Knows Murderer, but Ex-Dictator Endures Blame to Preserve Secret. SAYS HEROIC ACTION WILL BE SHOWN SOON

Lays Mexican Slaughter and Misrule to Dead President—Denies Invaders.

General Huerta gave to the press the only authentic interview since the day of his arrival. He said that he desired to set himself right in the eyes of the United States by telling simply but explicitly his version of the Mexican trouble.

Keeps Madero Death Secret. He termed the truth of the Madero incident "a professional secret," explaining that a soldier has a profession as much as a physician or a lawyer.

As he passed out the typewritten statement he said: "Here is the truth. I never defame myself. I never apologize. I never eulogize myself, and I never repent of anything I have done."

treasury, accumulated in a period of thirty years of peace. The above is a picture of Mr. Madero's administration. But I must say, that during my administration, all the law-abiding citizens of my republic, as well as all the foreigners resident there, until the very last moment of my command, received guarantees, and their homes, their lives and their properties were fully protected.

"It was said that my humble person was a factor in the country. After due meditation, I decided to see if, by my own elimination, I could do some good to my country and fulfill the offer I made my country—bring peace, no matter what cost."

"I never mind. I have hopes. My Mexico is young. My Mexico has plenty of life in it. My country cannot be conquered. We have sixteen millions of men, women and children, and it would need sixteen millions of invaders to conquer it."

"Never mind. Mexico will be saved by a bandit. By a strong Mexican. Not by the man? When will the man appear? I do not know."

"One thing is sure, no one not well stands very little chance of getting near him. He is established in a suite on the fifth floor of the Ansonia Hotel, at Broadway and Seventy-third Street. He is surrounded by trusty retainers, and it was to him who tries to run the blockade."

"The visitor first must send up his card. If the general is willing to receive his caller the office is instructed to issue a pass signed by the clerk on duty. Once on the fifth floor, there is a brass-buttoned flunkey, who examines the card. Then comes Abraham Z. Ratner, who officiates in the capacity of 'friend.' That's what he said he was."

ERNEST HAGSBROM.

MOTHER SEES CAR CRUSH BABY SON

"The Squib," Favorite at Boarding House, Fatally Hurt.

Supper last night at Mrs. Ella Hagsbrom's boarding house, at 68 West Ninety-fifth Street, was eaten in silence. Only a few of the table guests were talking.

Lured by the warm sunshine, Mrs. Hagsbrom took the child to Central Park yesterday afternoon. He laughed at the monkeys, shrieked with delight at the antics of the lambs, and when the lion looked at him and roared, at 5 o'clock the mother led the rosy-cheeked, curly-haired Ernest across the Park toward home.

Emerging from Central Park West, he spotted a Pomeranian dog on the opposite side of the street. The boarders had nicknamed him "The Squib" because he was just like those of the breed.

Patrick McNulty, the motorman, brought his car to a sudden stop, but his efforts were unavailing. The child had reached the rails before the car, and a few seconds later he lay beneath a wheel.

The shrieks of Mrs. Hagsbrom brought people running from all directions. A dozen willing hands sought to disengage the mangled limbs of the boy, but they failed.

Although replies to inquiries on the subject of Sunday's visit have not been received from lead members of the city, it is obvious that temperance leaders do not regard the project with any favor.

London, April 15.—Great satisfaction was expressed at the offices of the organizers of the prohibition movement to-day when informed by the New York Tribune that Billy Sunday is considering their offer to lead the temperance crusade here.

The Rev. Frederick R. Meyer, head of the National Prohibition Party, was equally delighted. "It would be hailed as a temperance offensive movement, and there would immediately be a reaction on the part of those who were up in arms immediately, while public opinion, which is now with us and quietly shaping itself toward our end, would undoubtedly become hostile."

Alexander Thomson, secretary of the United Kingdom Alliance, which is the central organization of the temperance societies, said: "We do not regard this as a suitable moment for any general temperance campaign. Base it on business grounds."

Paterson, N. J., April 15.—Sunday continues his spring drive against sin. To-night men and women streamed up the glory path to shake his hand and to declare themselves almost one hundred more than last night, when he sounded his first trumpet call.

It needed no pleading, it took no possession. The men and women crowded back on each other's heels to shake his hand. He stood for a few minutes in the street, waving down his hand to them.

Quite regardless of their ability to pay any price for shoes, thousands of New York men prefer Cammeyer shoes because they are unequalled for style, wear and comfort.
