

The Conning Tower

IF THE ADVERTISING MAN HAD BEEN PRAED, OR LOCKER. "C'est Distingue" says Madame La Mode. "Tis a fabric of subtle distinction. For street wear—it is superb. The chic of the Rue de la Paix—The style of Fifth Avenue—The character of Regent Street—All are expressed in this new fabric creation. Leather-like but feather-light—It drapes and folds and distends to perfection. And it may be had in dull or glazed, Plain or grained, basket weave or moired surfaces!—Advertisement of "Pontine," in Vanity Fair.

"C'est Distingue," so says Madame La Mode. Subtly distinctive as a fabric fair; Nor Keats nor Shelley in his loftiest ode Could thrum the line to tell how it will wear. The flair, the chic that is Rue de la Paix, The style that is Fifth Avenue, New York. The character of Regent Street in May—As leather strong, yet light as any cork. All these for her in this fair fabric clad. (Light of my life, O thou my Genevieve!) In surface dull or glazed it may be had—In plain or grained, moired or basket weave.

Old Doc Merz, or "Charley," as his slangy intimates call him, managing-edited Harper's Weekly during its last ten months. Then, during May and until Hughes was nominated, he worked for the so-called Progressive party. "I wish," said Mr. Merz, offering a Tower reporter a fine domestic cigarette, as he left for his home in Sandusky last night, "I wish, for the sake of humanity, that somebody would give me a job as press-agent or manager for the European war. It'd probably stop in a month."

"THE QUESTION OF OUR SPEECH" Sir: Since you have opened the discussion of dialect, will someone please explain why no realist has ever put mispronunciations and errors of grammar into the mouths of any but the uneducated and the provincial? In no work of fiction that I can recall do the upper class people—your own kind, as the Reo advertiser would say—use anything but flawless English (or the author's idea of it, which is sometimes different). Yet last evening, in a group of half a dozen people of alleged culture and so-called refinement—shall I say your own kind again?—I collected the following within a few minutes: "Perculator," "different than," "non-combatant," "carbohydrate," "diction" (intended to mean "enunciation"), and "invited you and I."

Where, I ask, is the realist ruthless enough to make his people talk as people do talk, regardless of class? HUMORESQUE. The so-called cultivated characters in the fiction of Rupert Hughes, George Ade, Arnold Bennett, H. G. Wells and a few other writers employ frequently the kind of talk so-called cultivated people use actually. But, as Humoresque points out, it is rare. There is a lot of Jane Austen conversation to make up for.

Oh, yes. And William De Morgan. All his characters talk like off-the-stage folks.

"WHOM ARE YOU?" SAID CYRIL. [From the Buffalo Enquirer.] Events, however, brought about the nomination of Mr. Hughes whom the German propaganda declares was its candidate for the nomination and for whose election it . . .

[From the New York Times.] At the office of David A. Spellissey of 257 Broadway, whom has been understood to be in touch with the disaffected Irish, it was said that Mr. Spellissey be . . .

"Diplomacy, hell!" says a character supposed to impersonate T. R. in the Winter Garden show. "Invade first, and apologize afterwards." And the audience, composed largely of those who are anti-Germans and who think the neutrality of Belgium was violated, applauds loudly.

TO EDNA SPENCE, DR. AND MOTION PICTURE ACTRESS. Funny, lady, is it not? Though I am no movie fan (I think films are mainly rot), There are times I go to scan Mary Pickford and the rest Of the feature-film crew. YET it has to be confessed Never once have I seen you. And you daily read the Tower For your after-breakfast laugh. And (you told me) you devour Each and every paragraph. Matters not how dull the Boss, You have never missed a line. YET you never came across Any little squib of mine.

I have held you by the hand, But not watched you on the screen. You insist my lines are grand, But you do so, "sight unseen." Quite a situation, this! Yet I'll bet you eight to three Here's a poem you won't miss. Here are verses you will see!

Lady, I have done my part: Here and now, in public view You are witness to my art— May I say the same of you? Wherefore, motion picture lass, After you have read this lay, You might slip this hard a pass* So that he could watch you play.

MORRIE. *For two, preferably. There is the snobbish advertisement, and then there is this, of George Ade's, which is utterly different: "She was the style of Lady who can be seen anywhere west of Pittsburgh, sitting in the back seat of a Ford."

How Every Woman Reads By Ignatz I SEE BY THE PAPERS THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS BEEN OUT WALKING WITH KING AGAG. IT'S SIMPLY WONDERFUL HOW THAT MAN WHO'S BEEN WITH ROOSEVELT AND THE COMMON PEOPLE JUST ADORE HIM TOO. I DO HOPE THE MEXICANS WON'T SINK ANY MORE SHIPS WITH AMERICANS ON BOARD. WOULDN'T IT BE A CALAMITY IF WE BECAME EMBROILED IN THIS AWFUL WAR AFTER ALL. SECRETARY OF WAR BRYAN CERTAINLY TOOK THE BULL WELL IN HAND DURING THESE CRITICAL TIMES. I HOPE THEY RENOMINATE HIM.

As we understand war, which is pretty well, it seems always to be entered into by nations who have no desire to bring on this conflict. Speaking of being called to the colors— Here's the Yellow Streak and the White Feather. F. P. A.

GREENBAUM TO HEAR MAYOR

Justice Named to Sit in Complaint Against Priests. Mayor Mitchell's charges against the Catholic priests who figured in the Charities investigation and their counter charges against the Mayor will be heard by Supreme Court Justice Samuel Greenbaum in a John Doe investigation, beginning soon after July 4. Justice Greenbaum was designated yesterday by Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke, of the Appellate Division.

The offer to preside made by Judge T. C. C. Crain, of General Sessions, District Attorney Swann, who requested Justice Clarke designate a justice, declared that Justice Crain was perfectly satisfactory to him. "Assignment of a man by the presiding justice, obligates the necessity for getting a man of the company's franchise, as demanded by the city," said Mr. Swann.

CITY AND DEFENDANTS DIVIDE 13-YEAR SUIT

Action Against Consolidated Co. Decided by Referees. Decision upon a suit begun thirteen years ago by the city against the Consolidated Telegraph and Electrical Subway Company has been given partly in favor of the city and partly in favor of the defendants by the referees who took the testimony. Forfeiture of the company's franchise, as demanded by the city, is strongly declared against by the referees, who award a judgment of $185,136 in favor of the city, against several million dollars claimed by the city as being due on excess profits. The referees' fees are fixed at $100,000.

Since 1898, when the stock of the company was acquired by the New York Gas, Electric Light Heat and Power Company, the city has had no objection to the management. The referees ruled that the city and the defendants should bear the fees of the referees and stenographers equally. The referees were Hamilton, Odeh, Adrian H. Larkin and George Gordon Biddle. Originally, the present Supreme Court Justice Eugene A. Philbin and Adrian H. Jollins were referees.

The actual trial began in 1907. The case was conducted for several years by ex-Assistant Corporation Counsel William P. Burr. During Mayor Gaynor's administration William H. Black was in charge. In the last two years Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel J. Rosenzweig represented the city. Henry J. Hemmens, of Beardley, Hemmens & Taylor, of 64 Wall Street, represented the company from the commencement of the action.

NURSES AT ORANGE, N. J., HOLD A CARNIVAL

Proceeds Go for Improvements to St. Mary's Hospital. The nurses of St. Mary's Hospital, Orange, N. J., are holding a carnival this week on the lawn of the nurse's home in Henry Street. The proceeds of the affair are to go to a fund for improvements in the home.

Thursday evening the programme was in charge of the Glen Club. Two years ago the nurses were given by the sisters of the Church of Our Lady of the Valley, directed by Thomas Kelly, a dancer, and members of the club. Last night members of the Orange lodge of Elks directed the programme, and musical numbers were given by George Eikh's orchestra.

This afternoon a baby parade will be the attraction, and at night the M. I. V. Band of New York will give a concert and the Knights of Columbus, of Orange, will present a programme. There will also be a voting contest for the most popular man in the Oranges, and the winner will be presented with a coat.

GARFORD OUT FOR HUGHES

Former Ohio Progressive Says He Will Follow T. R. Arthur L. Garford, former gubernatorial and senatorial Progressive candidate in Ohio, announced yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria that he would support Hughes in the coming elections.

"I have accepted Colonel Roosevelt for my leader," Mr. Garford said, "and he is the sort of man I want to stick to. I am certain his coming out for Hughes will influence a majority of the Progressive voters. I have just talked with Charles W. Fairbanks, the Vice-Presidential nominee, who is enthused over the prospects of a sweeping Republican victory next November."

HER MILLIONS GO TO HELP PUBLIC

Mrs. Juilliard Makes Many Large Bequests to Institutions.

Bequests which may reach several million dollars are left to public institutions in the will of Mrs. Helen Costitt Juilliard filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday. Mrs. Juilliard, the wife of Augustus D. Juilliard, died on April 2. She had for many years been interested actively in institutions, her favorite philanthropy being St. John's Guild, to which she gave twenty years ago the floating hospital Helen C. Juilliard.

Specific bequests for public purposes in the will of the testatrix aggregate $500,000. Mrs. Juilliard left her husband $1,000,000, half outright, the rest in a trust fund, whose principal will be divided among eight institutions at the expiration of the trust. Mrs. Juilliard gave the Metropolitan Museum of Art and St. John's Guild each one-quarter of her residuary estate. Its exact value is not known.

A new hospital ship bearing Mrs. Juilliard's name, the joint gift of herself and husband to St. John's Guild, was launched last February. The proceeds from the residue which is now left to the institution, Mrs. Juilliard provided, is to be applied toward the erection of an addition to its hospital at New Dorp. The guild will also receive $100,000 from the trust fund.

Other institutions to which residuary bequests are made are: Lincoln Hospital and Home, of which the testatrix was for many years manager, $100,000; Children's Aid Society, $50,000; American Museum of Natural History, $50,000; New York Orthopaedic Dispensary and Hospital, $50,000; Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $50,000; Young Women's Christian Association, $50,000; Colorado College receives a separate bequest of $25,000 outright and $25,000 in trust.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cassette Stokes Vatterli, Mrs. Catherine C. D. Rogers, nieces, the testatrix gave $100,000 each and the income from Fifth Avenue and Broadway property; May Dodge Rogers, a grandniece, receives an estate, her share to be graduated periodically. Mrs. Juilliard left outright and in trust bequests amounting to $500,000 and $1,000,000 to various relatives. Her husband also received $111,000 in Fifty-first Street and most of her personal effects. One-half of the residuary estate is left to the children of Mrs. Rogers.

SOME CITY EMPLOYEES GET INCREASED PAY

One Office in Corporation Counsel's Office Abolished. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment yesterday boosted the salaries of several city employees and established new positions in several city departments. The salary of Commissioner Leonard M. Wallstein was increased from $5,000 to $7,200, and there was established grades for two deputies at $5,000 and $4,000 a year, respectively.

On the recommendation of the committee on salaries and grades the board ordered the promotion of an engineer in the Bureau of Contract Supervision at a salary of $7,200, and advanced Engineer John F. Sullivan to the position, with an increase in salary from $5,000 to $7,200.

The Surrogate's Court yesterday created the salaries of twenty-four employees by $9,350. This is a mandatory charge, over which the Board of Estimate has no control. By way of an assistant, the vacant position of chief of the Corporation Counsel's office was abolished, but the salaries of seven assistants are to be increased.

The plan of the engineers, who have been considering the advisability of adopting a combination post for electric lighting and carrying the new fire alarm boxes, was approved by the board.

At the suggestion of Mayor Mitchell the matter of building a new county court house was taken off the calendar until the board comes to some decision in executive session.

BRITISH CLERGYMAN COMING

The Rev. Jackson, of Trinity, Appointed to Chair at Union. At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the United Theological Seminary yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Frederick John Foxes Jackson, D. D., Fellow and Dean of Jesus College, Cambridge, and Honorary Canon of Peterborough, England, was chosen as the first incumbent of the new Christian Institutions. He is expected to take up his duties in the fall.

The Professorship represents an important advance in theological education in this country. It will deal not only with the history of Christian institutions, but also with their place in the life of the modern world, and their adaptation to its changing conditions.

T. R. TO SEE JULY 4 PARADE

First Public Appearance Since Convention To Be at Oyster Bay. [From a Staff Correspondent of The Tribune.] Oyster Bay, L. I., June 23.—Colonel Roosevelt's first appearance at the public function since the Chicago convention will be on July 4, when he will review the parade which will be part of Oyster Bay's celebration.

Ernest C. Condit, of New York, will be the orator of the day and will speak on "Americanism." Colonel Roosevelt spent to-day quietly at his home. He took a five-mile ride and put in an hour chopping wood.

WAR BRIDE FORTUNES INCREASE INCOME TAX

About $20,000,000 Added to Charges Against New Yorkers.

New York's rapidly increasing circle of millionaires will add a matter of $20,000,000 more to the total of Uncle Sam's spending money this year in increased income taxes.

The city's unprecedented prosperity, credited largely to the ever increasing war orders from abroad, is shown to have been pretty evenly distributed among all those whose earnings heretofore have been such as to attract the attention of income tax collectors. The estimates of the Internal Revenue office show that the increase in Wall Street and the financial district will be about $12,000,000. At the uptown office the estimate is for an increase of $4,000,000, and $4,000,000 from the Brooklyn office expects an increase of $4,000,000.

HEALTH BOARD PRESSES RESTAURANT CAMPAIGN

Rating Cards Ready When Re-inspection Work is Finished. Absolute censorship on the publication of discoveries made by inspectors in the better restaurant campaign was still in force at the Health Department yesterday. Officials denied, however, that this indicated a slackening in the department's efforts to bring about improved conditions.

"The re-inspections on which the good, fair or bad ratings of all kinds of eating places will be based are being pushed," said Dr. Charles F. Bolduan, director of the Bureau of Public Health Education. "Figures as to results will soon be available for publication, but no more figures based on initial inspections will be given out."

Cards of rating have not yet been issued and will not be ready for several weeks. However, comparatively few of the 5,000 eating places in the city have yet been inspected. Under the new policy of the department, no ratings are given except to "good" restaurants until proprietors are notified of the ways in which they fail to meet the proper standards. Time to improve their grade is allowed, and re-inspections on which the ratings are based are then made.

GOVERNOR GUEST TODAY AT POLICE CARNIVAL

Athletes Expect to Lower Three World Records. The annual athletic carnival for the Honor Roll Relief Fund of the New York police force is expected to attract thirty-five thousand persons at the two exhibitions, to-day and next Saturday, at the Sheepskin Bay Speedway.

Governor Whitman and his staff are to be guests of honor to-day. The Governor will be escorted from the Hotel St. Regis by a special guard of mounted police, and will be greeted on the grandstand at the Speedway by Acting Commissioner Godley and Mayor Mitchell.

In the track and field events at least three world records will be in danger. Jack Eller will try to lower Simpson's low hurdle time. Babe McDonough will put the shot against his own world record, and Matt McGrath will seek to recapture his lost laurels as champion hammer thrower. Leon Erickson and Gene Jennings, the latter a former national champion, may do something extraordinary in the high jump.

Another feature of the carnival will be polo games between picked teams from Manhattan and Brooklyn, in which the championship of the two boroughs will be decided.

TREE STOPS PROGRESS OF WILD AUTO RIDE

Driver Found Under Blazing Car—Friends Everywhere. John J. Horrigan, a boss plumber of Yonkers, had several friends out for a ride in his big new automobile night before last and early yesterday morning. They had visited every roadhouse and dance hall in the county, and on their way home the car left the road and struck a tree.

What happened between then and the time Patrolman Grady reached the scene is scattered here and there over the landscape. He marched them off to jail, where they registered as Herbert Eichel, Peter Schuler and John Saitis, all of Yonkers. Excepting Horrigan, who was quite badly bruised, none was hurt.

Later Judge Taylor fined Horrigan $10 for driving an automobile while intoxicated. The others were found guilty of intoxication, but sentence was suspended.

WILL CARRY GARBAGE FIGHT TO ALBANY

Staten Islanders Despair of Help from Mayor. Staten Island civic bodies yesterday decided that they are wasting their time by appealing to Mayor Mitchell to protect them against the construction of a garbage disposal plant on their shores. They will direct their pleas to Albany hereafter, hoping that Governor Whitman will grant the relief which the city officials have refused.

RED CROSS FOOLS MANY WAR HOPES

Girls Learn Only Trained Nurses Can Be of Service at Border.

Hundreds of would-be heroines of the battlefield were disappointed yesterday when their services as nurses were refused by the Red Cross. Two special telephone operators have been engaged to answer the large number of calls for this kind of information. The Red Cross explained again last night that no one could go to the front as a nurse except those who were trained nurses, graduates of American hospitals and members of the Red Cross.

Young girls who long to be of aid can take a five-weeks' course of training as nurses' assistants, and this is practically the only way any girl can go to the front unless she is already a nurse. There are posts and hospitals for bandage making and preparation of other war relief materials. The rooms were fitted up by patriotic firms and plans for an active summer are in the making.

Each unit has 145 non-professional people connected with it, but these are dietitians, cooks and chauffeurs. Each has forty-six nurses and twenty-five surgeons.

The Bellevue unit is to be the first hospital sent to the front, but this will not happen until actual hostilities begin and there is a call from the surgeon general. Equipment for the Bellevue Hospital to be stored at Governor's Island.

Red Cross headquarters were opened in the Bronx yesterday at 161st Street and Washington Avenue, in the Y. M. C. A. building. They will be open daily for bandage making and preparation of other war relief materials. The rooms were fitted up by patriotic firms and plans for an active summer are in the making.

Thousands of new members of the Red Cross were enrolled yesterday. Among the life members were Mme. Alla Nazimova, Mme. Frances Alda and Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Jones Flieger and their three children.

Women Hunt in Vain for Relief Work Office

The enthusiastic women who started with the first rumor of war to organize a relief committee were a sadly disillusioned lot last night. They found out that the real estate offices of Fifth Avenue do not respond to the work of relief for the families of New York guardsmen. Vincent Astor offered them one, but it was not in a suitable district. They found another, quite to their liking, only to receive a cold refusal from the manager. Mrs. John H. B. Belmont, who had been found out to belong to Waldorf Astor, now a British baron. Other stores have been occupied by numerous charities in their turn, and the women expected no triumph. Again they were disappointed.

Large numbers of young women appeared at the office of the American Defense Society yesterday, offering to serve as volunteer workers. Mrs. John H. B. Belmont, who had been found out to belong to Waldorf Astor, now a British baron. Other stores have been occupied by numerous charities in their turn, and the women expected no triumph. Again they were disappointed.

TEAM QUILTS WORK TO GO IN SWIMMING

Task Hot and Dry, Horses Take Dip in River. William Tietjen's team had finished the last of a series of hot trips to the city dump at the foot of East Seventy-second Street yesterday. Mrs. Tietjen was seeking refreshment elsewhere, their eyes were turned toward the river. The street about the dump was hot, dry and dusty, while the river looked cool and refreshing.

Then the horses walked out to the end of the pier, nonchalantly kicked themselves loose from their harness and plunged into the water. The swimmers swam about for a few moments, deciding that a boat ride would be enjoyable, clambered upon the garbage barge standing there. Her companion, however, set out for an endurance test, swimming first to the center of the river, then turning his nose toward Albany, put on all speed and swam north.

Several rowboats and two launches gave chase. The horse finally was overtaken near the southern extremity of Blackwell's Island by a police launch directed by Patrolman Hughes, who grasped the swimmer by the ears and guided him up to the shore. The launch showed every evidence of having enjoyed their plunge.

DIED.
