.

President Taft in 1910 appointed Dr. Hadley chairman of the stock and bond commission, which investigated the question of bringing future issues of railroad securities under the supervision and control of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

President Taft recommended legislation to prohibit the issue of stock below par without the consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the purchase of any stock in any competing road.

"President Hadley will be a strong addition to the directorate in every way," said Mr. Elliott after the meeting. "He has made a careful study of railroading and his election to the directorate is most satisfying to all the directors."

The meeting yesterday began at 3 o'clock and lasted until after 6. At HUERTA RECALLS DIAZ May Support Envoy for the Mexican Presidency.

Mexico City, Sept. 18.—Instructions have been sent by President Huerta to General Felix Diaz, who is now in Europe, to return to Mexico immediately.

The fact is learned on high authority, and it is regarded here as indicating that General Huerta intends to abide by the pact signed at the American Embassy last February to place no obstacle in the path of General Diaz in his candidacy for the Presidency.

It is considered possible that General Huerta will throw his influence to Diaz, which would practically insure his election.

WHAT MAKES WIVES 'NAG'?

"Drink," Reply Delegates to Jersey W. C. T. U. Meeting.

Delanco, N. J., Sept. 18.—Whether a nagging wife drives a man to drink or a drinking husband drives a woman to nagging was a question that developed into a heated debate between William Slaughter, a lawyer and probation officer for Burlington County, and delegates to the county convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the Delanco Methodist Episcopal Church this afternoon.

Some of the delegates questioned Slaughter's assertion that many first offenders owed their downfall through drink to wives who made home life so unhappy that their husbands sought to drown their grief in liquor.

Newburgh, N. Y., Sept. 18.—While Monsignor Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, was in Newburgh attending the laying of the cornerstone of the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday, September 7, some one robbed him of $20, leaving only a few silver pieces in his pocket money in his brief case.

The news of the robbery came out through his forwarding of a check and letter to Opta, Gaudeite, ticket agent at the station, who advanced the price of a ticket when the monsignor told him of the loss.

PRIEST IS COUSIN OF FAKE DENTIST

Police Confirm Relationship of Slayer and Counterfeiting Accomplice Through Messages from Germany.

MISTREATED, SAYS MURET

Charges Detectives Struck Him in "Third Degree"—Jury Finds Schmidt Killed Girl—Parts of Body Brought to New York.

Hans Schmidt, the Roman Catholic priest who has confessed to the murder of Anna Aumuller, and "Dr." Ernest Muret, his friend and alleged counterfeiting accomplice, are cousins, according to information obtained from Germany yesterday by the police.

Notwithstanding the remarkable likeness of the two men and the news from their birthplace, they continued to deny that any blood relationship existed.

While in London Muret, as Dr. Ernst, got into trouble with the police and fled the country. The medical associations were after him for practicing without a license, and Scotland Yard detectives had him under suspicion as a "white slaver" and a dealer in indecent pictures.

Muret, or Mueller, who was a merchant in Mainz, was well known in Schmidt's home town, Aschaffenburg, and the men were close friends. The last heard of Schmidt's cousin was when he went to Hamburg, a town that figures in the fake dentist's wanderings.

Schmidt's defence will be insanity, his counsel, Alphonse G. Koelble, said last night. And that Schmidt's cousin, Muret, will help to bolster up the insanity defence was evident from a statement that Muret, or Mueller, issued from his cell last night.

Quarrelled with Schmidt.

In this statement the fake dentist, after complaining of a "third degree" at the hands of the police, said he quarrelled with Father Schmidt last month because he (Muret) told the priest he was crazy. Muret said at that time Schmidt talked about St. Elizabeth being with him and that he wanted to be a second Messiah.

This statement of Muret did not come as a surprise to Inspector Faurot, for he expected something like this, in view of the friendship of the two men and of the efforts of Schmidt at all times to try to clear Muret of any implication in his counterfeiting work.

The police have not given up their task of trying to connect Muret with the murder of Anna Aumuller. When he was arrested and taken to Police Headquarters Muret said in his statement he was charged with knowledge of the murder and when he denied that he knew anything about it he was hit on the chest and back.

The case of Schmidt will not go to the grand jury until early in October. District Attorney Whitman yesterday asked Judge Foster if he could try the case toward the end of next month, and Judge Foster replied that he would be agreeable to him.

The District Attorney is preparing to fight any attempt on the part of Schmidt's counsel to have the murderer declared insane. Mr. Whitman is confident that whether a commission in lunacy or a jury of laymen is appointed by Judge Foster to determine Schmidt's mental condition, the verdict will be that he is sane, and then the fight for the priest's life will begin in Part V of General Sessions.

District Attorney Whitman probably will insist upon a jury of twelve men, as in the case of Joseph G. Robin, who was declared sane by the jury after a dozen alienists testified that he was insane.

No Proof of Death.

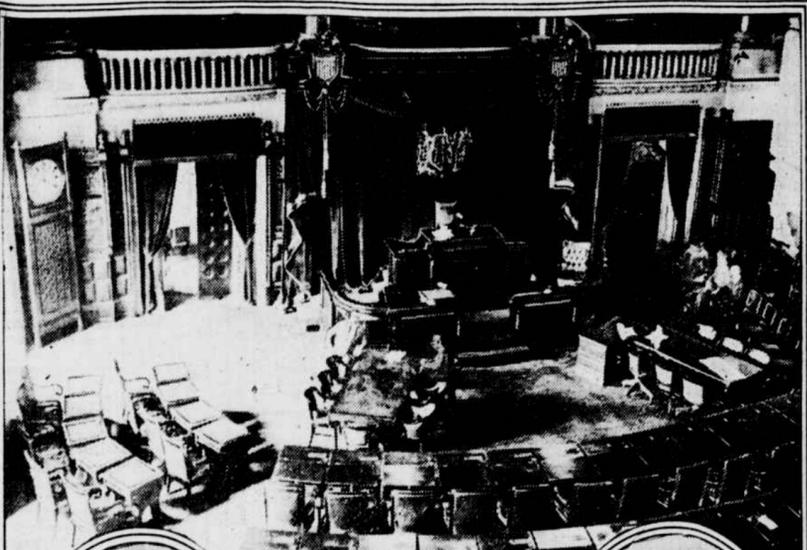

Koelble hinted that in the event of the priest having to stand trial a probable defence would be that the authorities have no proof that Anna Aumuller is dead.

"The police have not determined that the dismembered torso and right thigh in Volk's morgue are those of Anna Aumuller," Koelble said last night. "They have not identified the body as that of the priest's sweetheart, and I don't think that the identification of Annie Hirt, the friend of Anna Aumuller, will stand in court. It will be recalled that she identified the body by a mark on the right breast. Yet she said she never knew of the peculiar birthmark on the Aumuller girl's shoulder."

While the police are satisfied with the identification, they are dragging for the head in the Hudson River, in the neighborhood of 152d street, where a fisherman brought a tuft of hair up on his hook on Tuesday afternoon.

The police are confident that they will find the head in the Hudson River at that point. Schmidt admits that he threw the head into the river from a Fort Lee ferryboat, and the police believe that the tide worked the head a mile or so upstream, near where a fisherman's hook caught it, and brought up a few strands of the hair.

KLINE ASKS WHITMAN TO BE POLICE ADVISER

District Attorney Will Help to Make Policies, with Waldo as Figurehead.

COMMISSIONER MUST OBEY

Otherwise He Will Have to Go, It Is Understood After Conference at the City Hall.

District Attorney Whitman is to be the adviser of Mayor Kline in regard to all matters pertaining to the Police Department. Commissioner Waldo will remain as Commissioner, but he will be a figurehead, at least in so far as the establishment of policies goes.

This was settled at a conference between the District Attorney and the Mayor in the City Hall yesterday at noon. It was learned that the Mayor asked Mr. Whitman to call. The Mayor told him he did not believe it would be a wise thing to appoint a successor to Commissioner Waldo at this time, and that it would be hard to get a man to take charge of the Police Department for the three months remaining of the present administration.

The Mayor frankly told Mr. Whitman he intended to run the department himself, in so far as policies went, but that he would be glad to have the District Attorney advise him on all matters. He offered to make at once any changes the District Attorney desired.

Mr. Whitman said he would not make any recommendations at the moment. However, he said he would be glad to assist in the conduct of the Police Department in any way possible.

When Commissioner Waldo was told that in all probability Mr. Whitman would be the real force in the conduct of the Police Department in the future and was asked if he would take orders from that source he replied: "I have nothing to say."

District Attorney Whitman would not discuss his visit with the Mayor, further than to say he had called to pay his respects.

"It was simply a visit of courtesy," said Mayor Kline. "The District Attorney assured me he would co-operate with me in any way he could. He said he would be glad to give me counsel and advice in any way possible."

SUICIDE OF PRINCESS ENDS LOVE ROMANCE

Sophia of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, Young and Beautiful, Courtied by Banker's Heir.

TRUNKS OF BANKER'S WIFE HELD AT PIER

Mrs. John H. McCullough, III, Leaves Costly Gowns and Lingerie Undeclared.

Heidelberg, Sept. 18.—Princess Sophia of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, a beautiful young woman, unusually popular, of sunny disposition and much courted by the officers, with whom she often rode to hounds at the Baden court hunts, committed suicide early this morning.

The death of the princess was due to a love affair. She was engaged to Hans von Bleichroeder, the eldest son of the senior member of one of the most powerful banking houses in Germany.

Princess Sophia and her parents were much beloved in Heidelberg for the interest they had taken in the poor and in the general public welfare, although her father is by no means wealthy, living as he does on an appanage from the reigning Grand Duke.

Princess Sophia and her parents were first aroused by the sudden disappearance of Mrs. McCullough. As the contents of the trunks were chiefly gowns, lingerie, hats and other articles belonging to her wardrobe, the deputy surveyors wanted to know why she had not remained on the pier to answer questions relative to their purchase and value.

It was explained by Mr. McCullough that his wife was ill and had been forced to leave the pier in company with her physician and the nurse.

While the officials were talking with Mr. McCullough, the maid volunteered that she was familiar with the contents of the trunks and would be able to answer all questions as well as her mistress.

The McCullough declaration contained a record of dutiable merchandise amounting to $200, but a perfunctory examination of the top trays of a few trunks showed that there were many costly gowns which had not been included in the declaration.

Customs Men Say Bills of Sale Were Found in Servant's Stocking—Scent Big Smuggling Plot.

Soon after the Hamburg-American liner Imperator docked in Hoboken, Wednesday night, Mrs. John H. McCullough, wife of a banker at No. 111 Broadway, left the pier for her home, at No. 115 East 40th street, with a nurse and her physician, Dr. Joseph Fraenkel, who had accompanied her on the Imperator.

Before Mrs. McCullough had arrived at her home her entire baggage was detained by the customs officials and sent to the Appraiser's Stores. The trunks had been left to the care of Mr. McCullough, his valet and his wife's maid, all having been passengers on the Imperator.

Although only $5,000 worth of undeclared dutiable articles were found yesterday by the appraisers, the case, it is said, will assume unusual proportions by the time a complete examination is made.

Maid Volunteers to Answer.

LEVY IN FIGHTING MOOD

Sergeant-at-Arms Sent Out to Round Up Missing Members—Two Republicans Subpoenaed to Testify Seek to Avoid Sitting as Judges.

Albany, Sept. 19 (Friday).—As a climax to the beginning of the trial of Governor Sulzer by the High Court of Impeachment the Assembly at an early hour this morning sent James C. Garrison, a recalcitrant witness, aid to John A. Hennessy, to the Albany County Penitentiary.

When the Assembly voted, 80 to 10, to arraign Garrison before the bar of the House the resolution, which was introduced by the majority leader, Aaron J. Levy, was bitterly debated by the few Sulzer supporters present, but the Tammany machine had the votes. Garrison was charged with having refused to testify before the Judiciary Committee with relation to the charge previously made by Garrison that the votes of four Assemblymen had been bought for the impeachment resolution.

Refuses to Answer.

Arraigned before the bar of the House, Garrison was addressed by Speaker Alfred E. Smith, who told him that he thought the whole matter could be settled if he, Garrison, would answer one question.

"That question is," said Smith, "did you say to any one that to your knowledge votes were purchased for the impeachment resolution?"

Garrison hesitated an instant and then replied slowly: "I am sorry to say I have no answer to make to that question at this time."

Smith wasted no more words in any endeavor to smooth the matter over, but said: "Is that your answer?" Garrison simply nodded his head.

"This question can be answered 'Yes' or 'No,'" Smith persisted, but Garrison would only say that he must decline to answer any question until he had the advice of counsel.

There was a loud grumble of disapproval from the members, and Smith tried a final effort.

"Perhaps the gentleman does not understand his position. He can clear himself very easily."

Sent to Penitentiary.

Garrison cleared his throat a minute and then with a final defiance said: "I think the question here is for the Assembly to clear itself, not for me."

The Speaker pounded his gavel, and Levy motioned that Garrison be held in the custody of the sergeant-at-arms, Lee F. Betts, awaiting the action of the House.

That was carried by a viva voce vote, and as Betts took Garrison charge Levy rushed up and said to the sergeant-at-arms: "Take him out of here, take him to the Albany County penitentiary."

Garrison could have escaped the imposition of any penalty from all appearances had he chosen to answer the Speaker's question, but his final defiance accomplished his own defeat.

It is possible that after he has consulted with counsel he will decide to answer, but if this decision comes after the adjournment of this extra session the consensus of opinion of the lawyers in the Assembly is that he cannot get out of jail until the new Assembly is organized.

Albany, Sept. 18.—Following the organization of the High Court of Impeachment to try Governor Sulzer on charges of perjury and theft, it came to light to-night that two of the most important witnesses were missing. These are Louis A. Sarecky, who, as Sulzer's secretary, handled the Sulzer campaign fund, and Frederick Colwell, the broker who paid for certain stock deals in Wall Street with checks drawn to the order of William Sulzer and alleged to have been given to the candidate for Governor as campaign contributions.

Aaron J. Levy, chairman of the board of impeachment managers, said to-night that agents had been unsuccessfully searching for Sarecky for several days. He said that nobody knew where the Sulzer man was, unless the Sulzer people did.

"The last we heard of him" said Levy, "he went to Buffalo on Monday night with John A. Hennessy. We are inclined to believe that he slipped across the border into Canada."

Warrants for the arrest of Sarecky and Colwell, issued by the Assembly following their refusal to testify, are still waiting to be served.

Sarecky was around this city recently
