

Roamer Makes a Runaway Race of the Carter Handicap

Sets New Track Record in Beating High Class Field at Aqueduct.

TEN POINT RUNNING OFF IN RUNNING

Big Crowd Turns Out and Enjoys Good Day's Racing—Amalfi Is Bid Up.

By HERBERT.

Andrew Miller's Roamer won the Carter Handicap, a fixture always identified with the Queens County Jockey Club, at Aqueduct yesterday, in a way to set the seal on his greatness as a sprinter, if not something better. He not only defeated a field of the highest class and quality, but ran the seven furlongs in the fast time of 1:24.4, thus smashing the old track record of 1:26, established by the late James R. Keene's Israelite with 103 pounds up in 1914.

Roamer, which won the Saratoga Special last August, gave evidence of his speed in a race at Belmont Park a few days ago, but few were prepared for the great burst he showed as the barrier flashed up yesterday. He rushed away like a quarter horse, and not only outdistanced some of the speediest sprinters in training, but opened up a gap of three or four lengths in the first furlong.

It looked like pure idiocy on the part of Buxton to send him along as last in a race at seven furlongs, and many predicted that the colt would "back up" and "stop to nothing" in the long stretch, but the son of Knight Errant—Rose Tree II—was made of sterner stuff. He held his own without sign of faltering, and H. P. Whitney's Borrow, returned from England last spring, was the only one which could get even within striking distance of him in the last sixteenth Buxton, feeling his horse tiring, decided to take no chances and whipped him out, but it seemed unnecessary, as Borrow, who was driving in a limit to get within two lengths of him.

Roamer, under 100 pounds, was conceding weight according to the scale to every horse in the race except the two leading plants, Ten Point and Borrow, which fairly towered above their opponents. Under the circumstances, then, his performance was the more impressive.

A. L. Astor's Ten Point, never looking better in his life and a horse of magnificent proportions, was a hot tip for the Carter, even under the steady impost of 120 pounds. He was the real contender, however, due partly to the fact that he was pinched off rounding the far turn after rushing up into second place.

Huckhorn, which won the Brooklyn Handicap on Tuesday, could not do himself justice over the short journey, and, further, was hemmed in and hampered a greater part of the way.

Captain James's Flying Fairy ran her usual consistent race in finishing third. She is as honest as she is speedy.

Roamer has not filled out over winter in a race, but he is well set strong in the quarters and distinctly racy looking. If he can carry his speed over a distance it is not unlikely that he will rank high among the three-year-olds and upward.

The crowd was big—so big that it fairly overran the inclosure. Not more than two-thirds of those present could find seats in the grandstand, and many looked with longing eyes at the empty seats in the field inclosure, which has not been opened this year.

The crowd was bigger, if anything, than on Brooklyn Handicap day, and was a tribute to the sport, which is still strong in the quarters and distinctly racy looking. If he can carry his speed over a distance it is not unlikely that he will rank high among the three-year-olds and upward.

Enthusiasm reached its height with the running of the Carter Handicap, but interest did not lag from end to end.

August Belmont's Crossbun did not begin to run her race in the opening end. Jimmy Butwell was at the whip before she had gone a furlong in, and he resorted to the same persuasion at various points in the race, but the filly was contrary and would not give of her best.

The consistent Water Welles pulled down the purse, but H. C. Hallenbeck's Impression, just arrived from Canada, would have won in a another stride. He was tossed for a rather wide stretch turn was responsible.

Amalfi, under improved handling, finally won a race, after having been held by his own boys on the ground and engaged Kederis to do the riding. The move was a good one, as the boy made no mistakes and rode a finisher's race.

G. P. Shaw's One Mile, who was counted on winning the Carter Handicap, after Crossbun and Piltzerold had failed, Luxary furnished the crowning disappointment in the last event.

This daughter of the speedy Luxa led to the front for half a mile and then capitulated without half a struggle when Al Reeves challenged. Buxton carried off the meeting. He rode steamer and Al Reeves to victory.

JACK JOHNSON, WHO RETAINED HEAVYWEIGHT BOXING TITLE, AND THE MAN HE DEFEATED.

FRANK MORAN. JACK JOHNSON.

Story by Rounds of Battle for a Title

Johnson Slower, Critics Declare

Paris, June 27.—Many critics declared after to-day's battle that Jack Johnson is not so good as he was several years ago. Their opinion was that, while he displayed all his old-time science, he is no longer so fast and cannot hit with nearly the same force as he did early in his career.

Round one—Moran boxed for an opening and landed first to the stomach and head. Johnson countered heavily, however, on Moran's jaw, and they then exchanged blows at long range, with the negro having the better of the exchange.

Round two—Moran forced the fighting as the second round opened, but Johnson managed to get some hard uppercuts to Moran's jaw. The latter in return landed hard on Johnson's head. The negro sent a hard right to Moran's cheek, and then followed more boxing at long range. As the round ended, M. Vienne, the chief manager of the fight, announced that the rules are those of the International Boxing Federation, which do not allow holding, and are a slight modification of the Queensberry rules.

Round three—Johnson gave his opponent several terrific uppercuts to the eye as the third round began. Moran responded with several jabs to the negro's stomach. Johnson then landed a hard blow on Moran's eye and followed with several to the body. Johnson, as if looking for a chance to end it all, crowded Moran, who stumbled against the ropes as time was called.

Round four—Johnson drew first blood in this round with a right to Moran's nose. The negro smiled confidently as Moran's attack, and both led at the same time, each landing on the other's head without harm. Johnson drove his right to Moran's face as the round ended, and he easily had the better of the exchanges on points.

Round five—Johnson appeared fres
