PRINZ EITEL'S LIMIT OF TIME TO BE SECRET

U. S. Will Not Divulge When the German Raider Must Sail

CAPTAIN DECLARES HE INTENDS TO GO

Washington Officials Confident Germany Will Make Prompt Amends in Frye Case.

Washington, March 12.—When the Naval Board decides the time within which the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich must complete repairs and leave Newport News or be interned, the question of informing the ship probably will not be settled until the expiration of the time limit, which, it is believed, will be at least three weeks.

When the German gunboat Geier put into Honolulu British and Japanese cruisers kept up a night and day vigil outside the harbor, and Great Britain repeatedly asked the United States government how long a time would be given to the vessel to make repairs.

"I can say positively that the Prinz Eitel Friedrich never will leave this port until the end of the European war," was the declaration made tonight by Captain H. H. Kiehne, master of the American sailing ship William R. Frye, which the German raider destroyed in the South Atlantic Ocean on January 28.

Captain Kiehne had just bade farewell to Commander Thierichsen of the German cruiser. He had paid off his crew and was leaving for Washington to give the details of the ship's destruction directly to heads of the government.

"Why do you make such a positive statement?" the American skipper was asked. "That I will not say," he replied. "But I know she has come here to stay until the war is over."

Notwithstanding this, the commandant of the port reiterated tonight that it was his purpose to leave American waters as soon as possible.

According to reports here tonight, the German officials insist that Germany has the right to demand the return of the American vessel's papers a record that the ship, with its cargo of wheat, was bound for "Queensboro, Falmouth or Plymouth for orders," and that since Plymouth is a fortified port the wheat was contraband.

British Cruiser Sunk by Submarine; 190 Lost

The Bayano, with 216 Men, Torpedoed by Germans Off Scottish Coast on Western Side—Only 26 Known to Have Survived Disaster.

London, March 13.—Great Britain has lost another of her war vessels as a result of Germany's submarine blockade. The auxiliary cruiser Bayano, with a crew said to aggregate about 216 men, has been sunk in or near the North Channel, between Scotland and Ireland, by a hostile torpedo. Only twenty-six men are known to have survived the disaster, and at the British Admiralty it is believed that the others on board the Bayano perished.

In its statement of the disaster the Admiralty says: "On the 11th of March wreckage of the Bayano and bodies were discovered and circumstances point to her having been sunk by an enemy torpedo. Eight officers and eighteen men were rescued, but it is feared that the remainder of the crew were lost."

"The captain of the Belfast steamer Castlereagh reports passing on Thursday morning a quantity of wreckage and dead bodies floating in lifeboats. He attempted to search for possible survivors, but was prevented by the appearance of an enemy submarine, which gave chase for twenty minutes."

The Belfast correspondent of "The Daily Telegraph" says the Bayano was torpedoed on Thursday at 9 a. m. off Corsewall Point, Wigtonshire, Scotland; that nearly 200 lives were lost, and that the cruiser sank almost immediately. The vessel had a crew of about 216 men on board.

Wigtonshire is the southwesternmost county in Scotland. It lies on the North Channel, which leads into the Irish Sea from the Atlantic.

The survivors of the Bayano were rescued by the Belfast steamer Balmerino. They were adrift on a raft. Another steamer picked up one of the Bayano's lifeboats, which was adrift, and also two of her rafts.

The survivors were landed at Ayr. The captain of the Balmerino said in an interview that the collier was on a voyage from Belfast to Tyr when at 8:30 a. m. on Thursday, four miles from Blackhead, he saw a low-lying object in the water. His first impression was that it was a submarine, but he did not alter his course until after a closer inspection, when a cluster of men were observed making signals with garments attached to an air.

"Two of the men," said the captain, "had no other clothing than shirts and caps and were lying on their backs. One had an ugly wound on his head and was covered with blood, while nearly all of them were bruised and bleeding."

MOVEMENT AFOOT TO OUST SWEET FROM LEADERSHIP

Republican Senators Say They Cannot Deal with Speaker of Assembly.

HOSTILITY CAUSES VIRTUAL DEADLOCK

Relations of Legislature with Governor Also Said To Be Unpleasant.

Albany, March 12.—A number of Republican Senators, led by Senator Elton R. Brown, president pro tem. of the Senate, want Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, deposed as leader of the Republican majority of the lower house. Such a movement, legislators say, is without precedent in this state.

The Tribune correspondent was informed that this plan was determined upon at the conference of Republican Senators Thursday afternoon. All the Senators present were sworn to secrecy, but to-day the news of what happened in the conference leaked out and several of those who were present, when asked about the matter, confirmed the story.

Senator Brown, in addressing the Senators, is reported to have said that the Senate could no longer deal with Speaker Sweet, and that the matter ought to be brought to the attention of Governor Whitman and an effort made to induce the Governor to make the Republicans in the Assembly fall in behind some other leader. It is not thought probable that the Governor will interfere.

The ill feeling between the two legislative leaders has existed for some time. It came to a head when John Leo Sullivan, of Chautauque County, blossomed forth as the independent Republican leader of the lower house a little more than a week ago.

Sullivan Carries Majority. At that time Sullivan swung the entire Republican majority away from the programme mapped out by the Speaker. Brown wanted the Assembly to pass the workmen's compensation appropriation bill, with its rider for a direct settlement. Sullivan didn't, and said so in a fiery speech, in which he used strong language in describing the casualty companies, who the working-men charge will be the chief beneficiaries of the Governor's bill.

Not only are the leaders of the two houses at loggerheads, but the two houses are in what is tantamount to a deadlock just now. And not only are the two houses not in harmony, but the relations between the Legislature and the Governor are far from being of the pleasantest. In fact, everything is at sixes and sevens.

The only real constructive measure introduced in the Legislature to date has been the Governor's bill establishing the State Tax Department. This bill the Governor's own has been mutilated in the Senate Committee, of which Senator Johnson is chairman.

Reform Emancipated. One big reform in the bill the quizzing of accountants by the State Tax Department has been emancipated. A joker, which means the saving of taxes on $100,000,000 annually, and a consequent loss to the state, has been put in the bill. The bill itself has slumbered for several weeks in committee. In fact, the talk here is that the bill will never be reported out of committee. One prominent state official here today said:

WIFE WRITES FEARS OF FATE M' MANUS MET

Letter from Mexico Received as Washington Gets News of Slaying.

AMERICAN SHOT WITH U. S. FLAG OVER HIM

With the American flag flying over his house and the seal of the United States representative, the Brazilian Minister, on his door, John B. McManus, one of the most prominent Americans in Mexico City, was shot to death by Zapata soldiers on Thursday while defending his home.

When Zapata evacuated the capital a short time ago McManus, in defending his home from looters, killed two of them. His murder is laid to revenge. Secretary Bryan has demanded reparation from the Convention government.

That John B. McManus and the members of his family expected the fate which overtook him in Mexico City—death at the hands of Zapata bandits—was revealed yesterday by a letter written to her mother in this city by Mrs. McManus. By an odd coincidence this letter, written on February 18, reached The Tribune on the day the news and manner of the murder of McManus were transmitted to the State Department at Washington by the Brazilian Minister in Mexico City.

One paragraph of Mrs. McManus's letter reads: "I would like to make Wilson live in the St. Francis Hotel for a week with these people. I think that his New England soul would love all those officers with their barems—and by the way, some of the women are American prostitutes. Each officer has from one to five women with him, according to his position and propensity for graft. And then the hotel is such a delightful place and in such a nice condition, especially just now, as there is little water. There isn't anything to eat but coffee (without milk), fillette and frijoles. Once in a while they may favor him with a pauvoso (bran bread), but he likes a simple diet. Then we would charge all his money for him into these nice paper bills at the rate of 17 cents on the dollar, and let him go out in search of grape juice."

Expected Husband's Death. The opening paragraph of Mrs. McManus's letter expressed her fear for her husband's safety. "Last night," she wrote, "I became so uneasy as to what might happen to my husband, who remained at our house after we left to look out for it, that I went to see him. You know that not long ago a big crowd of robbers were trying to loot our place, when he shot into them, and is said to have wounded one; so I fear a crowd of desperate peons are down on him, and I live in a nightmare lest some of their accommodating friends will try to stick a knife into him."

"Last night everybody expected the Carranzistas to leave the city again and the Zapatistas to come in. When one crowd is going out and the other coming in there is always the devil to pay, for each steals all they can lay their hands on."

"The conditions in Mexico City are all unbelievable. The Zapatistas are all here today and said:

THAW JURY LOCKED UP FOR NIGHT

Jurors in a Deadlock at 11:22, After Six Hour Debate.

DISAGREEMENT IN CASE PREDICTED

His Mother, Sister and Brother Keep Vigil with Prisoner.

JURY ASKS GUIDANCE

Habeas Corpus Writs Ready in Case of Acquittal to Foll

Harry K. Thaw's latest jury was locked up at 11:22 last night after having failed in six hours, lacking three minutes, to agree whether he was guilty of conspiracy in making his escape from Matteawan August 17, 1913.

Justice Page announced that court was adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning. Thaw, who had spent the evening in Sheriff Griffenhagen's office with his mother, sister, Mrs. George L. Carnegie, and his brother Josiah, went back to the Tombs a trifle depressed at the absence of a verdict. His disappointment was due entirely to the lack of a verdict, for he has insisted all along that no matter what the jury said he would never be returned to Matteawan.

Prosecutor Smiles at Thaw. After the jury had gone out Mr. Cook, the Deputy Attorney General, chatted in a friendly way with Thaw. With a good-natured poke in the ribs, he said with a smile: "If you had pleaded guilty you would not have caused me all this trouble."

"If you had let me alone," returned Thaw, "I would not have caused you any trouble."

As the evening wore on the mysterious underground carried a rumor that the jury was in a hopeless tangle, deadlocked so tightly that nothing but a disagreement could be reported.

At about 9:30 the jury came into court for instructions. The foreman, Frank Bailey, said that a jurymen wanted to know whether the questions asked them by counsel in qualifying them as jurors were to be taken into consideration. The court told them that only the evidence in the case was to be considered by them.

Mr. Bailey then asked him to re-read that portion of the charge in which he said that if they found Thaw acted under an honest misconception of his rights in leaving Matteawan he was entitled to an acquittal. When this was re-read, the court, at the request of Mr. Cook, said this misconception of his rights had a bearing on the question of intent only.

Mayo and Present Wife Wed in Mormon Church

MRS. FLORENCE WEEKS MAYO, NEARLY WIFE OF VIRGINUS J. MAYO, AS SHE APPEARED IN HER GIBBON WHEN SHE MARRIED HIM.

Ceremony Took Place with Rites of Latter Day Saints, Is Story—She Met Radiator Man in Newark—Christian Scientists Repudiate Him.

A Mormon church in Brooklyn was the scene of Virginia Mayo's marriage to her present wife, who is Wilhelmina Meyer, of Newark. This is the latest information concerning the New Haven man, whose life is linked with those of so many women. The New Haven wife, who remains as silent as she does her now celebrated husband, is said to be the niece of the late C. E. Henry Stengel, a wealthy leather manufacturer.

Mayo's religious affiliations have been touched on from time to time in connection with the stories that have been uncovered about him. It was said that he was a Christian Scientist, but the authorities of the Christian Science Church in New Haven denied that he was a member of their church. The idea that he became a Mormon—in religion—has not been advanced until now.

Residents of the old 12th Ward, in Newark, gave out the news yesterday about Mrs. Mayo. She was reared as "Minnie" Meyer, and regarded as a very attractive girl. She was known, it is said, as Mr. Stengel's niece. Stengel, a survivor of the Titanic disaster, has since died. His family, who live at 109 Lincoln Avenue, refused to discuss the subject of Mrs. Mayo yesterday. The only admission came from a young man who said he was Mrs. Stengel's son. He admitted Mrs. Mayo was a relative, but would say nothing else. At the Stengel & Rothschild factory, Ralph Stengel, another son, said: "Go to New Haven for first hand information."

Couple Met in Jail. Those in the neighborhood of the old Meyer home, at Ferry and Magazine Streets, said Minnie Meyer met Mayo in a curious fashion. According to the story, about eleven or twelve years ago she was being courted by one Alfred Peterson, a Dane. About this time she fell heir to $40,000 through her grandfather's death. Peterson, it is said, induced her to lend him $2,000 for a business enterprise.

Later she found not only that Peterson was fooling her about his business proposition, but had a wife and three children in Norway, so she had him arrested on a charge of fraud. In some way, while she was visiting the jail where Peterson was languishing, she met Mayo. Their friendship developed rapidly, and after a little time they were married in a Mormon tabernacle.

M'ADOO STANDS OPERATION WELL

Surgeons Say Condition of Appendicitis Patient Is Entirely Satisfactory.

Washington, March 12.—Secretary McAdoo, who was operated on for appendicitis at Providence Hospital to-day, withstood the ordeal well, and at a late hour tonight is reported by his physicians to be resting quietly. The operation was entirely successful.

The following bulletin was issued tonight at 9 o'clock by Drs. Cary T. Grayson, A. M. Fauntleroy and E. H. H. Old: "Secretary McAdoo rallied from the operation well and to-night is resting quietly. His condition is regarded as entirely satisfactory."

Mrs. McAdoo, daughter of President Wilson, remained at the hospital when the operation was performed, at 10 o'clock this morning, to receive prompt word of the result. Miss Margaret Wilson, her sister; Miss Kones and Francis P. McAdoo, the eldest son of the Secretary, were with her.

View of Mr. McAdoo's usually robust health, it is believed by the physicians who attended him that he will recover from the effects of the operation without mishap. It is expected that he will not be able to return to his desk in the department for a month, although he will probably leave the hospital before that time.

POOR HEALTH MAY OUST T. M. OSBORNE

Following Operation Physicians Tell Him to Quit Sing Sing.

Albany, March 12.—Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing, has been told by physicians that he must relinquish his post if he is to retain his health.

This became known after Mr. Osborne had undergone an operation on his nose. While the operation was successful, Mr. Osborne was in no condition tonight to talk, and Dr. J. Leinwey Dewling, who performed the operation, would not comment on the news.

Mr. Osborne suffered a breakdown last Friday, came to Albany to-day and underwent an operation at the Homoeopathic Hospital for an abscess in the nasal passage this afternoon. He will be confined to the hospital for several days.

Dr. Dowling, of Albany, who performed the operation, announced that it was a complete success.

Mr. Osborne has been working hard at Sing Sing, and contracted a cold two weeks ago. So interested was he in his plans that he neglected the cold and grippe developed, which later affected the nasal passages.

MRS. ROCKEFELLER DIES AT POCANTICO

Passes Away Unexpectedly While Husband and Son Are in Florida.

Mrs. John V. Rockefeller died at 10:20 o'clock yesterday morning. At her bedside when she died, in a room of the Rockefeller house at Pocantico Hills, were her sister, Miss Lucy Spelman, a physician and a few old family servants. Her only son, John D. Rockefeller, jr., and her husband, who were devoted, were thousands of miles away, at Ormonde, Fla.

Although she had been ill for several months and practically an invalid for more than a year, Mrs. Rockefeller's death was unexpected, Thursday night she suffered a relapse, but seemed better early yesterday. Her nurse gave her a glass of milk, which she drank and declared it tasted good. She wiped her lips with a napkin, leaned back against her pillow and became unconscious. She died less than an hour later. Mrs. Rockefeller was in her seventieth year.

Anemia and other disorders resulting from her advanced age were said to have caused the death of the wife of America's wealthiest citizen. More than two years ago she was seriously stricken with pneumonia. She was taken to Hot Springs, Va., where she regained her strength and was able to walk, but never got back her full strength. A year ago she again became ill and never fully recovered.

Her condition, however, was so improved last month that her family was led to believe that she was on the road to complete health. When the time for Mrs. Rockefeller's yearly pilgrimage to Florida approached she urged him to go.

He did not leave the journey South until February 26, but finally left on that date when it seemed certain that his wife was gaining strength every day. John D. Rockefeller, jr., and young Mrs. Rockefeller remained behind at Pocantico Hills, but when physicians made promising predictions, they, too, went to Florida. A message over the long distance telephone caused them to turn hurriedly toward home yesterday morning.

GERMAN SAVANT MAKES ATTACK UPON HARVARD

Professor Edward Meyer Includes Dr. Kuno Francke and President Lowell in Tirade Against America's Neutrality.

London, March 13. Professor Edward Meyer, the well known historian of antiquity, makes an onslaught in the "Vossische Zeitung" on Harvard University, at which he lectured a few years ago as one of the exchange professors. The occasion is rather a curious one.

At present Dr. Kuno Francke is lecturing at Harvard on philology. He is, of course, a German patriot, but, having been invited by Richard Bartholdt, the German-American leader, to a meeting to consider ways and means of forming a "national organization to restore the true neutrality of America," he replied by declining the invitation, on the ground that Germans ought not to form a class party of their own, as that would make them an object of hate throughout the country.

For this he is angrily taken to task by Professor Meyer in an article, in the course of which the writer attacks Harvard University. Professor Meyer says:

"The pretty theory of neutrality which Dr. Francke propounds is obviously not of his own invention, but has been suggested to him by the university at which he teaches, and it is presumable by its president, Professor Lowell.

SUNDAY'S HELL CENSUS

It Includes Noted Personages and the Twentieth Century.

Philadelphia, March 12. "Billy" Sunday took a census of hell in his new sermon, "No Second Chance," at the Tabernacle to-night. It follows: "Pharaoh, Nebuchadnezzar, Jesabel, Nero, Judas, Attila, Louis XIV, Louis XV, Voltaire, Rousseau, Mme. Pompadour, Mme. Montespan, Mme. Maindour, Catherine de Medici, Ivan the Terrible, John Stuart Mill, Huxley, Tyndall, Payne and Ingersoll."

VERMONT TO VOTE ON LIQUOR

Montpelier, Vt., March 12. Governor Gates signed the liquor referendum bill to-day. The voters will decide at the municipal elections in March, 1916, whether to substitute statewide prohibition for local option.
