British Failure Exaggerated, Asserts M.P.

Sir George Reid Flays Tribune Editorial and Defends Conduct of War—Lord Milner Admits Truth of Criticism.

SIR GEORGE REID.

London, May 7.—Though only brief extracts from The Tribune's editorial entitled "British Failure" had appeared in the London papers, it has already created unusual excitement, especially among persons permitted to see the German wireless version. I have heard the comment of a number of statesmen of different political faiths. Officially the government ignores the attack, but it can be stated that they are quite aware of it.

"I would like to reply to The Tribune's editorial. I have spent most of my active life in Australia, where I was Premier of New South Wales and also of Australia. For the last six years I have been Australia's First High Commissioner and am now in the House of Commons. I belong to none of the English political parties, having been returned as an independent imperialist, and I feel able, therefore, to reply to the indictment without any sort of predilection.

"I do not use the familiar epithet 'lies' in connection with many editors' statements, but I must say this one is full of furious exaggeration and as far from the truth as a really intelligent patriot could be. One of the things which has returned me as an independent imperialist, and I feel able, therefore, to reply to the indictment without any sort of predilection.
