

WOUNDED TO SHARE IN COMFORT KITS

Articles for Invalids Will Be Included in Firing Line Gifts.

ODOO AID SHIP MAKES NEW START

Comino Headed Toward Belgium Again—New Plans Under Way for Funds.

Changes are to be made in the Lafayette comfort kits, whose utility recently evoked a personal message of thanks from General Joffre.

Richard Harding Davis and Ralph J. Barton, the fund's representative in France, constitute an advisory committee in effecting the changes.

More Aid for Belgium.

The Comino, the hoodoo ship of the set of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, is once more on the high seas with supplies for Belgium.

The short cut across the isthmus was unventured, but once in the Atlantic things began to go wrong.

When the boat had been two weeks a day, the pier on which the cargo was stored succumbed to the waves, and about 1,000 tons of Belgian relief supplies were engulfed.

BIG DAY FOR BOY SCOUTS

Flushing Turns Out to View Junior Soldiers Parade.

Several thousand people viewed the parade of Boy Scouts, headed by Major John Henecker, in Flushing yesterday afternoon.

$100 IN PRIZES

For the Best "Argosy" Messages TO THE PRINCESS

The Belgian Relief Fund will award three prizes to the three boys or girls, not over 16 years of age, who write the best "Argosy" messages to nine-year-old Princess Marie Jose of Belgium.

Belgian Relief Fund

10 Bridge St., New York.

Boys and women and children have all heard of the ship of chance.

AT 39TH ST. AT BOTH RESTAURANTS AT 60TH ST. TO-NIGHT AND EVERY NIGHT THEREAFTER BUSTANOBY "KEEP SMILING"

MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY FINDS U. S. DOOR AJAR

Nathan Cohen, Deported as Insane and Unable to Land at Any Port, Taken to Ellis Island—Will Be Released Monday, Friends Giving Bond.

The sailing gong boomed its warning along the decks of the Lampart & Holt liner Vasari yesterday, and "All ashore that's going ashore" sent the stay-at-homes scurrying down the gangplank.

Aboard the ship was Nathan Cohen, the "man without a country," who has been banished back and forth for more than a year between this port and Rio de Janeiro, refused a landing by the immigration authorities of all countries on the ground that he was insane.

Yesterday he was about to begin the last lap of his fourth round trip. He sat behind the locked doors of the ship's hospital, listlessly watching the preparations for sailing.

He did not see a tug come puffing up alongside the Vasari, nor the men who were casting off the ship's lines pause in their work at an order from Captain Cadogan.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY FINDS U. S. DOOR AJAR

Nathan Cohen, Deported as Insane and Unable to Land at Any Port, Taken to Ellis Island—Will Be Released Monday, Friends Giving Bond.

The sailing gong boomed its warning along the decks of the Lampart & Holt liner Vasari yesterday, and "All ashore that's going ashore" sent the stay-at-homes scurrying down the gangplank.

Aboard the ship was Nathan Cohen, the "man without a country," who has been banished back and forth for more than a year between this port and Rio de Janeiro, refused a landing by the immigration authorities of all countries on the ground that he was insane.

Yesterday he was about to begin the last lap of his fourth round trip. He sat behind the locked doors of the ship's hospital, listlessly watching the preparations for sailing.

He did not see a tug come puffing up alongside the Vasari, nor the men who were casting off the ship's lines pause in their work at an order from Captain Cadogan.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

BERTILLOINED FOR SAFETY

Lecturer Has Plan to Avoid Trouble in Europe.

To forestall possible difficulties in Europe, Albert A. Martine, known on the lecture platform as Charles Maxwell, joined the police gallery yesterday.

He was photographed, fingerprinted and measured according to the Bertillon method. If he gets into trouble on the other side he will refer those whom it may concern to his identification as certified by the Police Department of New York City.

Martine in this country lectures on Europe and when abroad America is his topic. He plans to go into the warring countries, and recent passport frauds inspired him to take unusual precautions against danger.

Deputy Commissioner Gooley thinks his plan capable of development in the passport field.

That began his shuttling back and forth. His reason had become more impaired, and he seemed unable to remember anything about himself, until his last arrival here, when the sea-avelling had apparently improved his health.

Judge Leon Sanders, president of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, talked with him and got this story from him:

"I left Rio de Janeiro and went to Jacksonville, Florida, where I went into business with an uncle. I had several thousand dollars I invested with him, but he swindled me out of it all. I seemed to go crazy—I was sent to a hospital in Baltimore. Then they took me away and put me on the ship and I have been sailing back and forth ever since."

"I was a member of the Davis Lodge, of the Knights of Pythias, in Jacksonville, Florida. Let them know about me—they will help me."

Judge Sanders obtained the cooperation of William Grossman, supreme chancellor commander of the domain of New York of the lodge, and promised to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

INFANT WITNESS AGAINST MAYO

Susie Wahlers's Baby Held Up to Point Resemblance to Radiator Man.

New Haven, March 27.—A pitiful story alleging assault by Virginia Mayo, the radiator manufacturer, was told on the witness stand today by Miss Susie Wahlers, who was employed in his office before the suicide of Lillian Cook led to the discovery of his many love affairs.

She had finished her direct testimony and a rigid cross-examination was about half finished by Mayo's lawyer, Benjamin Slade, when the morning session closed. Just before opening the afternoon session the lawyers retired, the court awaiting their reappearance an hour. On their return they requested continuance for a week, without giving reason for their agreement.

The postponement was granted. Rumors were current that the lawyers are approaching a settlement, not only of the case which began this morning, involving the maintenance of the infant daughter of Miss Wahlers by Mayo, but the support of the mother and the suit brought by her against him, alleging assault and claiming $15,000 damages. The damage suit is scheduled for trial in the Superior Court on April 6.

Neither lawyer affirmed nor denied the report that a settlement of the suits is impending, although Slade said two of his witnesses had failed him today and that he could not have finished the case.

Miss Wahlers and her infant daughter were the only witnesses in the baby was held up by Robert Woodruff, a lawyer, in order that Justice Land might judge whether there was any resemblance between the child and Mayo.

Miss Wahlers's story was that she worked in Mayo's private office and that he attacked her in April, 1912. She told him of her condition six weeks later and he agreed to help her. She showed a letter she said he wrote her after he had been called to Buffalo. It was signed "V. J. M." and advised her to see a Brooklyn doctor.

Mayo, she said, gave her $100 for the trip and she used $14, paying the remainder back to him on her return. She left the factory, she said, in September and her child was born the following January.

On cross-examination she admitted that she had not thought of bringing suit till a newspaper man told her two weeks ago that this was the time to do so and that because of the notoriety which the Lillian Cook case had brought upon Mayo her story would be believed.

That began his shuttling back and forth. His reason had become more impaired, and he seemed unable to remember anything about himself, until his last arrival here, when the sea-avelling had apparently improved his health.

Judge Leon Sanders, president of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, talked with him and got this story from him:

"I left Rio de Janeiro and went to Jacksonville, Florida, where I went into business with an uncle. I had several thousand dollars I invested with him, but he swindled me out of it all. I seemed to go crazy—I was sent to a hospital in Baltimore. Then they took me away and put me on the ship and I have been sailing back and forth ever since."

"I was a member of the Davis Lodge, of the Knights of Pythias, in Jacksonville, Florida. Let them know about me—they will help me."

Judge Sanders obtained the cooperation of William Grossman, supreme chancellor commander of the domain of New York of the lodge, and promised to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

He was allowed to go to Florida to an investigation by immigration officers, and the steamship company was ordered to take him back to Rio de Janeiro, whence he came, on the ground that he was insane.

But Cohen did not understand. He remained listless and unstruck by the words of liberation. The immigration men looked at one another.

"He's just as crazy as when we refused to let him land before—but orders are orders," they agreed. So they lifted him by the arms, and half carried, took him to the side, and off on the tug to Ellis Island, where he was placed in the psychiatric ward pending the completion of legal formalities which will bring his actual release Monday.

This termination of the hopeless voyage of Cohen came as a result of hard work by the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, assisted by influential members of the Knights of Pythias at Washington.

"The Man Without a Country" first came here in 1912 as a steering passenger on the Vasari. He had several thousand dollars and said he was going to Florida to engage in business with a relative.

BONWIT TELLER & CO.

The Specialty Shop of Originations FIFTH AVENUE AT 38TH STREET

HAVE NOW IN COURSE OF PREPARATION AN Important Sale—Women's Coats

In the Season's Fashionable Models & Fabrics TO BE HELD WEDNESDAY, MARCH 31st

Complete details will be published in the Tuesday evening newspapers.

Attention is directed to the Bonwit Teller Fur Storage Vault

An Integral Part of the Building FURS STORED & REMODELED

Upon request we shall issue a call and send for furs. Phone 7300 Murray Hill.

The Pleasant Graces, the Modes and Manners in the dress of a yesteryear bring their softening influences and subtle charms to the dress of today, excepting the note militaire introduced in many of the Suits, Coats, Robes, 'Blouses and Millinery Tailleur.

Women's Tailored Suits

29.50 35.00 39.50

Women's Novelty Suits

49.50 55.00 75.00

Paris Model Suits

125.00

Chapeaux

Women's Blouses

Crepe de Chine "Choker" Blouse

5.50

Frill Crepe de Chine Blouse

5.50

Hand Embr'd Georgette Crepe Blouse

10.00

Georgette Crepe Blouse

13.50

Women's Frocks & Gowns

"Bontell" Footwear

"1830" Corsets & Petticoats

The "1830" Petticoat

The "1830" Corset

Women's Day & Evening Coats

Women's Separate Skirts