

ROGERS'S LOVE HAS COOLED, IS REPORT

Wife Accuses Rich Delaware Man, According to Various Hints.

BUT DIVORCE ACTION STORY IS DENIED

Another Woman Mentioned and Father Is Said to Demand Custody of Child.

Despite reports from Wilmington, Del., yesterday that a suit for divorce had been filed in this city by Mrs. Josephine Pyle Rogers against her husband, Theodore Beaulieu Rogers, both of well known Delaware families, Mrs. Rogers's lawyer, Clarence S. Houghton, of 11 Broadway, denied that she had brought such an action. It is intimated, however, that the Rogers matrimonial ship was not sailing on smooth waters.

The marriage of Rogers and Miss Pyle at New Castle in 1909 followed an elopement on a trolley car from Wilmington. Soon afterward Rogers's mother surprised their relatives and friends by marrying Charles Stockley, a lawyer and friend of her son and many years her junior. Mrs. Rogers and Stockley went to Mississippi on a business trip, and when they returned they were man and wife. She has since died.

According to the reports the bringing of the divorce action in New York was to prevent publicity.

Rogers, who is twenty-six years old, is the son of the late Theodore Beaulieu Rogers, of Beaulieu Manor, near New Castle, Del. His father was the nephew of the late Jacob S. Rogers, president of the Rogers Locomotive Works, at Paterson, N. J., who left $5,000,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Mrs. Rogers is the daughter of the late Willard S. Pyle. She was one of six sisters, who all married well. One of Mrs. Rogers's sisters is the wife of Willard Saulsbury, United States Senator from Delaware.

About a month ago Mrs. Rogers came to this city, leaving her home in New Castle, where she was coming here to find employment, but she might earn her own living. It was then that she was said to have filed the divorce suit. An effort was made to have Rogers come to New York and accept service, the reports had it, but he declined to come until Mr. Houghton, Mrs. Rogers's counsel, promised not to serve him. He came and consulted with George Gordon Battle, his lawyer, and agreed to allow his wife a liberal amount of alimony and not defend the suit. It was said, if she would consent to let him have their four-year-old son, Rogers is said to have expressed his willingness to permit his wife to see the boy while in the care of a third person, and that eventually it might be arranged that Mrs. Rogers could have the custody of the son part of the time.

At present Rogers has the custody of the boy, Theodore Beaulieu Rogers, 2d, and Mrs. Rogers is said not to know the present whereabouts of the boy. Rogers obtained the custody of the child from his wife's sister, Mrs. Arthur de Bert Rollins, of Philadelphia, where Mrs. Rogers had placed the boy. The father went from New Castle and demanded his son, and Mrs. Rollins surrendered the boy to his father, who had him placed with a caretaker.

At the death of Jacob Rogers, the locomotive builder, his son became one of the executors of his estate, and his already large fortune was increased. The reported defendant in the divorce suit received the large estate left by his father. Rogers is living at the Hotel Louise, in New Castle. When seen there he refused to discuss the case. Mrs. Rogers is reported to have an unknown woman as correspondent in the divorce action and mentions the place and date of her husband's alleged transgression as the Hotel Navarre, on May 6.

MR. AND MRS. THEODORE B. ROGERS.

HIS DARING DEEDS DWINDLE TO RESCUE OF DOG AT FIRE

Young Policeman, in Own Report, Is Hero Who Fought Flames to Save Lives—But, Also, His Version Is Only a Rose-Tinted Dream.

Lieutenant Stevenson was at the desk at the West 20th st. police station last night when Patrolman Philip S. Haber saluted and began to report a fire. The report had not proceeded far before Stevenson was gazing with admiration on the young policeman. It was no ordinary report. It sparkled with fine descriptive passages and told of the daring work of a young hero, Haber.

"The fire," said Patrolman Haber, "was at 66 and 68 West 28th st., a double four-story building, owned by the Rhineland estate. I was standing at 38th st. and Sixth av. when I heard the cry of 'Fire!' and I looked up and saw smoke. Instructing a citizen to sound in an alarm, I ran to the building.

"The street doors were locked. I burst them in with my shoulder. Flames were licking their way out from under a door on the first floor. I kicked the door in to get at the fire, but such a volume of smoke rushed out it completely overcame me, and I dropped in a semi-conscious condition to the floor.

"As I was crawling to the stairway I heard the screams of a woman at the top of the first flight. I got to the woman and carried her to the street. She was Mrs. George A. Hollis. She told me her husband was in the building. I returned and found Mr. Hollis and assisted him to the street.

"Then for the third time I went back into the building and found Miss Beatrice Allen on the third floor. I tried to carry her down the stairs, but the smoke was too thick for me and I was forced back, but I got the girl to safety down the fire escape at the rear.

"Again I went back and assisted down

SENATE OFFERS NEW ANTI-TRUST BILL

Legislation of the Upper House Stronger than Present Measure.

Washington, June 13.—The prospect that the administration anti-trust bill will not reach a final form until redrafted by the conferees of the two houses was held out today by the action of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in reporting the Newlands bill, with amendments in lieu of the measure passed by the House.

The Senate measure is much stronger than the House bill. The assertion was made by Senator Newlands that it is non-partisan and for this season he predicted that it would be passed without long debate. Numerous amendments will be proposed before the measure is finally disposed of.

Unless some action is taken by the majority to formulate a bill as the last word of the administration it is probable that the Senate will pass legislation so widely different from that approved by the House that it will rest with the conference committee finally to decide upon anti-trust legislation. There have already been a half dozen administration bills and the end is not yet.

Senator Newlands, in reporting the bill, made the following statement: "The commission will require reports only from those corporations designated by it, and the number will be comparatively few. Honest corporations have nothing to fear from legislation aimed only against outlaws. The powers must be general, but their exercise will be aimed only at violators of the law."

Mr. Newlands explained that his committee would soon report its second trust measure, a railroad securities bill. "I do not share," said he, "the gloomy views indulged in by some regarding the railroad situation. On the contrary, I believe the legislation which is being made effective to protect the railroads from financial mismanagement of their own trustees, of which there are a few instances only, will place railroad securities on a higher and more secure plane and make them very desirable investments."

Several changes regarded as most important were reported by the Senate committee. One provides that unfair competition in commerce shall be unlawful and gives the trade commission power to prevent such competition by court orders. Another provides for an investigation of foreign trade conditions and their effect upon American export trade and an investigation of the question of combinations among American and foreign producers for the control of prices.

The House bill provides a commission of three members; the Senate one of five members. The House bill gives the commission authority over corporations with a capital of not less than $5,000,000, while the Senate bill includes all corporations—except railroads—which are engaged in interstate commerce. In other respects the bills are practically identical.

W. G. PECKHAM, 60, WILL WED AGAIN

Miss Marian Wheelock, 40, Won His Heart by Her Business Ability.

LAWYER'S WIFE DIED ABOUT A YEAR AGO

He Was Founder of "Harvard Advocate"—Planned to Surprise Friends.

Westfield, N. J., June 13.—William Gibbs Peckham, a New York attorney, wealthy and founder of "The Harvard Advocate," the oldest literary magazine of the American universities, is to be married this month. It was announced today. His bride will be Miss Marian Wheelock, of Rutherford, N. J.

The announcement was a surprise to Mr. Peckham's friends, as every effort was made by the lawyer to keep the affair secret until after the ceremony. It was not until all the arrangements for the wedding, which will probably take place here, were made that the fact that Mr. Peckham contemplated a second matrimonial venture became known. His first wife died about a year ago.

The following statement was given out today by Mr. Peckham: "The marriage of William G. Peckham and Miss Marian Wheelock, daughter of Francis H. Wheelock, formerly a merchant of Boston, will shortly take place. Mr. Wheelock is a descendant of Eleazer Wheelock, founder of Dartmouth College, and is well known to Harvard men as having managed the Wheelock dormitory at Cambridge in behalf of his family, the owners."

"Mr. Peckham is sixty and Miss Wheelock is about forty. Miss Wheelock is an accomplished musician and was for some time a pupil of Arthur Foote, Harvard, '74, the well known composer."

Neither Miss Wheelock nor Mr. Peckham would state today when the ceremony will take place, other than that it would be "soon."

Mr. Peckham was born at Newport, R. I., and is a member of a family that has long been prominent in that state. At the age of fourteen he entered Harvard, and for years was known as the youngest scholar at the university.

Upon being graduated from Harvard Mr. Peckham studied three years abroad, then came to New York to spend another year studying law at the New York University. Later he read law in the office of Joseph H. Choate, and was admitted to practise in 1870.

A few years later Mr. Peckham won fame. When the Northampton (Mass.) bank was robbed of securities valued at the time at about $500,000, but which were subsequently said to be worth as much as $2,000,000, Mr. Peckham was retained by the bank to prosecute persons who had received the stolen property and to defend the bank in suits brought against it by those who had suffered in the robbery. In every instance he was successful.

He first became acquainted with Miss Wheelock about five years ago. He met her frequently on matters pertaining to business transactions, and was attracted by the capable manner in which she conducted the affairs of her employer.

"The Harvard Advocate," which Mr. Peckham founded during his student days, is still a flourishing paper, and has a literary quality which is unexcelled by any other college publication. It was to launch a protest against compulsory attendance at chapel by students who used the period for an extra "forty winks" in the mornings that developed the journalistic fervor in Mr. Peckham.

Among the ex-editors of "The Advocate" are Theodore Roosevelt, Richard Washburn Child, Arthur Train, Robert Herrick, Edward Sheldon, Charles M. Plafand, Witter Bynner, Arthur Ruhl, Arthur Page and William K. Vanderbilt, jr.

Mr. Peckham's first wife, to whom he was married June 1, 1875, was Miss Laura Thurston. It is understood that Mr. Peckham and his bride will pass their honeymoon either at Mr. Peckham's lodge in the Rockies or abroad. Besides a large country home on Hillside av. in this town, where he has lived several years, he has a winter home in Florida.

Although he has retired from active practice, he still has a law office at 30 Church st., New York. He also is a member of the following clubs in Manhattan: Harvard, Players, Railroad, National Arts, Lawyers and Salmagundi.

GIRL RESOLVED TO WED ARMOUR HEIR

Ida Parker Refuses to Barter Her Love for $50,000 Offer.

While detectives seek young Danforth Brooks Ferguson and efforts are being made to buy off his girl's chum and former fiancée, Ida Parker, she persists in her intention of becoming the wife of the grandson of the late Herman O. Armour and hopes to do so before another month.

The belief still persists in Huntington, Long Island, where the young couple were frequently seen together, that Ferguson would marry the girl in a minute if his mother, Mrs. Juliana Ferguson, did not stand in the way. His whereabouts has been a mystery ever since his sweetheart obtained an order for his arrest following his indictment in Suffolk County several weeks ago.

The necessity of keeping him closely guarded, perhaps at the Monastery, his mother's estate at Huntington, has begun to be a burden, it is believed, for Miss Parker's mother, who now lives in Jamaica, reports that attempts have been made to obtain a release for Armour money. The girl is not now with her mother, who has received the following letter:

"Miss Osgood's mission is to find out how I feel about the case. She said that Danny will have his choice—either marry me or go to jail. She said, 'Will you accept $50,000?' and I said, 'Not for $1,000,000 would I settle.' I have made up my mind that if Danny refuses to marry me when he knows me better than any one else in the world, I would not accept $1,000,000."

Miss Osgood is a supposed detective in the employ of the boy's mother. The young man and his fiancée were frequently seen on Long Island roads in high powered automobiles before the former's mother halted their romance.

WILSON TO OPEN CANAL IN MARCH

Agrees to Lead Armada of All Nations When Congress Adjourns.

OREGON EXECUTIVE FLAGSHIP OF FLEET

Naval Display Promises To Be the Greatest in History of the World.

Washington, June 13.—The President, on March 5 next, accompanied by a host of officials, will leave Washington for Hampton Roads, whence he will lead an armada of foreign and American warships to the Panama Canal.

He will pass through the canal on the bridge of the old battleship Oregon, whose memorable trip around the Horn in 1898 brought strikingly to view the military necessity of an interoceanic canal. By his side will be the Secretary of the Navy and Rear Admiral Clark, who as a captain took the Oregon from the Pacific in time for the battle of Santiago. The great procession of American and foreign warships will follow. From Panama the President will proceed up the coast to San Francisco to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The naval display promises to be the greatest in the history of the world. Eleven nations, including all the great naval powers, have accepted the invitation of the United States to send war vessels to Hampton Roads next spring. Austria, Argentina, Cuba, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Portugal, Russia and Sweden are the nations that have promised to send ships. Others will certainly accept in course of time.

The President's assent to make the journey through the canal was given yesterday. It was originally proposed that the formal opening of the canal should be January 1, but it was thought best to await the adjournment of Congress. The President said he did not care to leave the capital until Congress has finished. The session comes to an end by law March 4, and, accordingly, the President will leave on the following day.

It is expected that practically all the members of the Cabinet will go along, as well as many Senators and Representatives. The admiral of the navy, George Dewey, will have a prominent place in the programme.

It is probable that there will be gathered a great number of veteran sailors and soldiers. A special effort will be made to get together as many as possible of the men who served on the Oregon in 1898. There have already been a tremendous number of applications for passage on the Oregon. The Secretary of the Navy said facetiously this afternoon that as near as he could remember the actual number was 7,112. The number will be strictly limited.

Following the Oregon will probably come the ships of other nations, alternating with American vessels. President Wilson will travel, according to present tentative plans, on the battleship New York, the latest of the Dreadnoughts. It is not known precisely when the formal opening of the canal will take place, but it will be as soon after March 5 as possible, probably within ten days.

Plans to Lower Tunnel. Engineer Would Drop Roof at 34th St. and Park Av.

E. P. Goodrich, consulting engineer of the Borough of Manhattan, has worked out a modification of the Parsons plan for relieving the congestion at Park av. and 34th st., which will be presented to the Board of Estimate soon.

The Collins plan, which the property owners in the vicinity say they will continues to oppose, provides for changing the entrance to the tunnel for surface cars from 34th to 35th st. and the crossing of 34th st. and Park av. at grade. The objection to this is that it would damage the surrounding property, entrance to which would be left above grade.

The Parsons plan, which is advocated by the property owners, would provide for an additional roadway ramp on the east side of 4th av. to be used by north-bound vehicles.

Mr. Goodrich plans to run 34th st. over Park av., as at present, but to cut down the roof of the tunnel so as to lower the hump in 34th st.
