Fifty Players Battle On the Casino Courts

All Favorites, Save Dawson, Come Through in Opening Clashes.

ROWLAND EVANS SPRINGS SURPRISE

Griffin Defeats Mahan, but Only After Stubborn Struggle of Five Sets.

By FRED HATHORNE.

Newport, Aug. 16.—The first annual lawn tennis tournament on the turf courts of the Newport Casino began this morning with an even grid of players entered from all over the country in the draw.

California was represented by Maurice E. McLoughlin, rated at the greatest player in the world; William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, challengers for the national title in doubles, and Ward Dawson, champion of Southern California.

Dawson bows to Evans.

Richard Norris Williams, 2d, the national champion, and the strongest representative of the East, defeated Frank M. Worcester, former Yale star, in straight sets at 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

Griffin defeated Mahan, but only after a stubborn struggle of five sets.

McLoughlin, rated at the greatest player in the world, was defeated by Evans.

McLoughlin, Dawson and Griffin were playing on adjoining courts at the same time and frequently took advantage of delay in their own matches to watch each other at work.

McLoughlin had no trouble in taking the measure of Roche and by the manner in which he romped about the court, varying his forehand drives with tremendous "Comet" smashes, he appeared to have fully recovered from the effects of the heat in his recent match with Karl Behr.

MISS DETROIT SKIMS HOME IN CLOUD OF SPRAY

Speed Star from Michigan Clinches Hold on the Gold Cup.

BABY SPEED DEMON'S MOTOR BREAKS DOWN

Tech, Jr., Fails to Hold Victor and Is Beaten by Wide Margin.

A new high speed star has arisen on the motor boat horizon—a star of the feminine gender; her name is Miss Detroit.

With 14 points to her credit, the Miss Detroit has a pretty firm grip on the cup.

There was a report at the end of yesterday's race that Jack Millot, the capable young pilot of the winning boat, had sent her inside one of the course buoys off Plum Point.

From a racing point of view there were only two boats in yesterday's contest—the Miss Detroit, owned by A. D. Norton, and the Tech, Jr., owned by T. Coleman du Pont.

Interest in polo divided this week. Schedule clash brings on Westchester and Alexandria Bay matches.

Interest in tournament polo this week centres in the games at the oldest and youngest clubs in the Polo Association—the Westchester, of New York, and the Thousand Islands, of Alexandria Bay.

Newport's events did not fill satisfactorily, and post entry conditions were substituted, so that, except that at Alexandria Bay to-morrow, to open the Polo Association's Mid-Western circuit title tournament, the Westchester, of Philadelphia, will oppose the Thousand Islands, of Alexandria Bay, to-morrow.

The schedule for the St. Lawrence River Cup is: Saturday, August 28, Thousand Islands vs. Pel Elms; Tuesday, August 31, Thousand Islands vs. Westmoreland; Thursday, September 2, final between the winners.

Entries will close this week for the next tournament of metropolitan interest to be held at the Deal Polo Club grounds, at Oceanport, N. J., beginning on Monday, August 23.

The Sportlight by Grantland Rice

The pennant aspects of the present National League race have befooled even the dope of the umpires. We were taking over a few details of this famous flag hurly-burly with one of the leading arbitrators of the game, who has operated among the zig-zag fortunes of the different clubs and has had unusual opportunity to make observations. His comment outlined the situation thoroughly.

"I have seen a number of pennant races in my day," said this arbitrator, "but nothing like the present one. I change my mind as to the October winner about four times a week. In one series I will be certain that Pittsburgh will land the prize. They will furnish every mark of champions. In the next series against a weaker club the Pirates will look like tail ends. The same dope is true of all the others. The Braves, Phillies and Dodgers will look almost unbeatable for three or four games, and then will cut in with a series of Class X baseball. In one series one of these contenders will look strong in the box, at bat and in the field. In the next the pitching will be bad, the batting weak and the fielding ragged. I've never seen anything even approaching these sudden shifts from good to bad form—and back again."

"The lack of consistency this season," he continued, "has been beyond any past turn of the game. Only four clubs have shown any consistent striking strength—and these four for only short distances. The Phillies played grand baseball for the first three weeks of the race. They have barely broken even since. The Cubs have one drive for three weeks that made them look formidable. They have never been anywhere since. The Dodgers had the longest stretch of all when they won twenty-one out of twenty-six games—playing pennant baseball for a full month before they slipped. And the Braves had their turn in July, when at one stage they won something like fourteen out of sixteen games. But outside of these few instances no club has been able to hit off any consistent pace and hold it."

When we put up the proposition of attempting to pick the winner the umpire balked.

"There are too many 'ifs' in the way," he said. "In spite of Pittsburgh's bad showing against the Reds, if she can put away a fair record on this Eastern trip I believe she has a fine chance with those twenty-three home games through September; for with Mammux, Harmon, Adams and McQuillen Clarke has a fine pitching staff, and he also has the fastest club in the circuit. In order to crowd Pittsburgh out Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston must hit a fast clip at home between now and September. The club that doesn't is out of it. There isn't enough room now for any club to have a home slump and make up the gap later on. Of the three it wouldn't surprise me in the slightest to see the race come down to a final clash between Brooklyn and Philadelphia, with Pittsburgh close behind. Boston doesn't look anywhere near as good as she did back in July."

The main tip-off as to form, dope and the twist thereof in the National League is shown by the records.

The two clubs that lead the batting are St. Louis and Cincinnati, the only tail-end contenders.

The best fielding club, by the records, is Cincinnati. Here we have the Reds second in batting, first in fielding—and last in the race. Yet batting and fielding are supposed to be two fairly important points of baseball as the game is played.

No One-Man Reign.

There is no one-man reign now in either golf or tennis in this country. Last summer McLoughlin beat Brooks and Wilding, but Williams beat McLoughlin and Church beat Williams.

So far this season Clarence Griffin has beaten Williams; McLoughlin has beaten Williams; Behr has beaten McLoughlin and Williams has beaten Behr.

The leaders have all been beaten—both last season and this. McLoughlin, rated as the greatest of all living tennis players, has been dropped by two of his countrymen in two important matches—and those who beat him have fallen before the charge of others.

The same holds for golf. Ouimet beat Travers at Ekwanok last fall, but Travers countered by beating Ouimet at medal play in the recent Open, where the Massachusetts star was supposed to have the winning edge. Travis beat Travers at Apawamis in June.

What will happen at Forest Hills in lawn tennis and at Detroit in golf within the next fortnight should add many interesting pages to the history of American sport. For in neither sport is there any one entry whose prowess is all prevalent.

This country, and other sections of the universe, spent five years finding a man to beat Jack Johnson.

His Name is Willard.

Now the big hunt is on to find a man who can beat Willard. For once a champion is installed, the next process is to drop him from the heights.

The best start now at hand for discovering the master of Willard would be to match Frank Moran and Jim Coffey. The winner couldn't probably win from Willard. But the process would be fairly interesting and at the finish would give a better idea as to how good Jess of Kansas really is.

expected that the Ankle Deep Too will start in that race.

Jack Millot, better known among his comrades as "Johnny," is said to be an absolute novice at driving a high speed motor boat. The man who was to drive the Miss Detroit on Saturday was missing when the time came to start the boat. Somebody said "What's the matter with Johnny? He can drive her." And drive her he did, bringing her home an easy winner. Commodore Schantz, of the Detroit Motor Boat Association, says it was the first time Johnny ever drove any motor boat in a race, but he took the turns like an old-timer at the game. He did not know when the race was finished, however, for he drove her ten miles more for good measure before she was stopped.

COAST STARS MATCHED WITH EASTERN TEAM

Intersectional Tourney To Be Held in September.

J. C. Rohlf, of San Francisco, the secretary of the Pacific Coast Lawn Tennis Association, arranged yesterday with Julian S. Myrick, president of the West Side Tennis Club, for the holding of the Pacific Coast Eastern team matches as a return series to the competitions held last month in California.

The details of arranging the grounds and the clubhouse at Forest Hills will be perfected this week. About 300 members have signed their willingness to permit the use of their courts for the tourney, and the grounds will be turned over to R. D. Wrenn, as referee, and the national association next week.

PURCELL MEETS MATCH Falls Before Lang in Van Cortlandt Title Play.

Walter F. Purcell, title holder of the title, was beaten in the first match round for the Van Cortlandt Park championship over the week end by John Lang, a clubmate. The margin was 4 and 2.

So close was the competition in other matches that three pairs found it necessary to go to the home green. In one of these, Paul Haier, of the Scottish-American Golf Club, found his work cut out for him to dispose of M. D. Clifford.

The summary follows: VAN CORTLANDT PARK CHAMPIONSHIP (first round)—J. D. Albert beat Edward Bell, 2 up and 1 to play; Walter F. Purcell, 4 up and 2 to play; John Lang beat Walter F. Purcell, 4 up and 2 to play; Paul Haier beat M. D. Clifford, 2 up and 1 to play; Fred C. Mack beat E. H. Brown, 4 up and 2 to play; Ernest McMillan beat W. S. Chapman, 3 up and 1 to play.
