German Assaults Repulsed

"Enemy artillery effected a concentrated bombardment of the Ikskul bridgehead (Dvina front). In the region of Iloukiet we effected a coup de main against German trenches. The enemy attempted a counter attack, but was repulsed by our rifle and machine gun fire. After this defeat the Germans intermittently bombarded at long range with many batteries."

German Assaults Repulsed

"On Thursday evening the enemy opened a violent artillery fire in the sector of the Beresina farm, bombarding the village of Kilyb, on the Beresina River, to the east of Bogdanoff. Toward night the enemy infantry, in considerable force, opened an offensive against the Beresina farm, but, met by our bayonet counter attacks, were put to flight toward their own trenches, leaving large numbers of dead before our barbed-wire entanglements. To the west of Terchyn (due west of Lutsk) desperate fighting continued."

German Assaults Repulsed

"The fighting became particularly violent in the outskirts of the village of Fleury. Our counter attacks put us again in complete possession of those trenches which the enemy occupied during the night of June 21-22. The bombardment of the enemy was answered with energy by our batteries, and this fire was maintained with intensity from the River Meuse to a point to the east of the Chemin Wood. The troops engaged in these storming operations captured the armored fortress of Thiaumont and, advancing on, took the larger fort and the larger part of the village of Fleury and gained terrain south of Fort Vaux. Up to the present time there have been hard fighting at the Chemin Wood to the north and the Chemin Wood to the south of Hill 320, where the French position forms its root to the west."

German Assaults Repulsed

"German attacks here met with a certain measure of success, but at heavy cost, and their footing is by no means sure enough to prevent their being dislodged by counter attacks, which, it is believed, the French will not fail to make."

German Assaults Repulsed

"On the east of the ravine, however, the enemy made no headway whatever. Here the French lines which command the approaches to Souville are under attack. They rest on three woods—Fumin, to the left; Chemin, to the right, and the wood running from the south, to the slopes of Souville, on the center."

German Assaults Repulsed

"The last named wood is the objective of the Germans, for since it runs out in the salient toward Vaux, all their other attacks are subjected to a flanking fire from it. They succeeded in obtaining a footing in this wood on Wednesday night, after four costly attacks, but lost a large part of their gain on Thursday. Further attempts made yesterday were defeated by the curtain of fire of the French artillery."
