Setback Enlivens a Dull Day at Aqueduct

Judges Eject Valentine from Money Because of Her Rough Finish.

BAYBERRY CANDLE TAKES THE STAKE

Chilian Boy in Dune Site After Selling Race Victory and Will Ship Her to Santiago.

There was a disqualification at Aqueduct yesterday afternoon. It came as a break to some rather dull racing, in which the best of the favorites, Bayberry Candle, was the only one to finish like a trained geese.

J. E. Widener's Valentine, which made the place in the fifth race, was the offender. The officials in the judges' stand called with neatness and dispatch. Valentine went to the post a hot favorite in the mile affair for platers of the three-year-old and upward class. At the rise of the barrier the daughter of Maria Santa-L'Orient went out in front and stayed there till half a furlong from home, when Sam Slick, from the Cleveland Stable, came from behind with a rush and won, with two lengths to spare.

In the last furlong the faltering Valentine swerved out and bumped and otherwise interfered with Sandow and Raula, which were making their bid about that time. Menlo Park suffered a little, too, but finished third. It is doubtful if the bumping spoiled Raula's chances, as she did not figure prominently in the running. None of the riders went into the stand, but the judges ordered Valentine's number down and moved Menlo Park into the place and put Sandow third.

Sam Slick won his brackets handsily. The royally bred chestnut son of Rock Tree and the dam of the champion, was the only one to come back to the race track and was away handsily. Sam was purchased from L. S. Thompson during the Belmont Park meeting in June.

The Valhalla Handicap, the only stake on the card, was more or less a gallop for J. G. Green's Bayberry Candle. The daughter of Concord Tower and Candice seemed to like the pace and made a very good start. Her company, Transit, whose claim to fame hereabouts is a victory over Rock View, which, by the way, is not said to be a brag about, made the place, and Larc, that temperamental not to say sulky-son of Belth, was a poor third. Hanovia and Polly H., the other starters, trailed along in the duck.

R. F. Carman lost Dune Site, his clever Singleton-Sand Dune filly, after she had won the selling race for two-year-olds, at five furlongs, from Larc by a head. J. M. Carajana, of the Belmont Park, ran her up to $1,800 and led her away.

The senior stud after the purchase that was about the only way he could get good horses hereabouts, for as soon as he talked terms to an owner the price would soar. He is a big breeder and owner in his own country, being a string of racers on the South American tracks and a stud of forty mares and one English stallion, Sir Bala.

Carajana purchased Burgomaster from H. P. Whitney at a private sale a day or two ago, he said, and will add to his stud. Dune Site will not be sent under colors here again, for her owner is planning to ship her to Santiago next week.

John Sanford declared to win with St. Isidore in the last race of the day, a five-furlong race for two-year-olds. The real fight was for the place, between Buckshot and Whimsy, and the former got home by a head. At that, Whimsy stood a long drive gamely.

"That's the way I like to see a horse win," said one of the supporters of Captain C. K. Rockwell's Stonehorse, who he sent of Hastings-Linda Stone, who broke his field and romped away with open daylight between him and the other right down to the winning post. Dartworth, the favorite, was a big disappointment.

It will be get away day today. The Mount Vernon Handicap is the outstanding feature on the card, and in which the Finn, Iron Duke, Hoze, Sam Jackson, High Noon and some other good ones are entered.

J. R. Marquette is busy persuading breeders to ship their strings to the city race meeting that will be conducted at the San Francisco Panama Pacific Exposition next month. The meeting will be conducted by the Golden Gate Breeders' Association, of which Marquette is the Eastern representative.

New Pacing Record Made Under Saddle

Savage, Minn., July 30.—George Gano, a horse owned by M. W. Savage, paced a mile under saddle here to-day in 1:17 1/2, beating the previous world's record of 1:18 1/2, made by Kruger at Lexington, Ky., on October 16, 1907. George Gano was ridden by Murray Anderson and carried 145 pounds.

POLO GAMES LURE FOR SOCIETY FOLK

Big Gallery Sees Aiken Tigers and Philadelphia Four Carry Off Laurels.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Narragansett Pier, July 30.—Club-house and lawns were filled with on-lookers, among whom visitors from Newport were prominent, at the resumption of the Polo Association tournament this afternoon at the Point Judith Polo Club. Two games were played in the series for the Rathbone memorial cups, the Aiken Tigers beating the Meadow Brook Freebooters by a score of 10's to 6 and the Philadelphia Country Club winning from Coopersdown by a score of 10's to 2-4.

The Aiken Tigers received one goal by handicap, but at no time were in need of the concession, while the second game was an even terms, as the handicaps were balanced at an even dozen.

The heat was oppressive, but the dry L. F. made the pace hot and gave an unusual length to the hits, counting on that were severe on the mounts, as there were few let-ups in the galloping. The scoring honors were taken by Hopping and Strawbridge, sr.

The Sportlight by Grantland Rice

A large bale of money very often depends upon a minor incident. It may depend upon one's ability to draw a jack in place of a queen or a ten spot. Or a heart in place of a spade. The other day a rumor invaded Wall Street that a German submarine had sunk an American boat, and the market promptly caved in some 25,000,000 dollars.

So in this present National League race the physical condition of three ball players meant at least $250,000 to the owners of flag contending clubs.

The League's Luck. If Johnny Evers hadn't cracked his ankle late in April; if Dick Rudolph and Bill James had opened the season as well conditioned for work as they were at the finish last year, the flag race in the N. L. would have been over by the middle of June. By that date the Braves would have been eight or ten games to the good, with subsequent interest about as bulky as the eye-ball of a goat.

The spirited scramble of seven clubs through June and July would have been wiped off the boards and the Big Yawn would have set in long since.

These accidents were legitimate parts of the industry. Even the game's most violent critic could never charge a frame-up with Evers carrying a broken ankle raging on the bench to get back in. Evers, not the ankle.

Another Turn. This lucky turn for the N. L. recalls another financial spasm of good fortune which developed in 1912, when Giants and Red Sox were battling for the world series.

In the third game, at Boston, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Giants in the ninth inning, the Red Sox had two men on, with two out, when a Red Sox slugger lashed a long drive to deep left field. Nineteen times out of twenty that blow would have gone for three bases, driving in two runs for a Boston victory.

But by one of those miracle catches Josh Devore, moving at top speed, snatched the ball over his shoulder while out of position for the catch and saved the game. If Devore had missed that superhuman stab the Red Sox would have landed the series inside the first five games, as they promptly won the next two, and over $150,000 in gate receipts would have been lost.

Yet no one could possibly charge any frame-up on the play, for the Boston batsman did his part by smashing one on a line into apparently safe territory, where only a miracle catch saved the day. And frame-ups are not extended to the borderland of miracles.

Now Hole the Long Ones. Sir: What system does Jerry Travers use in his putting? I believe a brief description would be of interest to a good many thousand golfers.

Fairly upright stance; putter held near the top of the grip; heels only a few inches apart, and club head brought straight back from the ball.

World's Great Ball Club. NO. 6—SHORTSTOP. WALTER MARANVILLE—Boston Nationals.

Of all positions upon any mythical club the assignment at short carries a greater shift of opinion.

Among the fine shortstops of the game might be listed Donnie Bush, Walter Maranville, Buck Herzog, Buck Weaver, Bancroft, O'Mara and one or two more.

For a good part of the year Herzog was travelling at a wonderful clip. The Red leader is still starring. But after an early season slump Walter Maranville has come back into his own, and according to his mates and oppos.

Art Fletcher is another star who must be mentioned, as he is a badly underrated athlete. Fletcher is a star—a good, timely hitter and a fine ground coverer. But he lacks the consistent brilliancy of Maranville when the latter is at his best—as he has been since he settled down to work and discovered that past achievement gets one very little after the record is in.

The Lightweight Situation. Over a year has passed since Freddie Welsh obtained the lightweight crown by a twenty-round decision against Willie Ritchie.

Yet with thirteen months behind him Welsh has made no effort to show that he is worthy of the crest that he has reached.

It may be that he could easily defend his title against Ritchie or White over the twenty-round span, but the day of picking the soft ones or the short distance should be closed out.

Not that we are worked up into any frenzy over the ownership of the lightweight championship. But we like to see a bloke display some willingness to defend what he has won, after taking proper rest and absorbing his share of the easy kale.

Willard's Case. Willard's case is different. The big Kansan arrived at the top only four months ago. And even if he is due to fight as some early date there is no one quite ready yet to give him promise of an even fight. Coffey has been coming along and, with proper gear, may finally pull up on even terms. But he isn't ready yet to make Willard rise up on his hind legs and give vent to the battle of his life.

Jim Corbett says Tom Cowper will be there or thereabouts very shortly. And there were a number of folks who predicted that the war would be over by last April. According to Russia, there is still some desultory fighting here and there.

Detroit's chance of winning an American League flag rests with her ability to throttle Boston. Falling in this attempt, the pennant campaign might as well be closed out now.

Williams and Washburn to Battle for a Title

Meet Wright and Johnson To-day in Doubles Match on Courts of the Longwood Cricket Club.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Boston, July 30.—Richard Norris Williams, 23, national champion, and Watson M. Washburn, metropolitan title holder, will meet Irving C. Wright and Wallace F. Johnson to-morrow afternoon on the turf courts of the Longwood Cricket Club for the Eastern doubles championship.

Williams, showing vastly improved form as a singles player, carried Washburn along with him to victory in the semi-final round against Harold H. Hackett and Theodore Roosevelt Pell, of New York. The latter pair had taken the first two sets from Williams and Washburn and seemed to have the match won, when the national champion started a session of remarkable driving to deep court that turned the tide of battle in his favor.

Straight to the lines Williams played his shots, with a world of speed and accuracy, returning out so far that the nervous ones in the gallery became worried. Tallant came back eventually and said the tournament was a decided success.

DIONNE WINS IN LONG DRAWN OUT MATCH ON COURTS

Beats Chalmers After Three Sets Replete with Slashing Rallies.

FIELD REACHES ROUND BEFORE SEMI-FINALS

Hall Twice Victor in Straight Sets at Edgemere Club's Lawn Tennis Tourney.

By FRED HAWTHORNE. Taking up our continued story of Thursday, the match between G. A. L. Dionne and Charles C. Chambers was completed yesterday evening shortly after 7 o'clock in the annual invitation lawn tennis tournament of the Edgemere Club of Long Island, and Dionne won by a score of 1-6, 6-3, 7-5.

The men began yesterday where they left off on Thursday, when each had won a set, after several hours of struggling. It was just getting dark when Dionne took the final set at 7-5. The rallies from back court were just as stubbornly contested yesterday as on the opening day, but Dionne was a little more persistent this time in returning the ball.

At the conclusion of the match everybody present agreed that the laws of Euclid would have to be revised, and that instead of a straight line indefinitely continued being the longest thing in the world a longer tennis match between Dionne and Chambers fits the definition.

Mr. Grayhurst, chairman of the tournament committee, pushed the players hard yesterday, with the result that Frank H. Man, jr., who won the tournament last year; W. Merrill Hall, Hugh Tallant, Dr. William Rosenbaum and Vanderbilt B. Ward advanced to the round before the semi-finals, and only eleven men survived when a halt was called.

The doubles will get a start to-day, and it is hoped to finish them to-morrow afternoon, with the final singles match probably going over until Monday.

The warmth that was felt so keenly in the city yesterday was tempered at Edgemere by a whipping-breeze from the ocean, and the galleries were surprised by the fact that the galleries, with tarasols being in the majority. Mrs. Rawson L. Wood, a former metropolitan champion in mixed doubles, and Mrs. Spencer Fullerton Weaver, former tennis champion in women's doubles, were among the spectators.

W. Merrill Hall, former Middle States champion, was moving very fast yesterday, and he was very successful in the singles scores. First, he put out R. H. Boggs at 6-3, 6-0, and then tackled Frank C. Strobel, the club champion, and defeated him at 6-0, 3-1.

Hall's tennis forehand drives, his clean-cut volleying across the court and his smashes from deep court overwhelmed both his opponents. Hall is in the upper half of the draw and many expect him to go through to the final round, with Ward as his opponent for the chief cup. There are several men in the tournament, however, who are liable to upset the favorites.

Arthur Lovdon, who has well earned victory over C. Major in the first round by a score of 6-2, 1-6, 6-3. He was exceedingly accurate with his ground strokes, and while not severe overhead generally placed the ball in a most surprising manner, but got his racket to it. The latter made the mistake of staying in back court, and with the exception of the second set, when he volleyed prettily, was completely out of the match.

Charles L. Johnston, former New England intercollegiate champion, took the measure of Arthur S. Crain at 6-1, 6-3. Johnston, with his tremendous reach, was very fast in getting to the net yesterday, and when there he smashed with a severity that earned him many placement aces. Crain was utterly unable to control his speedy drives, the ball landing wide of the court most of the time.

Edmund J. Fixman, New York University captain, carried Man along at full speed in the second round, and was only defeated in the final round, 7-5, 7-6, 7-5. On ground strokes Fixman more than held his own, his drives being well placed in deep court. Man's ability to cut off many of these shots at the net, however, won the match for him.

Ward was opposed by R. Clifford Black, of Pelham, and won at 6-2, 6-3. Black weighs at least twice as much as Ward, and can get around him in a most surprising manner, but Ward's wicked left-handed drives and his hard volleying carried the day without much trouble.

Wylie Grant, former national indoor champion, made his first appearance in a tournament in several weeks yesterday and defeated Witherbee Black at 7-5, 6-0. There are few players on the courts to-day more deadly than Grant, and when he has control, and although wild in the first set he came to life in the second and literally bombarded his opponent into submission without the loss of a game.

Edmund J. Fixman, old Harvard star, did not get a chance to play yesterday owing to a default from J. S. O'Neale, who he hotfooted it down to the beach, where he tried his forehead drives on the billows, swimming out so far that the nervous ones in the gallery became worried. Tallant came back eventually and said the tournament was a decided success.

The summaries follow: Men's Singles (right-handed)—Wylie C. Grant, 7-5, 6-0, defeated Arthur S. Crain, 6-1, 6-3. Arthur Lovdon, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3, defeated C. Major, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3. W. Captures Cup for Best Gig Horse at the Long Branch Show.

Herzog Cuts Team to Bone

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Cincinnati, July 30.—George Stallings won a pennant last year with three pitchers, and Charlie Herzog is confident that he can retain last place with only one more mound man. Benton and King Lear have been suspended by the manager of the Reds on account of wildness, and this leaves the team with only Schneider, Dale, Toney and a reserve named Mackery.

As the Reds have a lot of double headers in front of them the faithful four will probably find it a strenuous summer. Schneider has already pitched two games in an afternoon, and the others may be called upon to do double duty at any time.

That an oldtime high stepper champion may "come back" was demonstrated at the Monmouth County Horse Show Association's grand exhibit at Long Branch yesterday when Edward B. McLean's Nala won the $500 cup for the best gig horse. It was the spectacular incident of the afternoon, for while only two were in the ring, the other being William Wagner's black hackney Woodland's Countess, Nala's fame in the horse
