FRESH AIR BOYS GOVERN OWN CAMP

"Live Ones" of Gas House District Organize in Self-Rule Test.

COURT ADMINISTRATORS IMPARTIAL JUSTICE

One Lad Sentenced to Peel Potatoes—Apple Connoisseurs Take Their Look Back.

An interesting experiment in combining the Fresh Air and self-government ideas has been carried on at a camp at Flemington, N. J., during the summer.

The possibility of maintaining a permanent settlement of the self-government plan has, of course, long since been demonstrated. It was a question, however, whether it would be possible to gather together a crowd of boys unacquainted with each other and without experience in self-government and have them organize and maintain successfully a temporary camp.

The experiment was an entire success. The trial might be a real test, the events of the trial were reported by the Tribune. The boys were chosen from a neighborhood where the boys are pretty well known for their defiance of the law as personified by the police.

They went into camp on the second of July. On the fourth they held an election and organized the governing body. Under the leadership of the camp administrators, the boys were divided into teams for various sports and games.

At the head of it was the governor. Under him were a judge and commissioners of commissary, tents, boats, games, order, swimming and religious.

It is significant of the spirit of democracy that resulted from the fact that the highest votes were filled by Bill Mahoney and Attilio Araco. The officers elected were, almost without exception, the boys whom the superintendent had judged and sentenced them for two days to have selected to the respective jobs.

The boys did all the work of the camp except the cooking. There was only one case of desertion from an assigned duty during the whole month. In this case a citizen who had been assigned to help dig a drainage ditch thought he would take a stroll to the town and get some news.

After a careful yet speedy consideration of the case, the judge sentenced him to two hours each afternoon for the next three days—a sentence which might indicate that self-government is not a matter of the appetites of the citizenry.

Mornings at the camp were mostly given to play. There were ball games, hikes across country, automobile rides in machines furnished by the people of the nearby towns, swimming, field days and other amusements that suggested themselves to the boys.

One of the hikes, after winding for miles about the country, led two of the hikers into court. Among the laws established in the first days of the month was one against orchard raiding. The two lads planned to beat the law by making a collection of apples and taking them along to the station, thinking they would be able to take them up unobserved while on their way to take the train for home.

But the commissioner of order saw them acting suspiciously and soon had them in court. Meanwhile, some of his assistants had ferreted out the "bunks" and confronted the culprits with their load of apples. The boys were then taken to the station and the apples to the farmers from whose places they had been taken. The sentence was carried out under the eye of Governor Mahoney.

HALSEY LEFT $2,804,820 Banker Heavy Holder of Stocks Now Rated as Worthless.

South Orange, N. J., July 30.—N. Wetmore Halsey, of Montrose av., South Orange, New York banker and philanthropist, who died at New London, Conn., July 1, 1911, left an estate of almost $3,000,000, according to an accounting filed to-day in the office of the County Surrogate. The bulk of his estate consisted of his share in the banking concern of N. W. Halsey & Co., of New York, Chicago and San Francisco, of which he was president. Mrs. Halsey and Harry R. Tobey are named as executors.

The actual value of the estate is placed at $2,804,820.69, exclusive of thousands of shares of various stocks, now rated as almost worthless because of the condition of the stock market, which are 25,000 shares of Tampico Petroleum Co., and 60,000 shares of Nickel-Alloys Co.

Included in the executor's accounting is the accounting to administer part of the estate in California, which is shown as worth $428,357.52. Mr. Halsey's interest in the firm is valued at $1,016,790.70.

His holdings in stocks and bonds amounted to $672,567.31. Included among these were 8,658 shares of Southern Spruce, valued at $388,978.87; 240 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph, $25,130; 100 shares of National City Bank, at $45,500; 150 shares of Guantanamo Sugar Co., worth $15,000, and 6,725 shares of Pacific Gas & Electric Corporation in California, valued at $403,500.

One of the longest meetings ever held by the Board of Estimate was that of yesterday. The board was in session from 10:30 a. m. to 1:20 in the afternoon, when a recess was taken for luncheon, and from 2:40 until almost 7 o'clock in the evening.

There were 260 items on the calendar and the board was anxious to finish up all pending matters, so that its members would not have to be called back from their vacations for the next session. The board adjourned at 7:15 p. m.

Several members of the board are going to take their vacations in August. Controller Prendergast sails for Europe to-morrow, and will change his plans on account of the war scare in Europe.

When Bridge Commissioner Kracker presented a request for an appropriation of $2,024,000 in concrete steel for the purpose of rebuilding the Queensboro Bridge for the dual subway system it was learned that the city officials had finally given up the idea of building another tunnel under the East River at 59th st.

The reconstructed bridge will not carry more than eight-car subway trains, but the decision was reached that the city should not spend the $2,000,000 a year for doing a job which might indicate that self-government is not a matter of the appetites of the citizenry.

The camp was maintained on the grounds of the George Junior Republic of New Jersey. All the necessary food supplies were contributed by the people of the region. In charge were C. Spencer Richardson, assistant director of Junior Republics, and Frank Krieger, secretary of the self-government committee. William H. Brown, founder of the George Junior Republic, spent a week in camp with the boys.

Contributions, preferably by check or money order, should be addressed to the Fresh Air Fund, The Tribune, New York.

RELIGION MAY BAR VOTES OF HEBREWS Jewish New Year and Jersey Primary Law in Conflict—Both Fall on Same Day.

Jewish voters in New Jersey will be disfranchised by religion and debarred from voting at the primaries this fall if they fail to register on the first day. It is customary to wait for primary day to register for the general election and at the same time vote for candidates for nomination, thus avoiding two visits to the polling place.

SHIP CONTRACTS SIGNED Plans for Three War Vessels Ready for Bidders To-morrow.

Washington, July 30.—The contract plans for the new battleships, to be named, respectively, the California, the Mississippi and the Idaho, were signed by Secretary Daniels to-day. The specifications and plans will be ready for bidders on Saturday, and bids will be opened on October 6.

The limit of the cost of the three battleships, which were authorized by Congress on June 30, is $7,400,000, exclusive of armor and armament. They will be the largest vessels in the United States navy and will have a speed of 21 knots.

Following are the dimensions contemplated by the plans: Length over all, 624 feet; length between perpendiculars, 600 feet; extreme breadth, 97 feet 4 1/2 inches; draft, 30 feet; displacement, 32,000 tons. The main battery will consist of twelve 14-inch guns, while the torpedo defence battery will have twenty-two 5-inch rapid fire guns. The vessels will be heavily armored and will be propelled by turbines.

WILSON STATUE IN PIECES Goes to White House Scrap Heap, Headless and Maimed.

Washington, July 30.—A decapitated statue of President Wilson, with a fractured arm, embellishes the White House scrap heap because of the carelessness of a statue agent, according to the story of Peter Pia, who designed and executed the statue, spent weeks, according to his letter, modeling the likeness of the President. He asked that the statue be placed in the White House as one of the permanent ornaments, and no doubt he will be deeply disappointed to learn its fate.

A letter thanking the sculptor for his efforts, however, will be sent to him by President Wilson.

SEEKS PROOF OF CORONERS' GRAFT

Office Investigator Finds Witnesses Reluctant to Testify.

INSURANCE COMPANY WON'T MAKE INQUIRY

Physicians Not Held for Deaths from Criminal Operations, Commissioner Finds.

Leonard Wallstein, Commissioner of Accounts, who is conducting an investigation of the Coroners' office, said yesterday he might have to call on the State Superintendent of Insurance to help him in forcing certain insurance companies to give him information regarding alleged cases of "honest graft."

Wallstein informed that insurance companies or their representatives within the jurisdiction of the Coroners' office would be performed only for a consideration. I have had at least one insurance company addressed with reference to two such cases; in reply to the letter requesting further information the insurance company's examiner wrote:

"Upon careful consideration of the matter involved, we do not deem it advisable to attempt investigation into the cases referred to by you wherein the coroners' office was concerned. We are approached by a coroner in an attempt to sell information."

Information has also come to the Commissioner that the relatives of dead persons have been asked to pay money for services within the regular province of the Coroners' office. In such cases persons concerned are notified and are now beyond the reach of subpoenas.

The investigation has revealed the comparative ease with which physicians who perform criminal operations resulting fatally are able to escape trial. In many cases the coroners never even called a jury, let alone holding the physicians for trial.

Many cases were found to have been closed upon ex parte affidavits taken without having the witnesses subjected to an examination by representatives of the District Attorney's office.

OLD INDIAN SEES WILSON Two Moons, Veteran of Custer Massacre, at White House.

Washington, July 30.—Two Moons, famous Cheyenne warrior and veteran of the Custer massacre, shook hands with President Wilson at the White House to-day, and incidentally met there Brigadier General Hugh Scott, who participated in many campaigns against the Indians in the West, and talked to him of the sign language, once so famous on the frontier.

The Indian informed the President that he came to Washington especially to pay his respects to the White House before returning to his home on the Tongue River Reservation, in Montana, after attending a convention in New Jersey. He was attired in civilian dress, but wore the White House sash, and being a huge man made from eagle feathers, which he wielded vigorously. Although he is seventy-six years old, Two Moons is erect and virile, while his long hair is still raven black.

HONORED SERGEANT QUILTS Police Officer Retired with Splendid Record.

Sergeant Daniel Fogarty, of the East 51st st. police station, was retired yesterday for physical disability, with a record of having received eight medals for bravery in his nineteen years of service. One of his home medals was from the police department of the city of New York, obtained when Theodore Roosevelt was Police Commissioner, for jumping into the Harlem River to save a laborer who had fallen from a bridge.

Sergeant Fogarty was the organizer of the police band, and during his years in charge of the theatre squad the organization was often before the public. His relations with the theatre managers were so cordial that they were always active in police aid affairs when called on.

DOG BITES BOY AT PLAY

Two Men in Court for Not Muzzling Animals.

Vito Ritz, of 5 Linnaeus Place, Flushing, was bitten on the left arm and side by a fox terrier while playing in front of his home yesterday. The dog was treated by an ambulance surgeon from the Flushing Hospital. The dog was captured and is being held by the Board of Health.

A small bulldog, said to be mad, bit other children yesterday morning. The animal has not been captured.

The Flushing police summoned Joseph Wegman, of 21 Main st., and Joseph Deitz, of 62 Main st., Flushing, to the Police Station yesterday because they let their dogs roam the street unmuzzled. They were let off with suspension of license on a promise to obey the law.

Rabies Alarms Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, July 30.—Dr. Letevé, director of the Pasteur Institute here, announced to-day that an epidemic of rabies had been reported in the city and advised precautions to prevent its spread. Eleven persons were bitten by mad dogs yesterday and five were seriously hurt.

WEDDING RING GOES INTO SUFFRAGE FUND CAULDRON

"Symbol of Bondage" in $50,000 Melting Pot—But It Was a Spinster's, Will'd to Her by a Great-Aunt. So Where's the Harm?

Recipe for a suffrage fund: Place in the melting pot one layer of souvenir spoons, sprinkle with wedding rings and add a layer of mixed stickpins and earrings, melt and garnish with a miniature of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw.

It is the simplest form of campaign fund as made from the ingredients on hand yesterday at the headquarters of the National Suffrage Association. For a more elaborate mixture, strategists may add gold necklaces and thimbles to suit the taste.

There was some excitement at headquarters when it was discovered that a wedding ring was among the ingredients of the $50,000 fund which is to be raised by August 15.

The young woman who donated the ring professed intense scorn for the "symbol of bondage"; she exclaimed:

"Dr. Shaw is inclined to refuse to melt up a wedding ring until she discovered that the donor was a spinster. That the ring was a wedding ring and that of old jewelry yielded her by a great-aunt."

"She might feel differently if it was her own ring," Dr. Shaw observed. "However, I do not see harm in melting up the wedding ring of a great-aunt. Into the pot with it!"

The miniature of Dr. Shaw is the most valuable article that has
